Town Election

Five Vying For Selectmen Seats

If past statistics hold true this year, only about 30 percent of Winchester's 13,348 voters will turn out at the polls Monday to vote for townwide offices.

Last year 29 percent turned out. Figures for the years previously are 39 percent, 48, 23, 42, 30, 35, and 33. Town Clerk Elsie M. Nelson's office has registered 77 new voters since November.

"You always get a small registration in the year following a state election," she said. Most of the eligible new voters would have registered for the general election in November, she said.

The contest of greatest interest is that of selectman, where voters will elect two members to that board. Running are the incumbent, William G. Chapman Jr.; Mark A. Lombardi, a member of the Finance Committee and owner of a food store; Emidio DiLoreto of 93 Thornberry rd., a Winchester lawyer and commander of the Third Judge Advocate Detachment in Boston; Eugene B. Rotondi, of 224 Forest st., owner of Rotondi & Sons, a construction business, and a real estate broker; and Lawrence T. Smith, chairman of the Finance Committee and an accountant and specialist in financial management.

Chapman, a former Planning Board member for five years, has been a selectman for three years. The other selectman whose seat is up this year, Paul F. Amico, decided to step down after two terms.

The following is a list of the candidates for the other townwide offices:

--Assessor, one 3-year vacancy: Werner A. Carlson, 14 Bigelow ave.; Sumner M. Beal Jr., 30 Hollywood rd.; and Ralph C. Powers, 3 Meridan rd.

--Assessor, one 1-year vacancy: George Louis Andersen, 28 Mayflower rd.; Kenneth F. D'Arcy, 8 Plymouth rd.; Sherman R. Josephson, 41 Salisbury st.

--Board of Health, one 3-year vacancy: Vartkes K. Karaian, incumbent.

--Cemetery Commission, one 5-year vacancy: Ralph W. Hatch, the incumbent; and John W. Lane 3rd , 2 Myrtle st.

--Cemetery Commission, one 1-year vacancy: Bradford J. Johnson, 16 Ardley pl, and J. Frank Holland, 8 Stowell rd.

--Cmsr. of Trust Funds, one 3-year vacancy: Harris S. Richardson, 11 Ledgewood rd.

--Constable, one 3-year vacancy: Robert G. Heitz of 24 Water st.

--Park Cmsn., one 3-year vacancy: William T. Ryerson, 10 Ardley rd., and Philip E. Richardson, 14 York rd.

--Planning Board, one 5-year vacancy: Joseph F. Geary Jr., 366 Cambridge st.

--School Committee, two 3-year vacancies: Stephen R. Parkhurst, the incumbent; Vincent Galvin, 45 Calumet rd.; Richard L. Pharo, member of the Finance Committee; and James E. Kimball 2d., 24 Cabot st.

--Trustees of Public Library, two 3-year vacancies: Dudley D. B. Samoiloff, 3 Grove st.; Richard F. Nurdock, 12 Edgehill rd.; James W. Blackham Jr., the incumbent; and John Johnian, 19 Hillside ave.

--Trustees of Public Library, one 1-year vacancy: Alice D. Butare, 75 Bacon st., and Austin Broadhurst, 18 Glen rd.

--Water-Sewer Board, one 3-year vacancy: Ernest A. Phillips Jr., the incumbent.

--WHA, one 5-year vacancy: John L. Doherty, 137 Highland ave.

--NEMR Voc. Dist., one 4-year vacancy: Gerard P. Donahoe, 34 Glen rd., and Arthur J. Hewis Jr., 91 Swanton st.

Voters, in addition, are being asked to elect 11 three-year town meeting members in each precinct. There are other town meeting seats to be filled—either 1-year or 2-year terms—in each precinct of members who have resigned or died before completion of their terms.

But there is not a single contest for any of the town meeting slots. In fact, in Precincts 1, 4, 5, and 6 there are more seats to be filled than there are candidates. The usual procedure will be for the newly elected and reelected members to get together prior to town meeting March 15 and appoint persons to fill those slots.

Don't forget to vote Monday, 7 a.m. - 7 p.m.

Letter Shows Hospital Considered Adding 45 Beds

By Arthur MacDonnell

Six months ago Winchester Hospital indicated to state health officials a desire to increase bed capacity at the institution by 45, a direct contradiction in what hospital officials have been stating publicly in recent weeks.

Whether the hospital administration has since changed its mind about increasing beds is not known. Many attempts by The Star to contact the hospital, including submission to administrator Reese James of a written list of questions, at his request, have been ignored.

The hospital now has 200 beds. Both James and hospital president Robert B. Kittredge have publicly stated the hospital has no intention of increasing beds.

In a letter filed in September with the Health Planning Council of Greater Boston the hospital requested application forms for a determination of need (required by law) for expansion of its ambulatory care and supporting hospital departments.

"Our application will be for the purpose of carrying out the construction necessary to implement the Letter of Intent (filed Dec. 7, 1971)," James wrote in the September letter, listing these proposed expanded ambulatory services under a $3.5 million building program:

Laboratory, X-ray, EKG (heart), inhalation therapy, physical therapy, outpatient maintenance, housekeeping.

Proposed for construction are a "modern surgical suite" and a modern coronary care unit. Approximately 10 coronary beds would be added and approximately 35 extended care beds.

On Aug. 23, James wrote in a letter to the state: "It is to be noted that our proposed program is to provide the space requirements for expanded ambulatory care and supporting hospital departments and does not propose to add to our in-patient bed capacity other than for coronary care."

Hospitals in Greater Boston in recent years have come under increasing criticism for expanding facilities resulting in duplication of services and increasing costs of medical care. Patients indirectly bear these costs through higher Blue Cross Blue Shield rates.

In a letter dated Dec. 7, 1971, the hospital stated to Myer Herman, M.D., director of the Bureau of Resource Development of the Health Planning Council: "The need for expansion of supporting inpatient and ambulatory services is supported by two independent hospital consultant reports by Anthony J. Rourke, M.D., 1966 and 1971."

That same letter says the hospital engaged Ritchie Associates, Inc., architects of Chestnut Hill, to prepare a master plan for physical plant expansion based on previous hospital consultant recommendations. "The hospital is now ready to implement Phase One of the approved master plan, which includes ..."

There follows a very detailed description of facilities to be relocated into the new construction area. Each hospital level, from the subbasement through the fourth floor, would have some relocation of facilities.

Included in expansion are laundry, dietary, emergency outpatient, admitting, discharge, accounting and records department, pathology, intensive and coronary care, pediatrics.

New construction would include an underground parking level to accommodate 55 cars, an auditorium and conference facility, and "shells" (open areas) for future expansion. The Health Planning Council told The Star construction of such shells are not permitted.

Additional staffing for "Phase one" is listed: X-ray, two technicians; pathology, two technicians; OPD, two nurses and two aides; ICU and CCU, 15 nurses and aides.

Communications to the council indicate the hospital is "attempting to purchase land in the surrounding area for parking expansion." Estimated time for the start of Phase One was given as early 1973, and occupancy as early 1975.

The architect's preliminary plans "could be available for the bureau for review in mid 1972," states the original letter of intent.

Russell House, described as a "detached four-story wooden frame building located on the southwest corner of the site," was the subject of one of The Star's unanswered questions to James. The building houses maintenance shops, purchasing department, storage rooms, employee relations department, employee health services offices and nurses' quarters.

The hospital noted that the Department of Public Safety wants the building phased out "because of its non-fire-safe construction." The hospital was given a variance to continue to operate the maintenance shop until July 1973, "then it must be phased out."

The Star inquired of James if Russell House would be a suitable area for parking.

All figures on number of beds, construction costs and expansion plans at this point are preliminary. No official plan has been filed with the state. The information contained in the letter of intent is temporary and could change before the hospital files for a certificate of need.

Redistricting Rescinded

Monday night the Winchester School Committee named a new principal to the Mystic School, effective September of this year; voted to rescind its vote of Jan. 22 on redistricting Wyman School pupils and granted tenure to 43 local educators.

By vote of the School Committee, Mrs. Martha Grenzeback, principal of the Lincoln [illegible] scheduled to close this fall, will become the new principal of the Mystic School.

Mrs. Grenzeback, who holds a bachelor of science degree in education from Bridgewater State College and a master's in education degree from Harvard University, began teaching locally in 1943 in grade four at the Wyman School. From 1949 to 1952 she was head teacher at Parkhurst School, continuing in grade four. After a sabbatical leave she became elementary principal for the Parkhurst and Lincoln schools and from 1956 was appointed principal at Lincoln School.

At the conclusion of Monday night's school committee meeting a parent on the board at the Mystic School rose from the assembly to thank the committee for naming Mrs. Grenzeback to the Mystic School.

Following much debate during recent weeks involving Wyman school parents and the committee on whether Wyman pupils will attend McCall or Lynch junior high schools, the School Committee voted to rescind its

Nine To Noon Tour Planned For March 10

An "orientation" tour for town meeting members prior to the annual town meeting in March is being planned by the Board of Selectmen.

The selectmen hope the town meeting members will garner enough information during the tour to help them make speedy decisions at the meeting.

Places to be visited will include the police and fire stations, the town yards and Town Hall. The selectmen recently asked for bids for a number of pieces of new equipment for the Police, Fire and Highway Departments.

They hope viewing the equipment to be replaced will guide the members in their action. "It will be a good dry run for town meeting," commented Paul F. Amico, chairman of the board. "The town meeting members will have an idea of future planning and the breakdown of the budget."

The selectmen are not planning a lengthy tour because they feel they will lose the attention of the members if the sessions are too long.

At Town Hall, said Amico, increases in department budgets could be explained. He said members could ask questions but debate would be discouraged. The day of the tour remains to be set.

The selectmen this week set the date of the tour as March 10. Chairman Amico said he wants the town meeting members to see a demonstration of a fire alarm at the fire station so they will realize a certain number of men are required for each vehicle. The Finance Committee wants to cut the Fire Department one man.

At the town yards, the members will see, besides the equipment of the Highway

Residents Comment

Spot Zoning, Traffic, Taxes

Town Engineer John H. Ciarcia said this week the area on Cambridge street where Bonnell Motors proposes to relocate its agency was never a business zone, always residential.

In clarifying some of the comments made at a public hearing last Thursday on Bonnell's request for business zoning at 339 to 353 Cambridge st., near the Woburn line, Ciarcia said it is difficult to reply to charges of spot zoning made at the hearing because of a lack of clear definition of spot zoning. The area of the corner of Pond and Cambridge streets was a business zone until 1938, he said, when it was rezoned to residential.

He said spot zoning means an "uncharacteristic use" of an area. "Generally that area (Bonnell's proposed site) is a business zone." A two-thirds vote of town meeting is required on zoning changes. Approval of the Massachusetts attorney general is then required.

At last Thursday's 90-minute public hearing attended by about 40 residents, 13 were recorded in favor of the proposal, three against and 20 undecided.

Atty. William Speers, representing Ralph H. Bonnell Jr. and his brother Bruce J. Bonnell, owner of Bonnell Ford in Woburn, told the Planning Board conducting the hearing that the Ford Motor Co. has been after the Bonnell brothers to combine their agencies into a single modern dealership to better serve the area. He said Ralph Bonnell desires to keep the business in Winchester—he is now located in the center—and the business helps Winchester's tax base.

Speers, a former selectman, said the Cambridge street land is the only site Ford has approved. He showed slides of the proposed building, describing it as a one-story "contemporary substantial building." Bonnell said it would conform to all town zoning by-laws.

Mrs. David W. Ewing of 195 Cambridge st. urged: "Do not spot zone." She said the new business would increase traffic in an area where traffic is already "incredible."

But Atty. Speers said a car dealership will generate less traffic—especially Sundays and holidays—than apartments, if they were built there.

Charles Manoogian of 16 Johnson rd. asked Bonnell to set aside a portion of the unused land on the six-acre site for conservation. Though Bonnell said he was not opposed to this idea, he made no commitment.

Carl W. Hagge of 16-A Ginn rd. asked if the Planning Board's study of Winchester Center made any plans available to Bonnell to relocate there. Chairman Otto E. Schaefer said the center is not a suitable area and the Planning Board, as a town agency, cannot dictate where businesses should be located.

James A. Cullen of 82 Bacon st. asked if the proposed dealership would be as large as Wilmington Ford. Bonnell answered it would be half Wilmington's size.

Manoogian asked about demonstration drives. Bonnell said agencies these days have few. Another asked how many single homes could be built on the site. Town Engineer Ciarcia said because of the ledge there probably only 10 could be built.

Theodore Burleigh of 7 Sheffield rd. said the Planning Board should be happy Bonnell wants to move out of the center "since the Planning Board wants to zone that area for apartments."

Two years ago the Bonnell location in the center was proposed by the board as an apartment zone.

Chairman Schaefer said several days after the hearing he was surprised there weren't "more fireworks." He thought the reason for the lack of emotionalism was that residents realize "what kind of people the Bonnells are."

Schaefer expects the board's report will be ready "well in advance of town meeting for discussion." Town meeting begins March 15.

Local Dr. Studies Aging

Dr. Alexander Leaf of 1 Curtis cir. spent two years on sabbatical, through the support of the National Geographic Society, and visited some of the most remote and mountainous regions where he interviewed some of the world's oldest people to gain information on how a healthy and vigorous old age can be reached.

"Today more than 20 million Americans are age 65 and older," Dr. Leaf observes. Yet our understanding of aging is minimal, especially in explaining the factors that produce a busy useful centenarian in one instance and a wasting senility and sickness in another, he says.

Chief of Medicine at Massachusetts General Hospital and a Jackson profesor at Harvard University, Leaf has seen many of the medical misfortunes that have befallen the elderly and has grown interested in learning more about what goes into making a person live longer.

He visited the Andean village of Vilcabamba in Ecuador, the land of the Hunza in the Karakoram Range in Pakistani-controlled Kashmir, and Abkhazia in the Georgian Soviet Socialist Republic in the southern Soviet Union.

His findings, which are reported in the January, 1973, issue of National Geographic, are intimately detailed and graphically illustrated with photographs by John Launois and tell about people 100 to 168 years of age.

These centenarians are living useful participative lives using skills they have developed and employed during their lifetimes. They drink, smoke and retain senses of humor, subsist on diets that might be called scant by western standards, and engage in additional marriages after age 64, saying that sexual activity as well as companionship and economy are reasons for entering into new unions.

In the village of Kutol in the foothills of the Caucasus Mountains of southern USSR, Leaf met a spritely lady named Khfaf Lasuria. She is small - not five feet tall - white-haired and full of humor."

In the geographic article Leaf says, "I visited her one spring morning and found her and chickens. I was greeted in warm - Georgian fashion, and we toasted each other first with vodka and then with wine as we talked."

She told him about her life. She had a lot to tell because her memory was good--and she was more than 130 years old. She remembered as a recent event the big snowfall of 1910. "My son was already an adult then, and I was about 70," she recalled. "The snow was more than two meters deep, and I helped him shovel it from the roof." Her son, who lives in a stone house next to hers, is 82 years of age.

Mrs. Lasuria worked on a local collective farm as a tea picker for some 40 years. She retired in 1970. In the 1940's, when she was more than 100 years old, she held the record as the farm's fastest tea-leaf picker. Now still active around the house, she enjoys a little vodka before breakfast, a glass of wine before her noon meal, and a daily pack of cigarettes.

Others in the USSR were 100-year-old Temur Tarba, a superb horseman; and Shirali Mislimov, who lives in the village of Barzavu in Azerbaijan, west of the Caspian

Selectmen

Grant Elks Liquor License, Support Upkeep Of Houses

The Board of Selectmen this week voted to grant the Winchester Lodge of Elks Post, 374 Cambridge st., a license to sell liquor.

The vote was unanimous and came after almost no discussion. Two years ago the local selectmen approved a license for the Elks to serve liquor at their club. The Massachusetts Alcoholic Beverage Commission turned the license down on the basis Elks lodges discriminate against blacks.

This year's license approval must also go before the state ABC. Atty. Henry F. Quill, representing the Winchester Elks, said he expects this latest license to stand.

He said ABC has been approving Elks' licenses pending outcome of court litigation on a charge of discrimination against the Revere Elks.

In other action this week, the Board of Selectmen discussed a $1,600 budget cut being recommended by the Finance Committee to the town meeting in maintenance of rental property, under the selectmen's jurisdiction.

Two members of the board, Chairman Paul F. Amico and Vito A. Giarrizzo, vigorously supported properly maintaining these houses rented to private parties.

"We can't be slumlords," said Amico.

"I'm afraid that's what we are," Giarrizzo said.

Amico though it might be cheaper to demolish some of the properties than to put them into good physical shape.

"We're not being good neighbors," Giarrizzo said, adding that the run down appearance of these houses is "detrimental to the neighborhood. I'm amazed the people (renters) haven't complained more forcefully for their rights."

Giarrizzo suggested that the members of the Finance Committee had never seen the properties before making the recommended budget cut. The board may attempt to have the money reinstated at town meeting.

The selectmen's rental budget figure for the next 18 months is recommended by Finance at $19,910. This is for upkeep and taxes for eight houses. (To simplify bookkeeping, the board pays real estate taxes to the town for the houses.)

In another matter, the board approved a request from the MDC to install a water pipe down Forest street from the Stoneham line to Bellevue avenue.

Selectman Arthur E. Dunbar said though Forest street was recently reconstructed by the state, economically and environmentally the proposal makes sense. The pipe would be too expensive to place under the enbankment, he said, and telephone cable under the sidewalk blocks that alternative.

Dunbar said the town would "save several thousand dollars" over coming years if the MDC allowed a tie-in with this pipe and Winchester's water supply. Another benefit would be a portion of Forest street now unpaved would be paved by the MDC.

Approval was granted providing the MDC allow the pipe tie-in.

The board met with the Cemetery Commission to discuss use of certain cemetery funds for improving the cemetery. Cmsr. Dean W. Carleton said the commission has received "hundreds of letters" about the poor conditions at Wildwood Cemetery.

Up until seven years ago, he said, the commission was allowed to use its income for improving Wildwood Cemetery. Then the town began applying those funds to the cemetery's budget. The commission wants to use some of its own money for "embellishments."

"The roads there are terrible," Carleton said. Money left by donors specifically for embellishments are being used in the day to day operation of Wildwood-- $6,326 this year. The selectmen urged the commission to appeal to town meeting.

The board approved a selling license for James Sybold of North Chelmsford to operate Jim's Coffe Shop, 292 Washington st., formerly Fife'n Drum Pastry.

Finance's cut of $1,615 for "public celebrations" hiring bands for Memorial Day--will be subject of discussion by the selectmen's executive secretary and Finance. Celebrations' total budget is $3,835.

Town Engineer Ciarca reported to the board that he doesn't support proposed consolidation of the building and engineering departments. Selectman Dunbar will talk to him.

The selectmen agreed to indefinitely postpone at town meeting a request for funds to tear down the house at 22 Highland ave. for parking. The board feels if they go along with use of this lot for hospital parking, the nospital should pay for demolition.

Names picked for jury duty were Eleanor H. Mansfield, 62, a housewife, of 84 Walnut st.; Elaine O'Neill, 28, a secretary, of 28 Henry st.; John Terzian, 50, an electrical engineer, of 1 Capri ter.; Shirley B. Puffer, 47, a housewife of 5 Edgehill rd.; and Charles Harris, 41, an executive director, of 23 Stevens st.

Moderator Kenney To Conduct Class

On March 13, at 7:30 p.m. at McCall Junior High School Auditorium, Raymond J. Kenney Jr., town moderator, will hold a class in the basic principles of parliamentary procedure. All town meeting members, including all interested residents, are welcome to attend.

Department, the equipment of Water and Sewer and the swan house.

The nine to noon tour will conclude with a trip to townrun Wildwood Cemetery. The Cemetery Commisssion is fighting for use of money it turns back to the town from sale of lots for use in upkeep of the cemetery.

The commissioners feel the roads, especially, need extensive work.

Chairman Amico is looking into the possibility of using a school bus to transport those participating in the tour.

Selectman Arthur E. Dunbar said he hoped there would be greater participation than at the November open house at the town yards open for inspection during an entire day when "only four or five people attended."

"What can you do?" sighed Amico. "You can lead them to water but you can't make them drink.

The equipment the selectmen have asked for bids on are the following:

Police—Two 1973 heavy duty 4-door sedans and two 1973 heavy duty 4-door station wagons;

Fire—One 1973 4-door station wagon, ladder truck and rescue truck.

Highway—One 1973 4-door station wagon, one half-ton pickup truck, two 1973 dump trucks, one 1973 hydraulic material spreader, three 1973 underbody scraper blades and one 1973 self contained leaf collecter.

Water and Sewer—One 1973 three-quarter ton cab and chassis, one 1973 backhoe loader and one three-quarter ton pickup truck.

Dog officer—One 1973 van-type truck;

Forestry—One 1973 leaf shredder mixer.

The selectmen won't necessarily recommend to the town meeting that it authorize the purchase of all this equipment. The board wants to see how much the bids are before making a recommendation.

Library Plans Talk At Sunday Opening

"A lot of us had comments from people pleased we'll be open but that doesn't prove they'll be here," said head librarian Leila-Jane Roberts.

The new Sunday service will be conducted on an experimental basis for six weeks.

Car Chase Ends In Teen Arrest

The proprietor of a Hill street auto body shop was en route home one day last week when he spotted a car allegedly stolen earlier from his shop.

James Seybold of North Chelmsford saw the car on Cross street, followed it to Cox rd. and Cross st., where he saw Officer Daniel K. McGhee on foot patrol.

Seybold picked up McGhee at the same time the car passed and the pair gave chase. Eventually the car entered the parking lot at the J. H. Winn Co. on Washington st., near the Woburn line, and McGhee got out and placed the operator under arrest.

Francis R. Heefling, 17, of 156 Forest st., was arrested for operating a motor vehicle without authority. His case was continued at Woburn District Court until March 14.

Seybold told the police the Cadillac was the property of Paul Gangi of 22 Glenwood ave., who was working with him at Christiansen Auto Body, 4 Hill st., when the car was stolen last Friday night.

In another police case, investigation was made at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Archie V. Manoogian, 16 Johnson rd., where a wallet, pocketbook from a living room table and a $20 bill from a bedroom were said to be missing.

Mrs. Manoogian told the police the home was entered last Friday afternoon while she was washing the car in the driveway. She said she had turned off the alarm system. The police could find no evidence of a forced entry.

Reduce Tax Rate

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

All town meeting members are soon to be faced with the serious question of what to do with available town funds. Recently in The Star mention was made of a possible refund of $50,000 from the state lottery (Feb. 8), and of a return of $90,000 from the Regional Vocational School (Feb. 15).

If "revenue sharing," by some miracle, should reach us, the problem of what to do would be compounded.

May I suggest an original and novel idea: Reduce the tax rate!

Committee Persists

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

Since the signing of the recent cease-fire agreement, there is among us a general feeling of relief that our involvement in Southeast Asia is coming to an end and that we can turn to the business of mending the painful divisions in our country and of welcoming home our prisoners of war. In this spirit people wonder why groups such as the Winchester Peace Committee persist in their work.

A continued effort to educate ourselves and others about our government's role in Southeast Asia is imperative because we are still deeply and destructively involved in Vietnam, Laos and Cambodia. We are sending to South Vietnam an army of military and civilian advisors who are under contract to the Defense Department and are used in support of President Thieu's repression of opposition. The cease-fire agreements provide for the right of the Vietnamenese people to choose their own government. How can we ensure the implementation of this provision while we have such a stake in the survival of Thieu's regime?

Today at 8 p.m. Noam Chomsky will be at the Winchester Public Library to speak on "Building for Peace." Dr. Chomsky, a long-time peace activist, has written extensively on the war in Indochina. He will evaluate the cease-fire agreements and the immediate and long-range prospects for peace in Vietnam. I urge all Winchester citizens to bring your questions and come to hear him.

Because we are weary of war and eager to believe that it is all over, we are vulnerable to being misled about the extent to which we continue to involve ourselves in the affairs of the South Vietnamese people.

Lane Replies To Conflict Charge

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

My appointment to the Cemetery Commission at the joint meeting of the Board of Selectman and the Cemetery Commission received some attention because I was not selected with unanimity. I was not surprised as I was the only person who notified both boards of my interest and already had taken out nomination papers to seek office on March 5.

My surprise at the Cemetery Commissioners reaction after their candidate lost 4-3 is only exceeded by my surprise at their letter to the editor in The Winchester Star last week. Late in the campaign they collectively announced that they feel my election would constitute a conflict of interest.

Without maintaining that the Town Counsel, Mr. Lenord Mullen, has said that a funeral director can serve, they incorrectly quote a statute and lead everyone to believe it is illegal for me to run for office. The attorney general's office informs me that Section 22 of Chapter 268A applies and that Mr. Mullen is correct in his determination.

The thing that bothers me is that the three signers of that letter knew it and still made the irresponsible charge. They have done my opponent a grave disservice. After living in Winchester for 75 years and serving 18 years on the commission he deserved more help from his three "friends" than this last minute charge.

I chose to run for this office because I wanted to serve and I am technically qualified. I want to serve the community that has served me so well over the years. I seek your consideration on March 5.

John W. Lane III
Cemetery Commissioner

Use More Sand

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

Use it once and throw it away: the convenience philosophy., Of what "throw-away" did we each use 500 pounds last year? 11,600,000 pounds of unreausable, unrecoverable road salt was used once and washed into the Mystic Lakes and Horn Pond from Winchester last year.

There is an alternative to our excessive use of salt: sand. We are using salt not only to melt snow, but also to try to provide traction on ice a job that sand can do better. Almost no other town limits itself to salt the way Winchester does.

Sand, moreover, is recoverable and reusable. Unlike glass, cans, and newspapers it does not need to be trucked long distances and reprocessed. Sand can be swept up from the side of the road after one snow and reused, as is, on the next one. The experience in Burlington showed that the money saved by buying sand instead of salt and by sweeping and reusing the sand more than made up for the extra man hours.

How can we cut down the 500 pounds of salt that are thrown away for each of us each year? The Highway Department says that any neighborhood that would like to see its street sanded instead of salted can send a letter to this effect to the Superintendent of Streets. Include name, address, and telephone number for each person signing the letter.

It is estimated that each of us is responsible for a ton of trash per year. A small fraction of it we recycle, and that helps. But if we took a quarter of a ton of trash for everyone and threw it into the Mystic Lakes, we would certainly call them polluted. Yet we put that much salt into the Lakes, and because we don't see it we pretend we have not polluted the water.

By using more sand and less salt on our streets we could cut down on the 500 pounds of salt, used once and thrown away, for which we are each responsible.

Elderly Club

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

This is a call to all the senior citizens in Winchester to meet at the Public Library hall to organize a "senior citizens club of Winchester," to make plans, to elect officers and to conduct any other business concerning the welfare of this club.

I sincerely hope that we will have a large attendance and get this club off to a good start. We can do it if we will but give our best efforts to this business at hand.

Our greatest concern is to find a place to hold our meetings where we can plan our own activities. I would like the candidates for public office to attend and let us know what they are going to do for the "senior citizens club" of Winchester. I am sure that we will be successful and have the best senior citizens club in all of Massachusetts. Let's get it off to a good start. The meeting will be held on Saturday, March 10, at 2 p.m.

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

George Louis Andersen is a sincere, dedicated and talented young man. I've had the pleasure of knowing him and his family for all of his 39 years. Let's not loose this opportunity we have in Winchester to utilize this man's ability and experience to represent us on the Board of Assessors.

Please vote Monday March 5 for George Louis Andersen. Let's keep Winchester the fine town it is.

Church News

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

Today in The Winchester Star I noticed that on the Church Page the box giving the names of all the churches and information about their service times was missing. I hope this was left out just this once because of all the election news and that it will appear each time from now on.

I noticed that The Winchester Star has served the community for 90 years and the church information is a vital part of this community. I have spoken to many people this weekend and each one of them agreed they would like it back in the paper—total about 100 people.

Freedom of the press and freedom of religion go hand in hand. Certainly church news is more important than marriages and sports and deserves at least one page. I shall appreciate it very much if you will restore this vital church information to the paper each week.

Sincerely yours,
Jessie M. Favre

Church Directory

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

This Sunday it was brought to my attention that a new policy regarding the "church page" has been adopted by the management of The Star. In essence it involved the removal of the Church Directory from the page customarily devoted to news of religion. In effect, at least in my judgement, it reduces the importance of religion at the newsdesk to an occasional article or two on a hopelessly jumbled page of odds and ends.

Before writing this Letter to the Editor I telephoned Mr. Arthur MacDonnell, managing editor of The Star, to get my facts straight. I have been informed by him that this policy change is temporary, based on the premise that no one reads or cares for the Church Directory and subject to public reaction to its demise. If enough people register complaints, the Church Directory will be restored and the church page will resume its format of recent months.

This seems to me a good opportunity for The Star and the Winchester community to review the expectations of a church page which will serve the vital interests of the religious communities in Winchester. I am convinced that the Church Directory is important, especially to newcomers and visitors in our town. I am further convinced that the simple restoration of the Church Directory to its customary position will do little to increase the religious sensitivities of our town. Finally, I am convinced that if concerned citizens, representative clergy and the editorial staff of The Star were to use this unfortunate decision to focus on the possibilities of a better way of handling both religious news and news of religion - two distinct concerns - the viability of religion in Winchester might be increased.

Several suggestions to the editor:

First. Since The Winchester Star, as it appears on Thursdays, is a product of and addressed to the Winchester community, a long list of religious communities outside the geographical bounds of Winchester seems unnecessary. To be sure, some of our residents are involved elsewhere, but it is the religious communities within Winchester that ought to be our primary concern if space is at a premium as the editor claims. To list only those religious communities within Winchester would reduce the Church Directory to a reasonable size.

Second. Introduce a heading on the church page, just as you do for "Selectmen" and "Youth Hockey." This will make clear that it is not just a miscellaneous hodgepodge of articles at the back of the paper.

Third. We have a right to know on what basis the editor arbitrarily assumes that no one reads the church page. Certainly do not take unilateral action to remove it without consultation with the persons or organizations involved. This would be just as absurd as to assume that no one was interested in local sports news and therefore to remove it from the paper without consulting the Recreation Department, youth leagues and so forth.

Fourth. Why not encourage townwide interest in the religious communities of Winchester through such time-honored methods as periodic interviews, coverage of major ecumenical events, services and projects and occasional photographs of faith in action. Much is happening. Much of what is happening deserves at least local coverage. coverage.

Fifth. If possible, why nol include pieces from the Religious News Service (RNS) and other major wire services which might heighten interest in and support for the local efforts by religious communities?

Sixth. Why not forward information of local events to some of the greater Boston newspapers so that the larger community of which we in Winchester are a part will know that God is not dead in Winchester?

Winchester Historical Society

The original name of the Winchester Historical Society was the Winchester Historical and Genealogical Society. It was founded in 1884. In view of the new interest in Winchester's historic past and the great importance of getting our records up to date in time for the rapidly approaching Bicentennial in 1975 and 1976 it is fitting that we reivew the purposes and the work of the first Historical Society.

President of the Winchester Historical and Genealogical Society when it was founded in 1884 was Abijah Thompson.

It is hoped that the inspiration of past first families of Winchester who devoted so much time to the preservation of Winchester's archives will be emulated by all of those who have special interest and knowledge of the town's past. Thus we ask readers who may have any stories of the past to submit clippins, papers, tapes or papers they have written of any area of Winchester history.

All interested citizens who wish to help the society catalog the archives may come Tuesday evenings from 7 - 9 to the Downs Room of the Winchester Public Library.

It is obvious from a clipping of June 5, 1886, from the scrapbook of Martha Rand, that Winchesterites had a high regard for their past. Builders of Winchester "New Town Hall' reserved over the public library reading room a "chamber for the Winchester Historical Society which will be 20 by 39 feet."

Contrast this to the present 9 by 12-foot closet in the library now set aside for all our precious archieves. Not only that, but the terrible heat the precious documents are subjected to in this under-the eaves room is especially disturbing after viewing the wonderful preservation methods for historical documents with proper air conditioning and humidity as demonstrated at the Textile Museum in North Andover (serving as achives consultants for the Merrimac Valley).

Consulting again the Rand scrapbook of clippings we find the following: "Winchester Historical and Geneological Society - An association with this title has been formed in Winchester, the officers of which are, President, Abijah Thompson, Vice Presidents, Messrs Luther R. Symmes, Joseph H. Tyler and Thomas P. Ayer, Secretary, George Cooke, Treasurer, Charles Dunham, Librarian George S. Littlefield.

"Thus Winchester follows the example of other towns, in efficient measures to collect and preserve the landmarks of its history, such as all valuable information relating to original land ownership in the territory now within our limits, the changes from 1630 downwards, the measures which culminated in the incorporation of the town, fuller than the brief and formal records of the Town contain, corroberating and explaining the same, similar information pertaining to our churches, schools, associations, military and fire companies, cemetery, common, water works, public library, village improvements etc. etc. togeter with biographies of our citizens, and prominent facts necessary to a complete history of the town.

"By a suitable division of the work by those most competent to do it, and through scrutiny of each paper before its adoption and filing for preservation, it is hoped to bring into permanent forms, material for the most complete and accurate history attainable."

As current president of the present Winchester Historical Society my plea is, "Don't let George do it. Do it yourself—Help us to pitch in and do the job so admirably outlined by our forbears and which other surrounding communities have rigorously done with skill and pride.

Foster Seeks Local Support

Charles H. W. Foster, Secretary of Environmental Affairs, was in this area recently seeking local ideas on the reorganization of his cabinet.

"The interest generated at the local level may be the key to responsible action in a legislative sense," he told the Massachusetts Press Association meeting in Burlington. Unlike the other nine secretariats in Gov. Francis W. Sargent's reorganization plan, Environmental Affairs is being organized from the bottom up.

Two hundred persons split into eight task forces garnered ideas from local conservation and environmental groups on how the new cabinet should be structured.

Foster said legislation to be filed this year will propose consolidation of 49 agencies concerned with environmental matters into four executive offices in one department to eliminate overlapping of duties, duplication and inefficiency.

Having consolidated all these agencies, Foster proposes to do the reverse: decentralize "In order to be responsive to what we heard"—that state government is not responsive to people.

To change this, Foster would have five districts in Massachusetts, each district pulling together all the services in its area relating to the environment. A single administrative bureau would remian in Boston.

Another feature of the reorganization would be the bringing together of the many "scattered legal responsibilities," such as the MDC police and the many different legal offices in the present 49 agencies. The 400 MDC police, in fact, would become environmental officers responsible for policing the environment, ticketing violators on the spot.

Foster said central planning, now nonexistent in the present set up, would become a vital part of the new secretariat. "We hope to gain the ability of dealing with the environment as a whole rather than in bits and pieces."

He expects, in addition, that the reorganization will save considerable sums of money, "$4 million the first year."

Foster spoke at great length about what he termed the "disenfranchisement" of people concerned with protecting the environment and being "frustrated by the state level." Often, several newsmen present pointed out, by the time an environmental violation is brought to the state's attention it's too late to do anything about it.

A decentralized enforcement system will correct that lag, he asserted.

Hewis Defends Self

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

"If you can keep your head, when those about you are losing theirs, and blaming it on you" — Rudyard Kipling.

"If" has become a way of life with me. Quotations in "What's Wrong with Town Meeting?" (Star, Feb. 15) named me an obstructionist and commented: "people who use the town meeting to practice their elocution—" really presses me to keep to my creed.

Those who would call names and distort the truth must be answered if only to show their inability to do the job in town meeting. They do not know parliamentary procedures, and in their ignorance, accuse the last five moderators (1944 to present) of failing to carry out the prescribed rules. Town by-law and Roberts' rules limit a speaker to five minutes; the meeting may extend that time. Moderators Wilkins, Worthen, Wadsworth, Chadwick and now Mr. Kenney have conducted proper meetings.

Votes of the members permitting some speakers to speak for 45 minutes is allowed. I never asked, nor was I given, anywhere near that time. I have had a five minute extension in past years but I would be lucky now to get three minutes.

Why do my detractors say these things? I have, they say, "obstructed" but in reality I have spoken against major issues and carried them, where necessary, to the people. In every instance I had an alternate plan which I thoroughly researched, planned and in most cases was eventually adopted the brainchild of the administration.

1. Environmental control - pollution: In 1944 I had the first committee appointed by Moderator Wilkins to study and recommend elimination of the open burning, vermin and rodent infested town dump, proposing at that time an incinerator. Finally proposed by the Board of Selectmen, 1958 (?), and opened in 1960.

2. Vocational education: To meet the needs of young people for career education leading to profitable skills and trades, in 1948 I led a continuing battle in and out of town meeting to improve this needed educational program. In 1955 by unanimous vote the high school on Main street was enlarged and the educational curricula included a strong course in industrial arts. In 1965 Winchester voted to join the Northeast Regional Vocational School District.

3. Town employees: In the early fifties, I spoke and helped improve the conditions of our town employees. Firefighters - 72 hour week; Highway employees - working conditions and wages that were barely out of the welfare category and 85c to $1.00 per hour and lay-offs at the whim of politicians. From a Wage and Salary committee to the present Personnel Board. Obstructionism or compassion for my fellow man?

4. Town administration: In 1950 I filed legislation for a town manager form of government. Every step of the way, new proposals have come from the selectmen that have delayed this needed modernization of government, yet final control would still remain with the town meeting.

BOOK REVIEW

By Ann Anderson
Winchester Public Library

ELEPHANT HAVE RIGHT OF WAY
by Betty and Jock Leslie-Melville

In contrast to the many undoubtedly useful but serious volumes being published about Africa, this is a light-hearted glimpse of that continent. In its way it is equally valuable. The authors are authorities in that they have lived and worked many years in Kenya.

Betty Leslie-Melville, who writes in first person all the way through, is an American who visited Africa and fell in love with that country. Eventually she married an Englishman who had been born there, had gone to England to be educated and returned to Kenya as a permanent resident.

They are both Africophiles although they spend part of each year in the United States. Betty says she is never sure which country she loves best. When she is here she misses certain uniquely African things. When she goes back she longs to talk to American women who are more alert and inquisitive than those of any other nation or she wants a Hershey bar with almonds.

Nairobi, the capital of Kenya, is a more sophisticated city than many tourists expect when they arrive. It has neon signs, supermarkets, a Woolworth's and modern hotels with swimming pools and sauna baths. There are authentic French, Italian and Chinese restaurants, and Asian restaurants which feature curries. There are hamburger joints but no place where you can buy African game. It is illegal in Kenya.

There is no segregation in the city and no notice at all is taken of racially mixed marriages. The author calls herself color blind, and having been reared in Baltimore she takes pride in this, perhaps more than she should.

The Leslie-Melvilles live near the Nairobi Game Park and have become quite blase about the wildlife. You must stop if an elephant is in the road and wait for him to move. It is exceedingly dangerous to annoy him by blowing your horn. When you are driving in the bush animals will accept the presence of a four wheeled vehicle which perhaps looks like something of their own kind but they may take violent exception to a man or woman on foot. They know that their dog, Shirley Brown, must be kept inside at night for her own safety. You do not have to worry about snakes in Africa—chances are that you will never see one.

There is a chapter about the Pygimies of Kenya, a primitive race which is becoming less so all the time. They are friendly and intelligent and are in such complete interrelationship with their environment that they are an integral part of the forest.

The Pygmies smoke marijuana and have done so for centuries. The Leslie-Melvilles were asked at one of their lectures if this could be the reason for their small size. This was refuted by pointing out that the Watusi also are pot smokers and their average height is approximately seven feet.

The last section of the book is largely a guide on how to behave when on safari in Africa. It presents valuable hints on etiquette and safety measures. Aside from that it is entertaining and informative for those who have no intention of taking a trip through the African bush.

Undoubtedly many serious and far-reaching political and social events are ignored in this work, but its purpose is to show the lighter side of that Dark Continent.

HOUSEBREAK

The Winchester Police Department was awarded two grants from the Massachusetts Committee on Law Enforcement totaling $39,000. Since October of 1970 study and implementation phases of the project, "Comprehensive Attacks on Burglary," have been progressing within the town. In connection with this heightened focus on burglary, the Department will present "Housebreak," a column suggesting ways in which Winchester residents may assist these efforts against crime, in weeks to come through The Star. Look for it.....follow it.....it's for you.

When you take a trip or vacation do not advertise the event in public. Have it published in the newspaper after you return, if you wish. Thieves have big ears and they read the paper.

Persons interested in forming a "neighborhood watch," a cooperative venture among residents to combat burglaries, may contact the police department for more information.

VOTE MONDAY MAR. 5th

(Political Advertisement) (Political Advertisement) (Political Advertisement)

Let's talk about OUR TOWN and it's assessing practices. . . . .

First of all, an assessor's role should be more than establishing value upon which to build a tax rate. He should be aware of the entire community, be able to work with people encouraging improvement and upgrading of properties, and constantly try to reduce the taxpayer's burden. I'm sure you are aware that there are only a few ways to do this; reduce spending, increase Federal Aid, increase State Aid, and-or receive a greater share from commercial or business interests. We have little direct control over Federal or State aid and it seems that we want to keep our present spending program, therefore, that leaves the last item; increased business participation. How do we do this?

First, properly assess all business property, this will encourage the land to be used for its highest and best use. Proper assessing practices will elimnate differences and bring in more revenue. Secondly, another very important method to increase business revenue and upgrade the area at the same time is through tax incentives.

Under the law, it is the duty of the assessor to locate, list and value all taxable property according to a uniform standard so that each taxpayer will share the cost of government in proportion to the value of his property. What I propose will require State Legislation for approval, but I would recommend, before taking this action, it be approved by Town Meeting. The program is to allow business property owners a tax grace period on capital improvements. The length of time depending, of course, on the size of the improvement. During this period we will be assessing at the unimproved rate. These tax savings would stimulate the owner into action and provide us with upgraded properties. After the grace period, we will receive greater tax revenue. This program would also ease the pressure to rezone residential land.

Mayor Collins used this program to encourage Prudential to build and we all know how this was the beginning of the new Boston. I do not want skyscrapers but I do want a healthy business community.

I hope everyone agrees that something must be done NOW. All we have to do is look at depressed Woburn Center. I don't want that for Winchester, do you? We need to move forward and out of the rut.

I PLEDGE TO WORK FOR YOU AND OUR TOWN — VOTE ON MARCH 5TH.

Host Families For European Teachers Sought

Winchester area families are needed to entertain English-speaking European teachers in their homes for one or two weeks this summer according to the American Host Program in New York.

American Host is a non-governmental program designed to show the American way-of-life to foreign teachers by pairing them with American families. Now in its eleventh year, American Host has opened doors to better understanding for more than 3,000 European teachers who have passed on their new understanding of America to their students.

Being a "host family" is open to anyone who has the desire to increase understanding and friendship between Americans and Europeans. All an American Host requires is hospitality, a private room for a guest, and free time for one or two weeks to introduce the guest to friends, neighbors and perhaps fellow teachers.

American Host arranges all transportation. Host families are asked to meet their guest upon arrival in their community. Teachers and host families have an opportunity to correspond for at least a month before meeting.

Arrangements for participating as a host family can be made by writing to: Tom Murphy, The American Host Program, Hotel Commodore, Suite 2100, New York, N.Y., 10017. Deadline for information: March 15, 1973.

Winchester audience meets members of "The Little Sweep" as they exit from the auditorium after performing here recently.

500 Kids Watch 'Little Sweep'

McCall auditorium was the location for an afternoon of listening recently when more than 500 young Winchester residents heard Adventures In Music's presentation of Benjamin Britten's "The Little Sweep."

Under the direction of Newton Wayland, Rockerfeller artist-in-residents at the New England Conservatory, students from the conservatory and St. Paul's Choir School combined to tell a story in song of a small boy in 19th century England who escaped the clutches of two mean chimney sweeps to return to his family.

Jan Curtis, mezzo-soprano, gave an excellent performance as the cross maid who supervised the activities of six young children in her household. Mr. Wayland's versatality as director, first pianist, master of ceremonies and interpreter for the youthful audience was a delight to behold.

Since the performance of "The Little Sweep" was the first to be given in Winchester by Adventures In Music, it was gratifying to see the response, the enthusiasm and the attentiveness given to the production by children from schools all over the town. It is perhaps indicative of the fact that presentation of good music to school-age children is as meaningful to the children as it is to Mr. Wayland.

Persons who worked co-operatively to support the February concert included enrichment chairmen from each school in Winchester, director of music, Berton Dowgill, school music teachers and chairmen Mrs. John Hamilton and Mrs. Andrew Nichols. Mrs. John Mills handled special arrangements.

Pre-Schoolers To Enroll In Nursery Beginning Today

Beginning today the Winchester Unitarian Society's Cooperative Nursery School will accept registrations for the coming year. Returning children and Unitarian pre-schoolers will be given first preference.

An open house with an opportunity for parents to meet Mrs. Elinor Parker, director and teacher of the morning sessions, and Mrs. Susan Shultz, afternoon sessions teacher, are set for next Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. at the school.

The school was founded six years ago by a group of mothers. It began with 15 children who met twice a week. Now the school has grown to an average 45 children meeting in three different sessions: Tuesday and Thursday; Monday, Wednesday and Friday mornings; or Monday through Thursday afternoons.

A cooperative school, the program is run by mothers of the children who attend with a professional teacher supervising. Mothers assist teachers on an average of about once every six weeks. They are encouraged to bring ideas or past professional skills to entertain or teach the children.

Free play is a part of the school's program. It includes indoor sandbox, water play, blocks, creative art, cooking, painting, puppets and play out-of-doors. Special day trips are planned such as visiting the police and fire stations, post office and nature walks. Special visitors are also on the agenda.

A brochure and application may be obtained at the upcoming open house or by sending a self-addressed, stamped envelope to Mrs. Louise Fackert, 12 Allen rd. Applications for Unitarian and returning children should be sent to Mrs. Fackert by March 16. General public applications should be received between March 16-29. Book Service

Ski Victims, Elderly Benefit

By Ann Landau

Little known but greatly appreciated is the shut-in book service of the Winchester Public Library.

Operated by Mrs. Enid Houlding, the service brings current reading material to Winchester citizens confined to their homes by illness or disability. One need not be bedridden to receive books.

"We have about seven people using the service now but other years the number has gone up to a dozen," says English-born Mrs. Houlding.

Patrons include senior citizens and occasionally victims of ski accidents. Mrs. Houlding makes her rounds every other Monday.

Asked how she chooses the books for this service, Mrs. Houlding said, "I think they like the element of surprise." She is familiar with the reading interests of her regular patrons and says that interests vary from handwork magazines to the Kennedy family to books on dog training.

Large-print books are especially popular with her readers, particularly the light weight ones that are easy to hold. The weekly large-print New York Times is often requested too.

The service began in 1969 when Mrs. Leila-Jane Roberts, head librarian, asked Mrs. Houlding in the book ordering department if she would carry out this plan, in addition to her regular work.

Senior Girl Scout volunteers proved there was a need for this service by providing delivery on an experimental basis in earlier years.

Mrs. Lester H. Armstrong of 11 Yale st. "just loves" the Public Library shut-in book service handled by Mrs. Enid Houlding, right. "My last book was a tome on whaling," says Mrs. Armstrong, who resides with her daughter, Mrs. Ralph M. Manning.

Invisible Dragon To Be Performed

On March 17 it will be curtain time for the younger theatre goers of Winchester. The Community School Association will present the Boston Children's Theatre in their new production of "The Invisible Dragon" at the old Winchester High School Auditorium at 10:30 a.m. and 1:30 p.m.

Tickets for both performances will be on sale at all elementary schools March 7 and 8 and at McCormack's Drug Store.

"The Invisible Dragon" is an award winning play written by Rosemary Musil. It invites audience participation.

Every year the Community School Association sponsors some creative live theatre for the Winchester children. The theatre chairman this year, Mrs. John DeMars will be assisted by the representatives of each elementary school; Mrs. David Pressman, Parkhurst; Mrs. Peter Philliou Ambrose; Mrs. I. E. Parry, Lincoln; Mrs. John Denning. Muraco; Mrs. William Byrne, Mystic; Mrs. Edward Haddad, Noonan; Mrs. Vincent Coates, Vinson-Owen; Mrs. William Strazzulo Washington; and Mrs. George Weiffenbach, Wyman.

Public Welfare Is Topic Tonight

Besecker Jr. of the City Missionary Society will lead the discussion on the topic "1973 Proposed Massachusetts Legislation Related to the Welfare Program." The meeting is open to the public.

This past fall the social action committee held a five week seminar on public welfare.

Immunization Date Extended To Apr. 6

Don't forget to vote Monday, 7 a.m. - 7 p.m.

Mrs. Sacco Speaks On Graphoanalysis

Graphoanalysis was the theme of a recent Winchester Home and Garden Club meeting held at the Crawford Memorial United Methodist Church. The group learned that according to the Greek language, grapho means "to write," and analysis means "to tear apart and examine."

Speaker Mrs. Theresa Sacco, an instructor of handwriting and analysis, is a graduate of the International Graphoanalysis Society with 16 years' experience examining poison pen letters and documents of questionable legality. She has worked with the courts and lawyers and told the group that "graphoanalysis not only helps you to understand yourself, but brings out your negative and positive traits."

She said, "If your writing strokes bear to the left this means the past; a straight up and down stroke refers to the present; and a right-bent stroke concerns the future. She also reminded her listeners to "remember each mood of the moment will influence your writing."

At the close of the meeting Mrs. Sacco analyzed individual handwriting samples submitted by members of the group.

Besides clothing, Topsy Turvy carries sneakers, boots, some stuffed toys "and of course our number one best seller, penny candy," joked Mrs. Dressler.

There is a play area to keep the children entertained while mother shops. A slide, books and coloring books keep the children busy.

Fellow Residents,

In addressing myself to problems that the School Committee faces, I should like to share these additional ideas with you.

Community Involvement - Efforts must continue to expand the cooperation among the School Committee, the school administration, and the Town residents. There are many concerned groups in Town that can provide valuable information to the School Committee in its deliberations, and the Committee should avail itself of these resources. Then, when all available information has been considered, the decision of the Committee must stand.

Educational Programs - The School Committee must recognize that it cannot be and provide all things to all people at all times. Limits on the educational system must be imposed. Before new programs are initiated, existing programs should be critically reviewed, with consideration given to dropping those that are no longer relevant. Both traditional and innovative curricula must be incorporated in the educational system. A new balance in teaching should be struck between the sciences and the humanities to meet the needs of the new cultural orientation of today's world.

Educational Costs - As trite as it may sound, although quality education does cost money, more money does not necessarily produce a better education. As the costs of salaries and supplies increase, it is imperative that improved and innovative administration ensure the 50% of our tax dollar spent for education is managed as efficiently as possible.

Commonwealth-Imposed Programs - As the Commonwealth requires the school department to implement more specialized programs, such as additional opportunities for children with special learning needs, the elementary school lunch program, and the "Max-Ed" program at the high school, it must be recognized that more money will be required to provide these programs. But even more importantly, although the School Committee will strive to offer these programs with minimal administrative and fiscal impact, the meaningful alternative educational opportunities that these programs are supposed to offer to the students can be achieved only through maximum cooperation of the townspeople in making available their resources of talents and ideas and facilities.

I trust that my services to the Town for the next three years as a School Committee member will help continue the development of high quality education in Winchester, and that you, my fellow residents, will find my activities acceptably directed toward this common goal.

Sincerely yours,
Richard L. Russo

Sea, who is said to be the oldest living person now in his 168th year.

Dr. Leaf reports: "Neither I nor any other Westerner that I know of has been granted permission to interview the man (Mislimov). His fragile health, Soviet officials say, prevents him from leaving his home village for interviews elsewhere."

Since we are composed of what we eat and drink, Leaf is particularly interested in dietary habits in the study regions.

The article reports: "In 1968 a nutritional study published by the U.S. National Academy of Sciences made these recommendations for diet among people above age 55: For males, 2,400 calories, including 65 grams of protein; for females, 1,700 calories, with 55 grams of protein (28 grams equal an ounce).

"In the United States, though, nearly everyone consumes more. A U.S. Department of Agriculture study lists average daily intake for Americans of all ages at 3,300 calories, with 100 grams of protein, 157 grams of fat and 30 grams of carbohydrate."

By contrast Dr. Leaf found the diets of the three areas studied strikingly similar to each and substantially lower than the U. S. recommendations. In a survey of 55 adult males in Hunza a Pakistani nutritionist found an average caloric intake of 1,923, with 50 grams of protein, 36 grams of fat, and 354 grams of carbohydrate.

Further, meat and dairy products constitute only 1½ percent of the total. The absence of pasture land makes animal husbandry nearly impossible, and the few livestock are usually killed for food during festival season in winter.

Dr. Leaf discovered that a strikingly low caloric consumption was also the case in Ecuador; the average daily diet providing 1,200 calories. Protein and fat again were largely of vegetable origin. "Needless to say, one sees no obesity among the elderly in Vilcabamba or Hunza; neither were there signs of undernutrition," Leaf says.

The eating habits in the Caucasus were somewhat different. Here old people consume 1,700 to 1,900 calories daily, considerably more than do most people of such advanced age. Sixty percent eat a mixed diet of milk, vegetables, meats and fruits. Seventy percent of the calories were of vegetable origin and the remainder from meat and dairy products. Seventy to 90 percent grams of protein were included in the diets. Milk was a main source of protein; sour milk and cheese widely used at all meals in all seasons.

The Georgians eat bread and an unflavored cornmeal mush patty. Breakfast generally consists of cheese, bread, tea and sometimes honey. The usual beverage is sour milk with cold water added. Every household has its vineyard and makes its own wine, which is quite dry and drunk fresh. The old people consume two to three glasses daily with their meals.

Dr. Leaf says, "I was often told by the old people that things are much better now." An Armenian told him: "In Turkey and when we first came here (Abkhazia) we had only beans and other vegetables to eat, but now we have meat and wine every day."

Dr. Leaf says, "It is well documented in animal experiments that a low-caloric diet during early life will extend the total lifespan. Thus dietary habits of early life may be as pertinent to long life as exercising moderation in middle and old age."

Slim or otherwise, he found that old people of all the three cultures share a great deal of physical activity. "The traditional farming and household practices demand heavy work, and male and female are all involved from early childhood to terminal days. Simply transversing the hills on foot during the day's activities sustains a high degree of cardiovascular fitness as well as general muscular tone, he says in the article.

In the Caucasus he asked old people to what age they thought youth extends. A typical response from a man aged 117 said "Youth normally extends up to the age of 80. I was still young then," he said.

Another, aged 110, was embarrassed at the question since Dr. Leaf was accompanied by a woman doctor from the regional health center. He thought "youth" meant engaging in sexual activity and admitted that he had considered himself a youth until "a dozen years ago."

The importance of a happy marriage was emphasized by another 100-year old man who had married his seventh wife only three years before. "My first six wives were all wonderful women," he reported, "but this present wife is an angry woman, and I have aged at least 10 years since marrying her. If a man has a good and kind wife, he can easily live 100 years," the man said.

Dr. Leaf found that more than 70 percent of the people interviewed continue to be very active and still working. They die quickly once they lose useful roles in the community, he found.

Many of the centenarians emphasized the importance of being independent and free to do the things they enjoyed and wanted to do, and of maintaining a placid state of mind free from worry or emotional strain, Dr. Leaf reports.

In conclusion Dr. Leaf theorizes that maybe the reason these people live to be so old is because they are "still much too fit to die."

He, suggests that sedentary urbanites might do well to sustain a regimen of running, swimming or cycling. The doctor, aged 52, took up jogging when he returned to Winchester.

Centenarians in the Hunza are usually quite slim and continue working in their old age. "I had the definite impression of an unusual number of very vigorous old folk clambering over the steep slopes that make up this mountainous land. It was the fitness of many of the elderly rather than their extreme ages that impressed me," Dr. Leaf observed.

Carrying a pail of newly harvested potatoes home for lunch up an Abkhazian hill that exhausted Dr. Leaf is Gabriel Chapnian, 117 years of age. The lifelong farmer works half a day in the fields. His prescription for longevity: "Active physical work and a moderate interest in the ladies."

St. Mary's Loses To Charlestown In Finals Game

St. Mary's, Charlestown, scored three first period goals enroute to a 5-1 win over defending champion St. Mary's of Winchester in Sunday's CYO League championship game.

It was the first league championship for the Charlestown team who finished the year with a perfect 13-0-0 record. Winchester finished 11-1-1.

Charlestown scored first at 2:27 of the opening period only to have Richard Jacobs come back 20 seconds later to tie the game for Winchester.

From then on it was all Charlestown. The Townies, forechecking aggressively, scored two more goals in the first period and added one in the second and another in the third, all from close range.

It was small consolation but three St. Mary's players and coach Jack Falla were named to participate in the league's first all star game to be held this Sunday at noon at Boston College.

Defenseman Mark Milley and forwards Richard Jacobs and Gerard Kivney will skate for the American Division all stars. It is expected that league officials will also name goaltender Peter Scopa to the 20-man all star roster.

Area Youth Soccer Begins Fifth Year

The Boston Area Youth Soccer League will begin its 5th year this spring. In the last four years the league grew from nine towns with nine teams, to 30 towns with 68 teams.

New entries from this area are expected to be Concord, Burlington, Woburn and Lynn.

Needham and Wellesley are increasing their entries to 6 teams each, and Lexington is increasing to 4 teams.

Winchester will field three teams: "A" team, boys must not be 17 before June 30, "B" team, boys must not be 15 before June 30, and "C" team, boys must not be 13 before June 30.

Tryouts will be held in March on a date to be announced.

WHS Swim Team Win Streak Ends

The WHS swim team, swimming towards a possible league title, was abruptly halted in a four meet winning streak by an aroused Melrose team. Following their discouraging loss to Melrose the Sachems brought a flu-ridden team to Medford High School to swim against their biggest rivals. Hard luck was with Winchester again as the Mustangs won the close encounter on account of the missing WHS swimmers. The Sachems did rebound, however, dropping a high-flying Malden team its third loss of the season.

The Melrose meet went down to the last relay to determine the outcome. Both coaches, Vin Palumbo and Bob Grant of Melrose, saved their best swimmers for that final relay hoping to pull out the victory. Melrose won that close and decisive event and took the meet 53-42.

Scoring for Winchester:

Phil Gouzole (CC)	3
Vincent Palumbo (CC)	5
Steve Armstrong	10
Brian Conley	4
Steve Blasi	6
Jay Williams	3
Roy Palumbo	5
Peter Cressi	3
Mark Laughlin	2
Curt Westlake	1
Total	42

With the loss of Steve Armstrong, the key factor in Winchester's defeat by Medford, Coach Palumbo had to juggle his swimmers in hopes of winning the meet. His planning paid off to make the meet as close as possible without sophomore Armstrong.

Scoring for Winchester:

Steve Blasi	2
Jay Williams	5
Roy Palumbo	10
Brian Conley	2
Chip Vickroy	1
Total	38

Even Dick Lennon, the coach of the Mustangs, agreed that with young Armstrong healthy the Sachems could have reversed the 57-38 defeat.

After these two discouraging losses and with Armstrong still out Winchester managed to start its winning ways again by defeating Malden by a very close score of 48-46. As the score suggests, this meet, held at Winchester's home pool (the Arlington Boys' Club), was filled with excitement and high emotion. The Sachems proved to be the better team by pulling out the victory under the great pressure.

Scoring for Winchester:

Phil Gouzole (CC)	4
Curt Westlake	1
Brian Conley	4
Steve Blasi	10
Jay Williams	3
Mark Laughlin	5
Roy Palumbo	10
Chip Vickroy	1
Total	48

The Sachem's chances of winning the league title are now very dim, but their hopes of retaining the league meet championship are still high.

CEMETERY

VOTERS OF WINCHESTER:
I was recently named to fill the unexpired term of the late Mr. Lowell Smith. To replace this dedicated public servant was a great honor for me and I now seek your support on March 5th for the five year term of cemetery commission.
Since taking office, my desire to serve has increased because of the awareness that the commission is severely deficient in the knowledge of what has been and could be done in the years ahead. This gap in expertise I believe I can fill because of my 10 years' experience in the operation of cemeteries throughout the state.
I need your help and seek your consideration on March 5th.

Sincerely,
John W. Lane III

Sachem Rivals Play Tourneys

By John F. Parrell

Four Middlesex League basketball teams recently qualified to play in the northern division of the state basketball tournament. Stoneham is defending champion in Division 2, while Lexington, Wakefield and Watertown made the grade in Division 1.

Of the four contenders, Stoneham appears to have the best chance of going all the way to the title. The veteran Spartans are led by talented Joe Donahue, capable Brian O'Donnell and giant Phil McLaughlin. They have been pressed in only three games, two one pointers by the Wakefiled Warriors, and the two pointer by Winchester.

Lexington, with sharpshooting Neil Singelais and veteran Joe Cormier of last year's state title winning team, might do well. However, Coach Stan Boynton's quintet seems to lack the spirit that so characterized their play over the past four years, and of course Ronnie Lee and Wayne Morrison have moved on into college ranks. They can be dangerous on tournament experience, but only if they find the missing spark.

Wakefield has played well this season and may prove a factor, but they do not figure to pass the quarter final round. Watertown's Raiders, ably coached by John Myers, just made the cut off mark and are definitely classified as outsiders. However, they did well two years ago when the current players were sophomores, and might well be a dark horse.

The hockey action finds Coach Henry Hughes directing his power laden Red Raiders against the best in the eastern part of the state in the Division 1 hockey tournament. Melrose is one of the top favorites and many figure the team as a finalist, if not the eventual winners. It is a traditional Raider team with fast skaters, good combination play and sound defense.

The defense players, Tom Burke and Andy Benson, are among the hardest slap shot artists in schoolboy circles. Because of the strong defense, their goalie, Lloyd, is almost untested under fire. This could prove fatal if they should face a high scoring team such as Malden Catholic.

Second place Wakefield is also in the title play. But by the luck of the draw they are paired with Malden Catholic, the highest scoring sextet in schoolboy hockey. The Warriors have been steady, if not spectacular, in the Middlesex League, though they have their work cut out for them in their first game.

By being at the Boston Arena on Saturday at noon, Winchester hockey buffs will have a chance to see both Wakefield and Melrose in action. As mentioned above the Warriors will face off against the Lancers, while Melrose will be meeting Medford at 2:30. In this way the fans will be able to see both favorites in action, and can draw their own comparisons on the eventual outcome of the tourney.

Four years ago this column contained the following:

"History has proven that if given a chance to select eight teams before the puck has been dropped to start the season, the quarter-final groupings will include at least three of the following: Melrose, Arlington, Needham, Walpole, Norwood, Malden Catholic, Marblehead and Auburn." Unless there are tremendous upsets, it looks as though history will once again repeat itself. (Auburn now is classified in the Central division, but will probably pop up in the statewide tournament.)

Charles Richardson and Stephan Chiotellis, 113½
Mr. and Mrs. James Denton, 111

Board 10 from Section B, East-West vulnerable and East the dealer, is a nip-and-tucker both in bidding and play.

Bidding:

North	East	South	West
Pass	Pass	1H	1S
	3S	All Pass

North leads the heart Queen, which holds, and the second heart is taken by South who, after studying his hand and the dummy (East), hopefully sees five good tricks to set the hand—the two hearts already taken, the club Ace, a diamond, and the spade Queen, depending on the distribution and whether West can reach the dummy for the trump finesse.

What does South lead after taking the two heart tricks?

It's a process of elimination. A heart might give West a ruff and a sluff, the spade will probably give him a free finesse, and the club may put him in dummy. South, therefore, leads the diamond King.

West is now in trouble with no way to reach the dummy for the spade finesse. Tantalizing! His best bet is to take the King of diamonds with his Ace and lead the club Queen, hoping South will duck—the correct play if West has two clubs.

If South guesses correctly and takes the Ace of Clubs, his Queen of diamonds and a diamond ruff by North set the contract. Again, any other lead by South gives declarer a trick.

Incidentally, North-South can make 3H with careful play, so 3S down one is a good board for East-West, unless doubled.

However you would choose to bid and play these cards, you'd have company. The 11 scores ranged through one to four spades, and two to four hearts, some doubled, some making, some going down.

Sachem Five: 10-10 Record

By John F. Parrell

With 80 percent of their schedule completed, Coach Vandy French's Winchester hoopsters had a 10-6 record. They still had a chance to "make the Tech," provided that they could win three out of their four remaining Middlesex League games. But, to steal a quote from the literary world, "Of all the words of tongue or pen, the saddest are, it might have been."

They did not succeed, losing all four, three of them in succession by two-point margins. Add to this the three-point loss to Wakefield, and from the cold, plain statistics, it becomes evident that a mere nine or ten points scored in the right places would have put them into the Tech.

This was a rebuilding year and although the Sachems gave their best, they could not cope with the lack of experience so essential for tournament play. With this thought in view, Coach French has entered the quintet in the Bay State tourney. The added pressure of this type of competition should prepare the returnees for next year's team for just the close competitive situations they faced this season and which shattered their dreams.

The Stoneham Spartans, undefeated league champions, found the Sachems a hard nut to crack as they edged them by two points a couple of weeks ago. The final week of the campaign found Reading and Woburn coming to the new Winchester gymnasium. Having beaten both away from home, the Sachems figured to do even better on their own court. But, in each case, the visitors left the floor, elated by a two-point victory. It was a disappointing way to wind up the season. But the Winchester forces gave their best, and who can ask for anything more?

After showing such a superb effort, even though they lost to Stoneham, the Sachems played a mediocre game against the Rockets. The visitors grabbed a 17-11 first period lead and constantly built it higher until with less than five minutes left, it was Reading 67, Winchester 50. Frequent turnovers, poor shooting and slipshod defense, all contributed to Winchester's woes.

Their garrison finish was something else again, as they stifled every Rocket offensive drive and piled up hoop after hoop without retaliation. The home crowd, which had suffered through the entire game, came alive and roared encouragement. It was 67-65, with only two seconds left to play, and a Reading player was called for a two-shot foul.

Everyone in the gymnasium held his breath as the possible deadlocking shots were taken. Both were missed, however, and it was defeat for the home team by two points for the second game in a row.

Then came the invasion of arch rival Woburn Tanners, and once again two points spelled the margin of defeat, now for the third consecutive time. It was a tremendous win for the Tanners, whose sports writer stated, "It made the whole season worthwhile." Woburn went through the entire first half of the season without a single victory. They took four games in the second half, but the really big one for them was the 62-60 win over Winchester.

The first meeting of the two teams had been a rather poorly played game in which Winchester led by 12 points after a half period had been played. The Sachems had to battle for their lives, but managed to salvage the win. This time there was a difference. John Cannon, a great competitor in football and basketball, was able to play. Besides tossing in 15 big points, and snagging 13 rebounds, he provided the driving spirit which the Tanners have been missing. His presence in last year's Thanksgiving game would probably have made the game much closer. So it was only poetic justice that he was able to close out his hoop career on a winning note.

The first quarter was a cautious one with neither quintet doing a great deal of scoring. The Tanners showed in front by 10-6. The Sachems rallied to even matters up with a 20-point second session, and at half time it was 26 all.

Winchester continued to edge ahead in the third quarter as they made effective use of the press, and by the end of the period it was 46-41, with the Sachems showing the way. The Tanners' defense suddenly tightened, and with three minutes of action left it was the Sachems still in the van by 58-54.

Cannon came through with a hoop, and Dick Skeffington brought the score even with a pair of foul conversions. Paul Connolly came off the bench and popped one to give the visitors the lead. Then Skeffington showed some superb dribbling to keep the ball out of Sachem hands. With only 45 seconds left he hit a hoop for a 62-58 lead.

Tim Porter retaliated to bring Winchester within one basket, but Woburn held onto the ball. The buzzer sounded and the jubilant Tanners raced off the floor. However, there was still one second left to play, and the referees called the teams back onto the court. The protest by Coach French was based on the fact that the last take in by the Tanners had hit the back board and never had been controlled. Mike Heffernan now tried to heave McGrath tipped the ball, and the last remaining second ticked off for a 62-60 Tanner win.

Mites Top Reading

The Winchester Youth Hockey Mites defeated Reading 7 to 0 with Tommy "Hat Trick" Sullivan leading the way.

Early in the first period Co-Capt. Chris Parker took a pass from Tom Sullivan in the right slot and fired from about ten feet out in front. Shortly thereafter Tom Sullivan flashed right down the alley, picked up a Mike McCarthy feed and slammed it home. Co-Capt. Tony Celli completed the first period scoring when he combined with Chris Parker and Tom Sullivan—he caught the upper corner on a decked goalie!

Tommy Sullivan scored the next two, the first in the second period from the left lane after being set up by Scotty Stillman and the second in the third period from out in front of passes from Eric Donaghey and Bobby DiVincenzo. Chris Parker got number six when he swung the net with feeds from Scotty Stillman and Eric Paskerian. Mike Gorrasi completed the scoring when he came out of traffic at center ice with a Jimmy Coppins' assist and flashed in to pop a 20 footer in the upper corner on the short side.

Camp Wyanoke

The first official event of Camp Wyanoke's 65th season was a reunion recently at the Sheraton Lexington Ballroom.

Campers and parents from Winchester who attended were Jay Bourne and his father and mother, John and Robert Boyle and their mother, Bill Britton and his mother, Jim and Jay Davies and their father, Joe Galante and his father and mother, Jim Graves, Louis Hamel, Steve Johnson and his father, Michael McCormack and his father, Charlie Mahoney and his mother, Peter Ruggles and his father and mother, Tom and John Shirley and their father, Jonathan and Peter Spinney and their father, Chris Stanton and his father and mother, Ron Torlone, and Phillipe and Robert Baumann and their father.

Winchester staff members who were present included Brad and Edna Bentley, Win Bourne, Steve Meahl, Tom and Judy Niblock and Ken Torlone.

Well over 100 people attended the reunion. There were six states and about 20 cities and towns represented.

Louis Hamel judged the sport coat contest which was won by Tom Shirley. Judges Billy Britton and Charlie Mahoney declared Mrs. Stanton to be the winner of the hairdo contest.

The undisputed winner of the wildest tie contest was Peter Ruggles. The contest to guess the aggregate age of the ladies present was cancelled because of lack of cooperation.

Brad and Edna Bentley of Winchester, directors of Wyanoke, announced some of the plans for the coming summer. Opening day is June 28.

★ Schools

vote calling for a number of Wyman pupils to go to Lynch while the remaining students would go to McCall. They voted, effective September of this year that students attending Wyman School will go to McCall.

Further, on redistricting kindergarten through six grade pupils, including those at Lincoln scheduled to attend McCall this fall and a few others from Noonan and Mystic schools, Supt. of Schools William MacDonald announced names of a committee of parents, administrators, and school committee representatives including the chairman, who will study the McCall K-6 situation. They have t\ ) meetings scheduled and may possibly c\ iduct a survey for greater input by parents.

Mystic and Lincoln school parents will have an opportunity to examine the McCall facility during one of two tours scheduled March 5 and April 25. Though townspeople may join either of the two planned tours, the one on March 5 will be for Mystic parents. The tour on April 25 will be for Lincoln parents. Parents will assemble in the auditorium of the Mystic school at 8 p.m.

Forty-three Winchester educators were received into tenure by the school committee. They are:

Principals and assistant principals - Andrew A. Allan, Parkhurst; Robert G. Forest, Ambrose; Vincent E. Larocco, and Thomas P. Budrewicz, Senior High.

Coordinators - Joseph S. Aversa, industrial arts, Senior High and Junior Highs; Mrs. Elizabeth R. Sheeran, librarian, system-wide.

Counselors - Joan M. Lube, elementary; Beatrice Weinerman, elementary.

Specialists - Mrs. Naomi S. Johnson, art; M. Elizabeth Ross, learning disabilities.

High school teachers - Lee A. Dresser, English; Alfred D. Duhamel, foreign languages; Mrs. Margaret A. Eldridge, science; Paul T. Mulloy, social studies; John D. Walker art.

Lynch Junior High - Francesco Castellano, foreign languages; Jeanne B. Cullen, science; Bonnie J. Humphrey, foreign languages; Linda M. Kleppinger, music; Mrs. Barbara B. O'Connell, special class; and Linda A. Sjolander, English.

McCall Junior High - Theodore A. Benton, English; Alan D. Methelis, social studies; Barbara L. Nixon, English; George M. Oliviero, mathematics; Duncan W. Smith, foreign languages; Mrs. Susan F. Smith, science; and Mrs. Elizabeth P. Holmes, English.

Ambrose School - Sheila A. Clark, special class; Thomas L. Geraty, special class; and Mrs. Elizabeth G. Reynolds, grades 4, 5, and 6.

Lincoln school - Mrs. Maureen H. Dwan, grade 3.

Muraco school - Mrs. Joanne P. Helweg, grade 4, Mrs. Shirley T. Mulvaney, grade 4; Mrs. Maureen A. Quine, grade 5.

Parkhurst school - Mrs. Katherine R. Rielly, grade 4; Mrs. Kathleen S. Robidoux, grade 1.

Vinson-Owen school - Mrs. Eileen C. Quigley, primary; Frank Zammarchi Jr., primary; Catherine A. Sheridan, primary.

Washington school - Mrs. A. Elizabeth Heiserman, special class.

There were none from the Mystic or Wyman schools.

In other business, Robert Fitzgerald, principal of Lynch Junior High, presented a scheduling proposal that had been worked out by himself and Joseph Forte, principal at McCall.

Following receipt of a petition from a group of parents requesting that Italian language courses be offered at the high school level, the committee voted affirmatively, and such courses will begin next September.

The committee voted to eliminate the position of team secretary at the Parkhurst school and in place to establish the position clerical aide. This position is now to be filled.

School committee member Stephen Parkhurst paid tribute to Lane McGovern, completing his term of office on the school committee. Parkhurst pointed to the tremendous assistance McGovern has brought to the school committee due to his legal background, particularly on teacher negotiations. McGovern was recipient of a standing ovation by the gathering.

In apparent spontaneous manner, several parents extended verbal thanks to the School Committee for their cooperation in working with parents and listening to their concerns during recent weeks.

Firemen Help Grinder Victim

The Winchester Fire Department Saturday morning participated in emergency treatment at Winchester Hospital of a youth who caught his arm in a meat grinder. His arm was later amputated below the elbow.

Richard Field, employed at a Stoneham market, caught his hand in the meat grinder and was taken to the hospital, where Winchester firefighters used a cutting torch to remove the meat tray from the grinder.

The youth was transferred to Massachusetts General Hospital, where two Boston rescue units waited to assist. In 30 minutes they removed the grinder.

In another Fire Department matter, investigation has shown that the fire last week on Wildwood street which sent six persons to the hospital for smoke inhalation was due to a malfunction of a gas heater.

Chief I. Francis Amico said the residents of 40 Wildwood st., home of Calvin H. Bowker, were released after treatment. He said fire was caused when a gas heater located in the ceiling between the cellar and kitchen (he described it as a "grille") touched off the blaze.

Real Estate Today

By Realtor A.R. DeVelis

WHAT IS A DEED?

In simplest terms, a deed is a written document that conveys title (evidence of ownership) to real estate from one person to another. You don't acquire title until you receive and accept the deed. The sales contract you get when you buy a house is a pact to convey title sometime in the future. The actual transfer is done by a deed.

Every deed must have a grantor (seller). He must be of legal age, usually 21, mentally competent, and legal owner of the property. If he does not fulfill all three requirements - the deed is worthless.

The person who receives and accepts the title is known as the grantee (buyer). If husband and wife are to be co-owners, the property will be conveyed to "John Doe and Mary Doe, his wife." Proper wording will insure that if either spouse dies, the survivor will become the sole owner.

If you have any questions on this subject or on any other aspect of Real Estate, please feel free to call or drop in at JAMES T. TREFREY, INC., REALTORS, 27 Waterfield Road, Winchester - Tel. 729-6100.

Idea Exchange By Resource Panel, Educators Tonight

More than 100 members of the community who serve on the Winchester Resource Panel will hold a seminar tonight at the Winchester High School with members of the Winchester school administration and staff.

The purpose of the seminar is to exchange ideas and viewpoints of the curriculum thrust within the schools, and that of each discipline in the greater community. Members of the Enrichment Committee will be on hand to record the discussions and ideas that are generated during the seminar.

An exhibit of the works of several of the resource panelists will be on display in the social studies department during the seminar. Those contributing are James J. Dobbins, Robert Forget, Norine Friedman, Berry Reece, Susan Frotsos, Charles Lynch and Eva Medzorian.

Since its inception last spring, the enrichment committee and the Winchester resource panel have brought many exciting cultural and academic opportunities to children.

William MacDonald, superintendent of schools, says, "The enrichment committee has my enthusiastic support. From the moment the idea of the committee was mentioned, one could almost tell it was going to move in the right direction. The great thing about it is that it encourages the awareness of children by bringing to them meaningful programs and injecting into our system an expansion of the basic curriculum they experience every day. I hope that the enthusiasm of the enrichment committee will be contagious and that they will find support from the administration, staff and community."

Have pull-up chairs that can be turned around and pulled up to where they are really comfortable .... Don't put a tall lamp on a table between two chairs so that two people cannot see each other .... Bells Will Toll Tomorrow For 'World Day Of Prayer'

Tomorrow at 11 a.m. and at 12:45 the bells of all of Winchester's churches will ring out proclaiming World Day of Prayer.

Women from 168 countries will offer prayers in 75 languages and approximately 1,000 dialects. The local service will be at the First Baptist Church at 1 p.m. World Day of Prayer in Winchester will be sponsored by the Church Women United. All women are invited to share in this service.

Dr. Doris Hunter, local author and professor of humanities at Boston University, will speak on the world theme "Alert in Our Time," a theme and program created by women of New Zealand.

Participating as readers will be: Mrs. Clarence Feldmann of First Church of Christ, Scientist; Mrs. Ralph Jope of the Church of the Epiphany; Mrs. Robert Fulton of the Crawford Memorial United Methodist Church; Mrs. Ralph Swanson of the First Baptist Church; Mrs. Robert Hudson of the First Congregational Church; Mrs. Ralph Meigs of Second Congregational Church; Mrs. Santo Cannava of St. Eulalia's Church; Mrs. Charles Rooney of St. Mary's Church; and Mrs. Lewis L. Scott Eaton To Lecture On Meditation

An introductory lecture on transcendental meditation by Scott Eaton will be given next Wednesday evening at the library at 7:30. it is open to the community at no cost.

Scott Eaton, son of Sarah and late Charles Eaton, was graduated from Winchester High in 1967 and from Colby College in 1971. While at college, he became interested in transcendental meditation. After graduation, he studied with Maharishi Mahesh Yogi for over seven months and has been teaching transcendental meditation in the Lowell-Chelmsford area for over a year.

Eaton said that transcendental meditation is not a religion nor does it involve any of the connotations people normally associate with the term "meditation." Rather, it is an effortless technique for expansion of conscious awareness while providing deep and profound rest to the body.

Scott Eaton

In May 1972 a resolution was passed in the House of Representatives of Illinois endorsing Transcendental Meditation and encouraging the implementation of a credited course in all school systems.

Extensive scientific research has shown that the physiological effects of Transcendental Meditation indicate a fourth natural state of consciousness. The nervous system gains a state of rest deeper than the deepest sleep, yet the mind is fully alert and awake.

Eaton said that the results of regular meditation, for a few minutes twice a day, profoundly affect all areas of life in a positive way. Some of these effects are the dissolution of accumulated tension and fatigue, more energetic, dynamic, and efficient activity during the day, greater clarity of mind, increased learning capacity and abilities of comprehension, and greater inner stability.

Science Church Holds Services

The following quoted verses will be heard next Sunday at the Christian Science Church. All are invited.

The gift Christ Jesus gave to his disciples many today would love to have. An understanding and acceptance of a revealing statement by Mary Baker Eddy would show that it is possible for us to have it.

She says in "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" In Latin the word rendered disciple signifies student; and the word indicates that the power of healing was not a supernatural gift to those learners, but the result of their cultivated spiritual understanding of the divine Science, which their Master demonstrated by healing the sick and sinning."

In Luke 9 we read of the gift: "Then he called his 12 disciples together, and gave them power and authority over all devils, and to cure diseases."

Sullivan Named Young Engineer Of The Year

Winchester Selectman John J. Sullivan, an engineer with the firm of Chas. T. Main, Inc., has been named Young Engineer of the Year by the Boston Metropolitan Chapter of the Massachusetts Society of Professional Engineers.

The citation was presented to Sullivan at the Engineers' Week luncheon, held at the Hotel Sheraton-Boston, last week with more than 600 persons attending.

The award is presented to a candidate chosen on the basis of technical skill, service to his profession, activities in technical and professional societies and service to the community.

Sullivan joined Chas. T. Main Inc. in 1969 and is currently serving as project manager on thermal power projects representing a total construction value of over $50 million. In addition, he coordinates projects in environmental quality, cost control and scheduling for the thermal power division and has represented Main in the Middle East, the Caribbean, and South America on matters relating to business and contractual arrangements.

In 1968 his election as selectman in Winchester made him the youngest selectman ever elected in the town, at the age of 29. In 1971 he was reelected and named chairman of the board.

Sullivan has served as the neighborhood director of the local United Fund Drive and has worked for several years with the Winchester Scholarship Foundation.

He holds a bachelor's degree in chemical engineering from Villanova University and has done graduate work at the Oak Ridge School of Reactor Technology.

Husbands May Be With Wives During Labor, Birth

Winchester Hospital recently initiated a program of family-centered maternity care, according to an announcement by Reese E. James, hospital administrator.

Under the new program the husband will be allowed to be present with his wife during labor and delivery, subject to the physician's approval. The new babies will be allowed to room in with their mothers, if the mothers so desire.

"The trend toward a more personal involvement of the husband in all aspects of the birth of the baby and post-natal care adds a new dimension to the mother-father-child relationship," James states. "In recent years, pilot programs of this nature have been conducted with marked success in certain hospitals throughout the country, and we are very pleased to add this one, so important to the American family and to the hospital's community health care programs.

"Preparation of the husband for his new role as an active participant in the birth of his child is currently made through the expectant parent classes which have been conducted by Winchester Hospital in recent years. The classes provide both him and his wife with eight weeks' instruction in all aspects of prenatal and post-natal care. The increasing attendance at these classes of husbands and wives clearly indicates a growing interest in a more personal involvement by the husband."

Because the new babies will be spending significantly more time with their mothers under the rooming-in provision, the hours for visiting maternity patients will be modified, effective immediately, to avoid the possibility of infection.

Husbands may visit wives between 7:30 and 8 a.m. and from 10 a.m. to 9:30 p.m. General visiting hours, restricted to two visitors at a time, will be modified to 3 to 4 p.m.and 7 to 8 p.m. daily, during which time the babies will be shown in the nursery.

Dogs Around Town

Dog Officer Dominic Molea reports he is still finding many unlicensed dogs around town.

Owners are reminded that they are liable for a fine as well as running the chance of their dog's getting lost. He recommends dog owners get licenses right away. If the dog is female, the owner should get her spayed and then purchase a license. Spayed dogs' licenses are less expensive. Also, he reminds, a female dog in heat can create a neighborhood nuisance.

Owners of mixed-breed female dogs and cats may apply for help for the veterinarian's fee. A non-profit N.Y. charity will help, if you cannot afford the regular price of spaying. If you have lost your dog, don't hesitate to call Mr. Molea at 729-5530.

Don't forget to vote Monday, 7 a.m. - 7 p.m.

Magic Carpets

Everyone knows that the first magic carpets were really Oriental rugs...right? All Ali Baba's grand-daddy had to do was jump on, whisper a few of those magic words and zingo....he was into third gear in no time!

But I bet you didn't know that today's "magic carpets" are Oriental rugs, too! Of course, you can't actually go for a ride on one, but put one in your living room and see how far above the ordinary it can take that room with the magic it works with such perfectly woven designs and vibrant colors! An Oriental rug is truly a work of art to be treasured. And the versatility of today's Orientals seems like magic too, because there is no furniture style or room decor that wouldn't look even better with an Oriental rug from Koko.

Come to our showroom today and let us show you our "magic" carpets. We have had many years' experience buying and selling these rugs and we are always ready to answer your questions.

And....the only "magic words" you have to remember are...."Our Reputation is your Guarantee."

Youths In

Chapman, Smith Win Seats; 18-Year Commissioner Ousted

Finance Committee Chairman Lawrence T. Smith moves up to the Board of Selectmen as a result of his wide margin of victory in this week's election that saw William B. Chapman Jr. win a second term on the board.

Smith led the selectmen's race by 641 votes. Chapman led his nearest rival, contractor Eugene B. Rotondi, by 83 votes. The other two candidates in that race were Mark A. Lombardi, placing 146 votes behind Chapman, and Emidio DiLoreto, trailing 1,135 votes behind Chapman. There were two seats to be filled.

Ralph W. Hatch, a member of the Cemetery Commission for 18 years, was defeated by 28-year-old John W. Lane 3rd in his first try for public office.

The Cemetery Commission contest for a 5-year seat was considered an upset and was one of considerable bitterness in the campaign. Lane was recently appointed to fill a vacancy on the commission after a member died.

The incumbent commissioners, including Hatch, backed the appointment of Bradford Johnson. The Board of Selectmen, which jointly fills such vacancies with the Cemetery Commissioners, backed Lane.

The result was that Lane won and the other commissioners charged the selectmen with rigging the appointment. Winchester voters apparently found little substance in the commissioners' accusation of conflict of interest against Lane, who is a funeral director.

Bradford Johnson, running against J. Frank Holland for a 1-year seat on the Cemetery Commission, went on to defeat his rival by 326 votes.

Town Moderator Raymond J. Kenney Jr. received 3,020 votes in Monday's election when 4,342 Winchester voters turned out in perfect weather to vote for a large number of town offices.

Town Clerk Elsie M. Nelson's figures showed a 33 percent turnout, more than last year's 29 percent but lower than the previous year's 39 percent.

In the assessors' races, appointed "incumbent" Sumner M. Beal led the field for the one three-year vacancy. Werner A. Carlson had a good showing in his first try for office.

In the assessors' one-year vacancy race, George Louis Anderson had an impressive victory over two other contenders, piling up nearly a 500-vote lead over the next candidate, Kenneth F. D'Arcy.

Incumbent School Committeeman Parkhurst topped that vote-for-two race. There was only one other candidates, Richard L. Pharo, who placed 842 votes behind Parkhurst. Two other persons who took out nomination papers dropped out of the race after the filing deadline had passed.

Joseph F. Geary Jr., unopposed in his bid for the single vacancy (five years) on the Planning Board, received 2,990 votes.

William T. Ryerson, unsuccessful candidate last year for selectman, succeeded this year in winning the three-year vacancy on the Park Commission. He beat out Philip E. Richardson by 423 votes.

Top vote getter in the election was John L. Doherty, an incumbent running for reelection to a five-year seat on the Winchester Housing Authority. He had 3,091 votes.

Also topping 3,000 votes was Ernest A. Phillips Jr.--with 3,008--incumbent running for a 3-year vacancy on the Water and Sewer Board.

In the contest for membership on the Northeast Metropolitan Regional Vocational School District, Gerard P. Donahoe, a newcomer in Winchester politics, defeated veteran political aspirant Arthur Hewis Jr. by 274 votes, interpreted by many observers as an anti-Hewis vote.

In the public library contests, incumbent James W. Blackham Jr. and appointed "incumbent" Dudley D. B. Samoiloff topped the four-man race for two 3-year seats.

In the one 1-year vacancy race, Austin Broadhurst defeated Alice D. Butare by 630 votes.

All figures are still unofficial, according to Town Clark Nelson.

Write-Ins Create A Few TM Contests

A number of write-in contests developed in the races for town meeting in this week's town election. None of the write-in candidates posed a threat to incumbents seeking reelection or to those whose name appeared printed on the machine sheets.

In Prec. 5, there appeared to be two different lies, one for a 2-year seat, and the other for one of the two previously uncontested 3-year seats. Another write-in candidate appeared to have won a 3-year seat in Prec. 5.

The following is a precinct breakdown of apparent successful candidates and their total votes. Town Clerk Elsie M. Nelson said the figures, particularly those for write-in candidates, may change as her office continues to check figures.

PREC. 1 -11 3-year seats: Robert C. Bryant, 441; Frank A. Dattilo, 530; Arthur J. Hewis Jr., 513; William G. Maggio, 514; Robert P. Watson, 472; Anthony J. Celli, 482; Mark Domaszersicz, 389; Nancy B. Hemmerick, 421; Richard C. Parker, 464; write-in candidates Margaret McCarthy, 49, and Edward Barker, 13.

One 2-year seat: Howard E. Chase Jr., 554;

Two 1-year seats: Gerald P. Ferro, 530; Mary Meader, 453.

Prec. 2 - 11 3-year seats: Thomas G. Callahan, 450; Robert C. Crockett, 414; Norman E. Doucette, 507; William W. Jeffrey, 388; Charles L. Morgan, 412; Harris S. Richardson Jr., 475; Esther B. Seferian, 434; Constantine Alexander, 365; John F. Corcoran, 396; Mary Foss McQuillan, 374; John A. Twomey, 409.

Two 2-year seats: Nancy Gordon Mills, 440; Mary G. Pronski, 441.

18-Year-Old Coed Wins In 99-Cent Campaign

At 9 a.m. election day, Karen Sullivan finally made up her mind to run. By 8:30 that night the Middlesex Community College freshman knew she was Winchester's first 18-year old female town meeting member.

She went to her polling place, Noonan School, with a friend at 8:30 p.m. and was reluctant to ask the poll inspector, Elizabeth McGrath how she had done.

Finally Mrs. McGrath laughed and pointed at Karen. "Did I?" Karen asked.

"Yes, you won," Mrs. McGrath said.

"Oh no!" was Karen's response.

She was so shocked and "stunned" that she could only laugh. "I was really excited. It was an incredible relief. I went outside and jumped around and went crazy for five minutes."

She went home right away to tell her father "because he had worked so hard. He and Bob were entitled to be the first to know." Bob Joyce is the friend who accompanied Karen to the polls. He and Mr. Sullivan worked at the Noonan School all day urging voters to remember Karen.

She won on a write-in vote, 68-42.

As she went around to some of the candidates' parties Monday night, those figures went with her, written on her hand in ink.

Her campaign cost 99 cents — 50 cents for little pencils and 49 cents for stickers handed out at the poll. Karen couldn't be with her father and her friend at the Noonan School because she was taking exams at college that day. She is a liberal arts and sciences student.

Why did she finally decide to run? "I'm very interested in politics. My family is very much involved in politics." Her father, Robert, a firefighter, has been active in Winchester Democratic circles. He is also a town meeting member. Her mother, Theresa, was chairman of the Democratic Town Committee.

Karen has been active in town affairs as well and was a force behind trying to get the town to build a town ice skating rink a couple of years ago. The rink wasn't built.

Now she would like to see creation of a Young Democratic Committee in Winchester in order to "keep in touch with the kids so they don't become apathetic."

The Sullivans live at 8 High st., Precinct 6.

Besides going to school, Karen is secretary at Kelley & Hawes Trucking Express, Inc., 786 Main st. and works about eight hours a week for the American Cancer Society in telephone solicitation.

What does she want to accomplish as a town meeting member? "I hope to represent my precinct to the best of my abilities."

The closest other write-in candidate was Vincent Benicasa, a member of the Winchester Fire Department. There were 11 3-year seats to be filled in Prec. 6 and only 10 candidates' names on the ballot.

Fund To Help Shoe Hospital

The Winchester Business Association is sponsoring a fund to assist in the reestablishment of the Winchester Shoe Hospital. A fire on February 13 completely destroyed the local shoe hospital on Main street which had been in operation for many years. The shoe hospital had no fire insurance protection.

The Winchester Business Association is asking citizens to assist by mailing contributions to Winchester Shoe Hospital Fund, c-o Winchester Business Association, Box 191, Winchester, 01890.

Finance Committee Sets $3 Tax Hike Goal In Its Report

The Winchester Finance Committee this week prepared its annual report to the citizens of Winchester in which it sets a goal of limiting this year's tax increase to $3.

The report lists several reasons why no firm tax rate prediction is made:

"1. This is the year in which a shift from a January-December fiscal year to a July-June fiscal year is to be accommodated. Since this is the year of transition, the 1973 annual town meeting will appropriate funds to be expended for the period from January 1, 1973, to June 30, 1974. Therefore, the tax rate to be set by the Board of Assessors this year must meet the town's needs for the entire 18 month period.

"2. The added burden on the town departments to project their needs for a year and a half instead of the customary 12 months has delayed in some instances both the submission and review by the Finance Committee of their budgets.

"3. Similarly, and for the same reason, the data usually available from the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, as it relates to state and county assessments and state reimbursements, is incomplete as this report is submitted to the printer for publication.

"4. Adjustments to this new fiscal cycle law are presently pending before the Massachusetts legislature which, if approved, may alter both the amount of funds to be raised by taxation and the format of the real estate tax bills to be issued."

The report then says that the tax increase, "limited to $3 on an annual basis," would bring the tax rate up to $64, "or on a converted basis for a year and a half, the 1972 rate of $91.50 would be increased to no more than $96."

The report notes why last year's tax rate went down 30 cents:

"1. No appropriations were made in 1972 for any increase in professional school teacher salaries.

"2. Abnormal income was earned on funds invested between the date bonds were sold for the construction of the new high school and the dates when the contractor received progress payments.

"3. A favorable change was made in the formula applicable to our assessment for the Regional Vocational School.

"4. The co-operative effort between the town's operating departments and the Finance Committee to effect economies and postponements of low priority programs.

"Of these factors only Item 4 has application to our current financial problems. The School Committee has signed a two-year contract with its professional staff calling for increases in each of the school years which fall in this current 18 month fiscal period. In addition, the impact of the fiscal transition year carries in several budgets a burden in excess of 1½ times the normal one-year requirement, i.e., the months of January to June, which occur twice in the 18 month period, carry a disproportionate higher cost of heating, snow removal and school department salaries.

"Your Finance Committee, recognizing the extra hardships that fiscal transition brings, will recommend an extraordinary withdrawal of cash reserves to minimize the revenue raising requirements. Our recommendations may include:

"1. A transfer from general surplus revenue (the "Excess and Deficiency Account") of $550,000 to be directly applied to reduce the tax rate.

"All major capital expenditures should be

Bonnell Property A Wetland? Oil Slick Seen In Winter Pond

The 6.3 acres of land on Cambridge st. where Bonnell Motors hopes to put up a new automobile agency may be a wetland feeding Winter Pond and requiring a permit to build.

This information came to light recently when an oil truck tipped over while turning into the Woburn Plaza. According to Caroline Cumings of 75 Pond st. the spilled oil from the truck has made its way down to the pond, evidence to her that the Bonnell site is a source of water for Winter Pond.

A dark stream has been visible on the ice on the pond recently. Mrs. Cumings said it first appeared a few days after the truck tipped over. "It's hard to judge how much oil might be there because of the ice," she said.

Town Engineer John H. Ciarcia said the Bonnell site is a definite source of water for Winter Pond but he said drains could be built to insure a continued flow of water to the pond in the event Bonnell builds there.

The annual town meeting is being asked to approve an article to rezone the residentially zoned land to a business district to allow Bonnell Motors to build an expanded agency. Bonnell is now located in Winchester Center.

A petition has been circulating in the Pond street area in opposition to the article, according to Mrs. Cumings. The petition opposes filling in the wetland and "spot zoning" of Cambridge street without a future plan for a business district.

"It's irresponsible for the Planning Board to act favorably," Mrs. Cumings said. "We have to have some control over what goes in there. It will be another Four Corners. It's not in the best interests of the town."

The Planning Board recently conducted a hearing on the Bonnell proposal and will make a recommendation to the town meeting.

Conservation Commission Chairman John T. Moore said the Bonnell property is a watershed but it's too expensive for the commission to be able to afford to purchase for preservartion and, in addition, is not contiguous to other conservation land.

"We haven't discussed whether we are for or against the propsal," he said. "In general, things like this zoning proposal are clearly the responsibility of the Planning Board.

"We wouldn't want to say to them we want it spot zoned for conservation."

Moore said the commission supports revision of the present zoning laws to prevent requests for rezoning of individual parcels "in terms of their characteristics."

Asked if construction on the site would be harmful to the watershed, Moore said he didn't know. He added that if it is determined to be part of the watershed a permit to fill would have to be taken out and the commission would have to rule on it.

Under the state's new wetlands protection act, a local conservation commission has the responsibility for issuing a permit. "In that case it would be inappropriate for us to comment now."

If the land is determined to be a wetland, Bonnell would have to present plans showing how construction would change the water table. "Their request for a permit lies with the developer." Moore said the commission could ask the developer to file, however.

Moore said he didn't know if the oil in Winter Pond came from the tipped truck.

Hospital Says It Will Reveal Expansion Plan

Winchester Hospital administrator Reese E. James this week promised that all information on the hospital's expansion plans will be disclosed when they are more definite.

At the same time, the Board of Selectmen at its meeting this week again put off action on the hospital's request to use 22 Highland ave. for parking.

According to Chairman Paul F. Amico, the hospital has agreed to "further evaluate some other alternative proposals and only after we receive them will we proceed." He said the board will advise the hospital "we are waiting for the feasibility study."

Selectman John J. Sullivan, in response to a question from a resident, said one of the alternatives deals with putting more parking within the existing hospital area. Selectman Vito A. Giarrizzo had asked about using the Russell House site for parking.

The Star recently asked administrator James that question in a list of questions prepared at James' request. This week the newspaper received the following response from James on its story of last week dealing with that question and other questions dealing with reports the hospital intends to increase its number of beds:

"In reviewing the questions it quickly became obvious that they were all concerning the matter of an expansion program at this hospital that is still in process of development and thus not finalized.

"Let me advise that in December, 1971, this hospital did file a letter of intent with the Massachusetts Department of Public Health, setting forth its intent as of that date to carry out a construction program subject to the approval of a certificate of need as provided by state statutes. Our letter of intent cited areas of need within the hospital and emphasized that we were not proposing to increase the acute care beds other than those that relate to our cornonary care unit.

"It must be remembered that all of the material contained in the letter of intent was prelimnary in nature, and thus is subject not only to subsequent planning revisions, but also changes in medical care technology, area planning which is in progress, and finally certificate of need approval.

"Inasmuch as we are still very much in a state of review of our plans, any information at this time would still be prellminary and premature. Be assured that as soon as our plans are more definite and have received approval of the board of directors and are ready for filing with the Department of Public Health, we will wish to bring this to the community for their information and will supply you with all the information pertaining to it."

Administrator James in a letter to the selectmen this week said several years ago the hospital architect indicated only 60 spaces would be realized with the razing of Russell House.

"This was not only grossly insufficient additional spaces but also the Russell House is occupied by some five hospital departments with approximately 40 employees, and also is used for storage and housing of staff. Thus at this time it could not be considered for demolition."

The letter also said the hospital has not engaged an engineer to develop a plot plan layout for 22 Highland ave. "since we did not wish to undertake the expense until we had a definite indication that we would be able to go ahead with the site development."

The selectmen were interested in receiving a plot plan layout.

James' letter said the hospital expects to file a certificate of need application during 1973.

Saturday Tour Begins At 9 A.M.

The selectmen at their regular weekly meeting in Town Hall this week climaxed plans for Saturday's tour of town facilities for town meeting members.

Orientation will begin at Town Hall, in the selectmen's room on the second floor, at 9 a.m. with Board Chairman Paul F. Amico directing information.

Department heads at Town Hall have been informed of the tour and "are geared to it," according to Amico. They will visit the comptroller's office to view the computer room and see "why we need a humidifier and dehumidifier."

Leaving Town Hall, members will be asked to view a certain area of the building the board hopes to have repaired.

Next stop will be the fire station across the street where Selectman John J. Sullivan will direct. Members will get a demonstration of what the firefighters do and why they need the number of men and vehicles in their operation.

Police Department next door will be next. Selectman Arthur E. Dunbar will be in charge. The members will see the quarters, how the police shifts work, view equipment and generally learn how the department runs.

The Town Yards will be next. Old vehicles and need for new ones will be explained by Selectman William B. Chapman Jr. The Cemetery Commissioners will then guide the group through Wildwood Cemetery.

A half hour is planned for each stop. Town meeting begins March 15.

In other business this week, the selectmen rescheduled for a public hearing until next week at 8 p.m. complaints pertaining to the Universal Sports Arena off Cross st. and agreed to invite the mayor and city council of Woburn to a town meeting presentation by the Aberjona Watershed Committee on how developments in Woburn could possibly affect Aberjona flow.

paid for from the Stabilization Fund.

"3. Approximately 80 percent of available federal revenue sharing funds should be applied to qualifying projects this year; the balance to be similarly used in the fiscal period ending June 30, 1975.

"Your Finance Committee believes the above drain on these reserves is justified, but any further withdrawals at this time would force an unreasonable tax rate increase for the following fiscal year.

"Winchester must face the realism of a real estate growth rate of approximately one percent per year and continuing demands for new and more costly services that create five to six percent increases in annual operating costs. The resulting imbalance leads us to the following conclusions:

"1. It is vital that departmental operations are made more efficient.

"2. The services we ask the town to provide should be reappraised for possible reductions.

"3. We must search for new sources of funds or alternate means of raising revenue.

"Unless favorable action is achieved in these areas, we must absorb modest tax increases each year — such increases to be controlled and held to a minimum consistent with appropriate planning for the future.

"We urge that the various boards and departments continue to work on greater coordination of their respective efforts. Only through continued co-operation can we be assured of overall efficient operation.

"We are hopeful that provisions in a revised zoning by-law will concentrate on encouraging the rehabilitation of our present commercial districts and provide a broadened tax base."

The report says progress was made in a new capital planning program, development of program and performance type budgeting and improved cash flow and higher yield investment techniques.

The report, not included in its entirety here, is signed by Chairman Lawrence T. Smith and the 14 other committee members.

2 On Curry List

Two local students attending Curry College in Milton have been named to the dean's list for the spring semester. They are Carol E. Green, daughter of Mrs. Janet M. Green of 2 Winchester pl., and Richard A. Evensen, son of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Evensen, 1 Valleywood cir. Miss Green is majoring in mathematics. Evensen's field of study is government.

Clarification

It was reported in a recent issue of The Star that the Finance Committee voted to restore $2,000 to the budget of the Legal Department it had originally voted to cut.

It was also reported that legal's budget is $28,683: $20,183 in salary for the town counsel and the remainder for contractural services. These figures are correct.

Mullen's salary over a one-year period figures out to be $13,450. Contractural services, Mullen said, are for the printing of briefs and for wages for the town counsel for attending collective bargaining sessions.

Mullen originally cut his budget $2,500 over last year's. This was further reduced $5,000 by Finance. Finance restored the $2,000 because of an expected large number of court cases coming up.

Budgets being approved for town meeting action this year will be spread out over the next 18 months, not 12 months as in the past. Town Counsel Leonard J. Mullen told The Star that some residents may not have realized that this year's budgets being approved will cover a period of 18 months.

Where are the snows of 1973? one might ask this year. This sign at the Winchester Country Club has had little meaning this winter.

Car Breaks, Vandalism Investigated

A $10,000 statue recently stolen from the Public Garden in Boston and found March 1 on Sunset road was claimed last week by the Boston Park Department.

The Boston police identified the statue of a young boy and returned it to the Public Garden, where there are two others of similar value. They were untouched.

In other police action, James Coughlin of 11 East st. reported Saturday the theft of four tires valued at $328 and a ladder from his garage.

A car at the USA rink on Conant rd. was reported broken into Saturday night and skates, a tape deck and tools, all valued at $400, taken.

Two bicycles were reported stolen from the yard at 59 Middlesex st. Saturday. Value by the resident, Anna Brandon, was placed at $80.

A call at 11:30 p.m. Saturday sent the police to Pepper Hill rd., where a gang of beer-drinking teenagers was dispersed.

The police received a report Sunday afternoon that 11 headstones had been tipped over at Wildwood Cemetery. They found 11 had been knocked over.

The car of Mark Desmeules of 378 Main st. was reported entered by breaking a vent window. A tire was taken from a trunk.

The police also on Saturday investigated a report of a car hitting a tree on Sargent rd. The car apparently rolled down the street and into the tree at 29 Sargent rd.

A spare wheel and tire and two tennis rackets valued at $100 and a set of tools were reported taken from the car of Jonathan Korin, 247 Washington st. The car was parked in his driveway.

A Continental Mark 4 automobile was stolen from the Parkview Apartments on Swanton st. and recovered in Boston.

The Palmer Street bath house was broken into by forcing a screen. Two lawn mowers valued at $750 were stolen. A blanket had apparently been nailed over a window to prevent light from being seen. Tools were also taken.

Vandalism at the town pumping station in Medford was investigated recently. A door was forced and three water treatment feeders, electric pumps and other equipment damaged.

The cellar became flooded as a result of the damage and bottles and bags thrown into the water.

Quota Club Installs Its First Officers

As an important part of the observation of its first year of existence, the Winchester Quota Club had its first installation recently with Verne McGilvreay, governor of District No. 29, conducting the ceremony at the Kernwood Restaurant in Lynnfield and president Helen Dame assisting.

Installed were Beatrice Weinerman, psychologist of special state projects; Delia Alonso, photographer; Mary Murphy, real estate consultant; Mary Livingstone, social service.

Accountability for a year of service was presented in the form of reports by Elsie Nelson, secretary; Leila-Jane Roberts, program chairman; Anne Feuss, service chairman; Leonor Rich, membership chairman; Helen Dame, budget; and Bettie Donald, ways and means.

Quota International, Inc., is a classified service organization composed of many local clubs of executive, professional and business women. Membership is by invitation only to assure proper qualifications, classification, character and congeniality.

There are 375 member clubs in the United States, Canada, Australia, and Mexico, all engaged in service pursuits following the motto, "We Share." Quota provides service to girls, to the hard of hearing and speech handicapped, to the community, and service in international relations. Busy executive women are uniting their efforts in the sharing of time, talent, friendship, ability, knowledge, and philanthropies.

I want to thank everyone

Letters To The Editor

On Cease-Fire

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

In January, before the memorable cease fire date was actually announced, I issued a letter to the local Republican organizations (among others) in an effort to stimulate interest in an observation for Peace Day whenever it might occur.

As I would be out of town at the time, it was especially important to me that some notice be made of that long-anticipated and historically significant date.

It was with pleasure that I read in The Star that the Womens' Republican Club, Republican Town Committee and Young Republicans acted immediately and also that many Winchester citizens offered prayers together in thankfulness for the signing of the peace agreements.

As we traveled the east coast to Florida before, during and following the cease fire date of Jan. 27, we were impressed with the activities in cities and towns along the way. Parades, marching bands, rallies and church services were reported, together with editorials praising President Nixon and his efforts for peace with honor.

Now, three weeks later, as the groups of POWs continue to return to America, headlines state that "The POWs Display Pride and Gratitude," "Nixon's war moves supported by POWs". The returning men "echoed loud choruses of praise for their country and President Nixon," stating their pride in that, "We Returned With Honor." Even The Toronto Star headlines stated, "U. S. Prisoners: God Bless America and Nixon."

In Massachusetts, the one state that was not carried by Nixon in November, we often are not exposed to the more favorable views of our President, so it is doubly satisfying to many of us when we can personally observe that other parts of our country highly respect and believe in him.

I would like to congratulate The Winchester Star for its coverage in the Feb. 5 issue.

Trails Readies For Spring With Study

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

Spring will be here in just two weeks! This spring you will have an opportunity to bone up on your rusty geology, botany, zoology and ecology, so you will be well prepared for those long walks in the woods when the days grow warmer.

Winchester Trails is presenting a six-session basic nature study course beginning March 14 at 9:30 a.m. at the new high school. Workshops and lectures given by members of Winchester Trails and the Elbanobscot Foundation of Sudbury, and two filed trips during March and April will give an understanding of what to look for in the woods, where to find it and why it's there.

For the past four years, Winchester Trails volunteer guides have taken the elementary school children on nature walks at Long Pond and Smith Pond as a supplement to their classroom science courses. Plans are being made for the spring season and new volunteer guides are needed.

All those interested in this vital outdoor education for our children are urged to attend this course and learn more about the activities of Winchester Trails. The course is also open to all others who are not able to be volunteers for school walks but are interested in environmental education.

For registration information, please phone me at 729-0858.

Counterfeiting

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

If $2 to $3 beef, 40c to 50c gasoline, $20 to $30 shoes and $3,000 to $5,000 automobile prices give you an uneasy feeling right there in your check or bank account perhaps a few straight words on the subject would be in order.

Our government, headed by a self-proclaimed Keynsian, by deficit financing (e.i., appropriating funds in excess of tax receipts) is confiscating and embezzling (there's no better word for it) the wealth of everyone in the U.S. By inflation, the thrifty retired people and those on social security are the hardest hit.

Here's the sneaky way it is done. The government prints bonds for the amount of its "deficit." Then the Federal Reserve notifies the Bureau of Engraving to print the same amount in Federal Reserve notes. Next, the Federal Reserve exchanges the paper money with the government for U.S. bonds, interest bearing.

We pay about $2.2 billion a year in interest to the Federal Reserve on our national debt. This increases taxes and debauches our currency. Result: inflation and the aforementioned $2 to $3 beef prices, and next year possibly $4 to $5 beef prices.

Individuals or businesses which continually spend more than they take in ultimately go out of business or into counterfeiting. Since governments will not allow themselves to go out of business or into counterfeiting, they turn to a form of counterfeiting whereby they simply create the money they need.

The irony is that if the individual counterfeits, he goes to jail. The government does not.

Hewis Letter

EDITOR'S NOTE: In last week's Star Arthur Hewis defended himself against charges he has obstructed the town meeting by talking too much. Hewis maintained he never exceeded the speaking time limit. He also said his so-called obstructionism has resulted in favorable action in enivornmental control, vocational education, town administration and working conditions of town employees.

The following four paragraphs were omitted last week for reasons of space:

Instead we have had executive secretaries to the Board of Selectmen, now at a salary of over $20,000 per year, a computer that costs over $100,000, staffing for these "efficiencies" into the tens of thousands of dollars — we still have haphazard planning without one cent of economy, in fact, many more employees — and the final solution, a business administration, qualified and dedicated is still only a dream.

Unless the town meeting members act this year and instruct the Town Government Study Committee to bring forward a manager - town meeting charter, we will still face increasing inefficiency and higher taxes.

These are only four of the major proposals that I have put forward and if this is "obstructionism" or a "practice in elocution" all I have to say to the retiring town meeting members "you are the ones who have failed in your responsibility and it is my hope that your successors will not fail the citizen and taxpayer. All the good ideas and projects do not necessarily come from inside the Town Hall.

I still have faith in the grass roots, ordinary citizen, they have kept faith with me and we will overcome "Town Hall" and the invisible government.

Religious News

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

My husband and I agree with Mr. Davis that it is a mistake to remove the church directory from the "church page" in The Winchester Star.

Furthermore, Mr. Davis has made several worthwhile suggestions as to changes that could be made in the "church page" which deserve attention.

Mrs. Philip Marvel
29 Lloyd st.

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

I regret your statement of discontinuing your having no more items on church services - times - subjects.

I know very definitely that with the ecumenical and related subjects and meetings growing in number and strength that it is vital to have this phase of your paper continued and strengthened. There is not a week that I myself always refer to this page and to the items of all churches.

Mrs. Pearl A. Locke
3[illegible] rd.

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

I note not only with regret but with concern that you have in mind to drop the church services directory from your paper. I and my family before me have been subscribers to The Star since its first publication, and I feel very badly that such a change is contemplated.

I don't like to think that our town is becoming less interested in religion and I don't believe it is. In fact, in many ways I have sensed an increase in the realm of religious thought in recent years, and however small this may be, I feel it is worth encouraging.

I agree with the thought expressed in a letter by Walter Bond Daivs in last week's Star that there should be more rather than less emphasis in the section on church news and announcements, even though it means condensing some other items.

Let's not play down the importance of our churches in this community.

Carlson Thanks

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

To all my workers, supporters, and voters: I express my sincere thank you for all you have done for me. Let's look at the results as a setback and not a defeat. With your continued support we will be victorious.

Although the majority of voters in Precincts 3 and 5 seem content with their tax bills, the results demonstrated that the informed voters of Precincts 1, 2, 4, and 6 are dissatisfied with current assessing practices.

I congratulate Mr. Beal upon his election and hope these results will stimulate him into action to correct the assessing discrepancies.

I also congratulate Mr. Andersen upon his election and his ability to break the proposed power slate of assessor candidates. I hope his year is a productive one.

Again many thanks, your candidate,

Werner A. Carlson
14 Bigelow ave.

Blackham Thanks

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

May I extend my sincere appreciation to the people of Winchester who have allowed me the privilege of serving them as a trustee of the Winchester Public Library for one more term.

Your confidence is both appreciated and accepted with humility and I shall continue to serve your best interests.

James W. Blackham Jr.

Beal Thanks

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

I wish to extend my sincere appreciation to all the citizens of the town who voted on Monday. My special thanks to those who supported me by their vote.

My congratulations to Werner Carlson and Ralph Powers for the effort and enthusiasm they put forth in their campaigns.

I am both pleased and honored to continue in the capacity of assessor and pledge to serve the town to the best of my ability.

Straight News

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

Just to keep the record straight—my father, James W. Blackham, was elected selectman of the Town of Winchester on March 1, 1920, when he was 28 years old. He was re-elected to serve a second term on March 7, 1921 at 29 years of age.

Therefore, at age 28, he was and is the youngest man elected Selectman in the Town of Winchester.

Mention in news articles of this distinction being attributed to others and most recently on March 1, 1973, is in error. It is my sincere hope that the error has now been corrected by the above statement and dates.

The Winchester Historical Society, in its work at classifying the town's historical artifacts, found this picture. It is marked on the back, "Home of Mrs. Charles Hall, Main st., Cutter Village (Adeline Augusta Cutter)." The society doesn't know any more about this house than that, not even if it is still standing.

The Future Of Winchester's Past--Now Is The Chance To Do Something To Preserve It

By Calvin T. Cramer
with Don R. Brown
Winchester Historical Commission

Next year the Winchester Historical Society will be 90 years old. It has not aged particularly well. One of the reasons such societies in towns as ours fail to generate much interest is that even with the few who are aware of its existence, there lurks the suspicion that small town historical organizations are really trying to make something out of nothing.

Fortunately, Winchester has among its general population some whose devotion to our heritage allows them to ignore the disclaimer of "musty archivists" and "extollers of the obscure past."

In the first rank of this active contributive group is Fran VerPlanck, president of the Historical Society. Deeply involved in the ecology and conservation-natural history movements, she has somehow found time to develop environment plans for the town's school system, write articles and booklets on a variety of environmental-related topics, contribute to the work of the Baldwin House Association in Woburn, as well as the Middlesex Canal Association and, finally, to plug for and spark into action a townwide effort aimed at meeting the state's deadline for a complete historical survey of the physical historical resources still remaining in Winchester. Fran and her small but energetic fellow members in the Historical Society are in the process of systematically cataloging the archives on Tuesday evenings (from 7-9) in the Downes Room of the Winchester Public Library. Fran is very outspoken about her concern for the future of Winchester's past.

In a society which has become as restless as America's, whose mobility can inspire Alvin Toffler to coin a phrase and garner best-seller popularity, it is incumbent upon us all to fix in time and place for ourselves and for our progeny a better sense of who we are and where we come from. The task of attending to our history (we are now being reminded by the Federal government) must become the serious task of the community at large. By way of emphasis, Washington has created legislation that will result in a nationwide survey of historic homes.

The history of Winchester certainly will never become a classic. We have no Parthenon, no Mayan temple; Winchester is not even the site of the crash of the Goodyear blimp. And though history books are full of accidents which have served to make many little towns famous — Appomattox, Manassas, Mitchell, S.D., — no such "imposition" has ever occured on Winchester. No historian has ever seized upon Winchester in an effort to encapsulate some great moment of history. Among our neighbors who have risen to national prominence, none has yet to attribute his having lived in Winchester as the reason.

The important thing about the Town of Winchester, in fact the crucial aspect of it, is that within its bounds are durable remains of the life styles and needs of earlier times — history's period pieces marked principally by the homes of Winchester. This "chronicle" records not the great events that make the text of history, but rather the passing of the times, the truth of history. In the architecture of the town there are examples of every period since the Revolution.

There are vestiges of demographic patterns which show how the town's earlier citizens got to their jobs before they had automobiles; there are traces of the period in the 1800's when the canals were built and there are signs that manufacturing took place in Winchester long before there was electricity. But mainly there are the houses.

Built during Winchester's growth from the primitive farming days, the houses in large part still remain, some worn down and sagging with the years, others looking as though they were built yesterday. Standing as if indifferent exhibits in some giant outdoor museum they are the mute facts of the transitory truths of change in style, change in manner, change in need, change in almost everything. They reflect the degree of our caring.

The trouble is we are like the Indians of Mexico, toiling around these silent edifices day after day with only the slightest inkling of their history. Now the archaeological expedition into the Town of Winchester has begun: We are about to be unearthed, recorded, inspected, and duly noted. The town Selectmen have recently reactivated the Winchester Historical Commission and this small band is gathering momentum. Already this commission has added as members a number of experts in architectural history as well as town elders who remember the ways and the names and the places long since covered by the newer ways of doing things.

Soon we will rediscover when our houses were built, and where the buildings fit in the architectural continuum. Maybe we'll discover who built them and whether or not some famous (or near-famous) person lived in them. We'll find out the names of the farms our lots were subdivided from, and whether or not the Old Middlesex Canal ran past.

What was Winchester doing, after all, when the country was recovering from the Civil War? Where do we fit in?

The Historical Commission draws, of course, on the Winchester Historical Society as its principal resource. The society has provided older maps, and most important, it has provided people with a sense of the task. By the time the survey of homes is completed this summer the numbers involved in the project will have swelled to the largest team of town history afficiandos ever gathered.

NEXT: The Historical Commission — A first report to the town.

Yes On Article 35

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

I believe that it would be in the best interest of the town to vote yes on Article 35 in the town warrant. (Article 35 seeks to have the town meeting approve rezoning for relocation of Bonnell Motors to Cambridge street.)

Within a few hundred yards on either side of this property are retail stores, an auto repair shop and a Texaco filling station.

This change would simply be calling this area what it really is--a business district.

The town would indeed be fortunate to have a substantial taxable building on this site. I would suggest that the town meeting members view this property.

Hospital Supported

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

We, the undersigned, support the Winchester Hospital's effort to relieve the hazardous driving conditions on Highland avenue caused by parked cars in the hospital area. Anyone can see that immediate steps must be taken. The congestion has grown worse as the use of the hospital has increased.

For the past several years, the hospital's need for expansion has been discussed at various civic meetings, volunteer organization meetings, etc. The annual reports of the hospital have consistently referred to the need for expansion and were mailed to a broad sector of the town residents. The need is not new and has been well publicized.

We urge the selectmen to act favorably on the hospital's request to lease town-owned land (not on a permanent basis) to alleviate a very dangerous situation while the hospital works out a more permanent solution to this problem. Such favorable action would certainly be beneficial to all of us who must come to the hospital for treatment, to work, to volunteer, or to visit.

The need is now.

BOOK REVIEW

BY Ann M. Smith

PARNASSUS ON WHEELS
THE HAUNTED BOOKSHOP
by Christopher Darlington Morley

"Lord!" he said, "when you sell a man on a book you don't sell him just 12 ounces of paper and ink and glue—you sell him a whole new life. Love and friendship and humour and ships at sea by night—there's all heaven and earth in a book, a real book I mean. Jiminy! If I were the baker or the butcher or the broom huckster, people would run to the gate when I came by—just waiting for my stuff. And here I go loaded down with salvation—yes, ma'am, salvation for their little, stunted minds—and it's hard to make 'em see it .... What this country needs—more books."

With a jaunty red beard, a bald pate, and a contagious chuckle, Roger Mifflin, the central character in two of the most whimsical and enchanting tales I have read in a long time, is vehement in his devotion to books and people.

Written by Christopher Darlington Morley (1890-1957) these books are by no means new. "Parnassus on Wheels," originally published in 1912, was Morley's second published work. Although unpretentious, the reader familiar with mythology and literature will find it replete with allusions.

"It was coloured a pale, robin's-egg blue, and on the side, in big scarlet letters, was painted:

R. Mifflin's
Travelling Parnassus
Good Books for Sale
Shakespeare, Charles Lamb, R.L.S.,
Hazlitt, and All Others

(Parnassus, according to the "Oxford English Dictionary on Historical Principles," refers to Mt. Parnassus in central Greece, sacred to Apollo and the Muses and used allusively to refer to any collection of elegant literature.)

"Underneath the wagon, in slings, hung what looked like a tent, together with a lantern, a bucket, and other small things. The van had a raised skylight on the roof, something like an old-fashioned trolley car, and from one corner went up a stove pipe .... A hook released somewhere and raised the whole side of his wagon like a flap. Some kind of catch clicked, the flap remained up like a roof, displaying nothing but books ..."

Such is the setting for the first of this amusing duet. Actually, I read "The Haunted Bookshop" first and found "Parnassus" the more intriguing for what it revealed about the middle-aged friends that I had made in the Brooklyn bookshop.

These two volumes are charming pocket-sized editions full of wit and warmth. They do not pretend to be great literature themselves although they sing the glories of books. Roger Mifflin, book seller extraordinarie, has a strong philsophical bent and an enthusiasm that knows no bounds. His harangues on the Literary (?) styles of his day; librarians, movies, publishers, advertising and a dozen other subjects are woven into a story tapestry that is tinged with love, mystery, and even a bit of derring-do. Amazingly, although gas lights and horse drawn carts date these volumes, their sentiments and concerns are both modern and liberal. It is thoroughly disconcerting, for example, to read a discussion of movie rights of recently published novels in a novel that one knows to be contemporary with World War I. But good books are like that. "Parnassus on Wheels," in fact, could be a paean to women's rights

The Winchester Police Department was awarded two grants from the Massachusetts Committee on Law Enforcement totaling $39,000. Since October of 1970 study and implementation phases of the project, "Comprehensive Attacks on Burglary," have been progressing within the town. In connection with this heightened focus on burglary, the Department will present "Housebreak," a column suggesting ways in which Winchester residents may assist these efforts against crime, in weeks to come through The Star. Look for it.....follow it.....it's for you.

If you have a wedding funeral or other published event to attend, try to make sure that someone is at home or that the residence is secured as best as it can be. Burglars are aware of the presence of wedding gifts, etc.

Do not be tempted by "good prices" on items which you know or believe are stolen property. You would only be defeating the purpose of the Homeowners Engraving Identification program and the burglary project.

D'Agostino's Delicatessen A Family-Run Enterprise

DiAgostino's Delicatessen, 11 Waterfield rd. across from the common, is very much a family-run enterprise. Sam D'Agostino, his wife, Frances (Sweeney) and five of their seven children have at one time or another worked behind the counter.

The D'Agostino's strive to create a family atmosphere in their store. "We are operating the store just as if we invited you into our home," says Mr. D'Agostino. "We want it clean like our home.

"Running our store is not a question of winning over customers but winning over friends. Our customers are loyal. You can almost set the clock by them." Mr. D'Agostino continues that they sell what the customers want to buy, "not what we want to sell."

The delicatessen stocks top quality merchandise in everything it sells. "If something better comes along, we'll get it," Mr. D'Agostino says. The store sells all kinds of cold cuts, from roast beef to a line of Italian sausage. Gourmet foods are also represented, including such items as canned escargot and truffles. Lox and bagels, imported foods such as macaronis and olive oil, are on sale. There is also a large section devoted to homestyle salads.

Cheesecake and D'Agostino's bread and rolls are popular. But the most popular of all are the submarines made with all fresh meat and cheeses.

As far as prices go, D'Agostino's has a philosophy: "We've got to be fair and competitive."

The D'Agostino children who work at the store are Nancy, 21, a graduate of Chamberlayne Junior College; Ralph, 20, a student at Boston State College who was captain of the Burlington High School football team; Paul, 18, who will graduate from Austen Prep this year and is captain of the school's undefeated football team; Mary, 16, who attends Burlington High School; and Sam, 14, a freshman at Burlington High School.

Sam D'Agostino

Other workers in the store are Joseph Biagotti of Winchester, John Fischera, Tony Sousa, "Uncle Al" Rossi and "Uncle Pat" Sweeney.

Mr. D'Agostino, who worked for Star Market Co. for 16 years in meat merchanidising, has run the delicatessen for 4½ years. He sums up his feelings about running the store: "We just try to take as good care of the customer as we possibly can. We don't regard them as customers but as friends. They are our most important commodity."

Ambassador Volpe On New Assignment

Hon John A. Volpe, former Winchester resident, departed the country this week to accept his new assignment as Ambassador to Italy.

The former governor of Massachusetts and more recently serving in President Richard Nixon's cabinet as secretary of transportation, Volpe was greeted in Italy by Cardinal Humberto S. Medeiros with several United States embassy officials. He knelt briefly and kissed the ring of Cardinal Medeiros (then cardinal-designate). They embraced and exchanged congratulations.

Ambassador Volpe's parents were born in the Abruzzi region in Italy. They later emigrated to the United States and settled in Wakefield. Volpe began working for his father when he was 12, first as a hod carrier and later as a plasterer's apprentice. After graduating from high school he worked fulltime for his father and attended Wentworth Institute evenings.

He started his own construction business in 1933. He entered politics after World War II and service with the Navy. First he was deputy chairman of the Massachusetts Republican Party. In 1960 he was elected governor of the state, lost to Gov. Endicott Peabody in 1962, and returned to the state house in 1964. He was re-elected in 1966 and named secretary of transportation in 1969.

Among the articles to be explored in some detail are those on the Board of Health's program on drug abuse (20), waste disposal (21), Council for the Aging (25) Capital Planning Committee (26), parking and traffic problems at the hospital (30), and the change in zoning by-laws for the northeast side of Cambridge st. (35).

Coffee will be served at 7:45 p.m. before the meeting which begins at 8 p.m.

The only unit on the warrant will be held March 15 at 9:15 a.m. at the home of Mrs. Winfield Knopf, 233 Main st.

Masters, who has taken a course "Volunteers for Income Tax Assistance" given by the Internal Revenue Service, which recruited members through the American Association of Retired People, offers assistance without charge. He says, "We are not prepared for serious problems but are able to help those with questions and may help avoid a trip to the IRS in Cambridge or Boston." He will have extra tax forms with him.

In addition to this service, the Winchester public library has several up-to-date tax manuals for consultation in the reference department such as Lasser's "Your Income Tax," several commerce clearing house pamphlets and the Prentice-Hall "Tax Guides" for federal, state and local taxes.

Great Books Talk

Mrs. Ann Smith, reference librarian of the Winchester Public Library, has completed a four-week great books' leadership training program at the Boston Public Library.

The program is sponsored by the Eastern Massachusetts Regional Library System.

The great books program is based on the idea that people can help one another to learn by reading and then discussing some of the best books that have been written during the past 2000 years.

A great books program for adults will be held at the Winchester Public Library at a date to be announced.

Heart Fund Invites Groups To Set Marathons

Young people from the Greater Boston area may take part in the Youth Bounce for Heartbeats marathon on March 25 for the benefit of the 1973 heart fund.

The marathon is designed to raise funds from local residents and businessmen who will serve as sponsors for a member of the group. Each participating member of the local group must find his own sponsors. Prior to the day of the marathon, sponsors will make a pledge to donate a certain amount of money for each consecutive hour the participant bounces his basketball.

The Heart Association hopes that groups of young people or the young at heart will sponsor a marathon in each area community. Groups can be any size and the Greater Boston Heart Association will offer its assistance to every group in organizing their local Bounce for Heartbeats.

The marathon is a statewide event and may prove to be an important part of this year's local heart fund drive. For further information contact the Greater Boston Heart Association, 677 Beacon St., Boston.

Co-op Nursery In Fifth Year, Plans Open House Monday

The Neighborhood Cooperative Nursery School Inc., embarking upon its fifth year of nonprofit operation, is taking applications for the 1973 fall enrollment.

The nursery school was formed in 1969 at the Second Congregational Church, Washington st. and Kenwin rd. In 1971 the school moved to the First Congregational Church, Church st., where it is presently located.

The Neighborhood Cooperative Nursery School Inc. is a member of the Nursery School Association of Winchester, Boston Association of Education for Young Children and has as its teacher-director Mrs. Arthur Jellis who has been with the school for three years.

Previous to joining the nursery school, Mrs. Jellis spent eight years at a Lincoln cooperative where she taught kindergarten and special education. Mrs. Jellis is a graduate of Perry Normal School and Boston University. She has attended Wheelock College recently, and has extensive experience in training student teachers.

In a cooperative parents volunteer time to aid Mrs. Jellis as parent-helpers on a rotating schedule. Parents are also encouraged to contribute ideas and talents in all phases of the school's operation. This provides an opportunity for participation and observation of children in a nursery school experience. A fringe benefit of a cooperative can be making new acquaintances for the family and widening a child's circle of friends.

Applications are now being accepted for the morning sessions for three-year-olds on Tuesday and Wednesday, and for for four-year-olds on Thursday and Friday. There will be an afternoon session for four-year-olds on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday. For more information, please call Mrs. Redding, 1 Hawthorne rd., or Mrs. Arcari, 384 Washington st.

The Neighborhood Cooperative Nursery School Inc. will hold an open house Monday at 8 p.m. in the nursery school's facilities at the First Congregational Church. All prospective members and interested people are invited.

Thursday Club Offers Social, Work Skills

By Pauline Dishmon

On Thursday evenings from 7:30 to 10 p.m. in the basement of the Church of Our Saviour, Arlington, 10 boys from nearby towns (two from Arlington, one from Winchester) participate in a recreation-education program geared toward developing their social and work skills.

Called The Thursday Club, the program is in its second year and is sponsored by the Association for Mentally Ill Children (AMIC), funded from dues paid by parents of participating students, all with the cooperation of Rev. Raymond Howe and membership of the Church of Our Saviour.

AMIC president Mrs. Barbara Cutler of Arlington and Dr. Martin Kozloff of Boston University developed the program and oversee the work and progress of participants.

In the beginning a few parishioners of the Church of Our Saviour, among them Richard Martin of Arlington and the Girls' Friendly Society, served as volunteers in the program. Now college students under Dr. Kozloff's direction are the chief instructors on a one-to-one relationship with the boys.

According to Rev. Howe, "As a church we feel we have a real mission to the community. When Mrs. Cutler came to us asking for space to begin the program we felt she knew what she was doing and we wanted to stand behind her. We're happy to have the program in our church," he says.

Peter Schloss of Arlington, who is working toward his master's degree in rehabilitation, acts as a regular adult volunteer. He says Thursday has great significance to AMIC and the children it serves. Taken from the old rhyme which focuses on days-of-the-week children, Thursday's Child is one who "has a long way to go."

Schloss explains that "Thursday's Children" is the name of an AMIC publication that reports on hearings, legislation and other state developments pertaining to autistic children and those with varying degrees of developmental disabilities, in addition to the work of AMIC chapters throughout the state.

The Thursday Club brings together 10 boys from 13 to 21 years of age. Each attends a private or public educational program on an educable level. And each receives attention, instruction, praise and love from the Boston University student aides who work closely with the youngsters from week to week and practice behavior modification teaching methods which are proving to be effective in the boys' learning.

Mrs. Cutler describes the boys who attend the Thursday Club as atypical, seriously disturbed, autistic, having language deficits or being chronically handicapped. For the most part they are the children who fall between the cracks when it comes to fitting into public education programs. Larry MacLeod, 17, son of Mr. and Mrs. John D. MacLeod of 25 Myopia rd., participates.

The Thursday Club's activities are fairly structured. Each week a specific pattern is followed, yet the program is open to include variables and additions.

Peter Schloss is on hand each Thursday evening to greet the boys and get them started. They begin by working on jigsaw puzzles. This serves as a time for fellowship and helps the boys settle down to an evening of fun and learning, Schloss explains.

Soon after all students and aides have arrived, a female aide announces "store will open." Store is the corner of the work area and the boys have come to recognize her as storekeeper, a role she plays each week. As the boys sit around the store area each raises his hand awaiting a turn to choose a goal for the evening.

According to the behavior modification technique a goal is a material object that a student selects and will expect to be awarded after putting forth his best effort to achieve. In other words, a goal serves as a motivating force in learning.

On a one-to-one basis each boy has an aide who stays close by during the evening, observing and working with the boy so that he understands instructions and is able to participate individually and with the group. He is corrected. He is praised. Aides keep a performance record each evening. A perfect score of check marks for each phase of the evening's program will give the boy his goal. An imperfect score will not give him his goal.

According to Mrs. Cutler, the store offers new weekly goals. For the most part they are inexpensive items such as comic books, small toys, or popcorn balls.

After selecting a goal, a student is asked to identify the object, show it to the rest of the group. Then it is put aside by the storekeeper in plain sight to remind the boy of what he is working toward.

Other features of this particular evening include blowing up balloons and learning to throw a basketball. Each boy has several turns and is audibly praised for effort and performance. "Very good, Michael," "Good boy, Larry." "Nice job, David." An aide touches his charge as he offers praise and encouragement.

Cooking is a highlight of the evening. Elaine Sullivan from Lawrence, a nutritionist, has been volunteer cooking instructor. She teaches the boys about protein, carbohydrates, vitamins and minerals, dairy products, fruits and vegetables, what goes into a balanced meal, the difference between stirring and beating, how to measure recipe ingredients and, in general, how to cook.

Larry has shown an interest in cooking for some time, Mrs. MacLeod reports. It started when he was younger and attending the Dearborn School in Cambridge where he took a cooking course. "I bought him a cookbook and show him how to measure and he's been cooking ever since. He makes good pizza. He mixes his own dough," she says.

After completing a series of discussions in earlier weeks on protein, the boys are now learning about dairy foods. On one night they will make corn chowder. After recapping highlights of learning from previous sessions, Miss Sullivan carefully explains the corn chowder recipe.

1 can corn chowder; ½ can creamed corn; ½ can cream of mushroom soup; 1 cup milk; ¾ tsp. onion flakes; and salt to taste.

Half the boys go into the kitchen with their aides to make chowder while the others and their aides remain at a table with Miss Sullivan who leads a card game in which the boys make balanced meals from color-coded pictures. Later the boys change places so that each has a turn at cooking and each makes a balanced meal.

Finally the chowder is cooked. The climax of the evening is about to occur. There is a general hustle and bustle. Everyone prepares the tables. Napkins are distributed at each place by David. Everyone will now have a cup of chowder and a glass of carbonated beverage.

The chowder is hot and delicious. Disappointment reigns because there is not enough for seconds.

To conclude the evening the boys return to the store to claim goals achieved. The storekeeper calls out each boy's name. His aide, who has been judging performance and effort throughout the evening, nods his head yes or no. All but two achieve their goal this night.

The two are taken aside by their aides who explain why their goals are withheld. One boy had been touching and taking things that didn't belong to him.

To the untrained observer the withholding may seem cruel.

But according to Schloss, the withholding is better for the boy. Next week he'll remember not to touch things that don't belong to him. "He will move forward."

Mrs. MacLeod is in favor of the behavior modification technique. That's how we all learn, she points out.

Mrs. MacLeod adds that "A lot of nice things have happened to Larry during the past year" since he's been going to Thursday Club. It is the only opportunity he has to socialize without a family member and has helped him grow in this area, she says.

The next week the boys will continue their dairy products discussion and learning. They will make hot and cold milk beverages and continue to develop their social and work skills to be productive citizens in the total community.

Boys who attend the Thursday Club at the Church of Our Saviour, Arlington, regularly go to a pretend store where they choose a reward for the evening. The program, using behavior modification methods, brings together 10 boys from the Boston area (two from Arlington, one from Winchester) and Boston University students who are working under the direction of Dr. Martin Kozloff of BU and Mrs. Barbara Cutler, president of the Massachusetts Association for Mentally Ill children. DAR Safety Group Has History Talk

At a recent meeting of the Committee of Safety Chapter DAR, held at the home of Mrs. Everett F. Kidder, 38 Wildwood st., members and guests heard of the establishment of the Minute Man National Park located in the historical towns of Concord, Lincoln, and Lexington.

Cynthia Kryston, park historian, introduced her topic stressing the importance of history in this area. She briefly touched on the early life of the colonists, events that led up to the American Revolution, Paul Revere, Sam and John Adams, and John Hancock, and ending with a description of the battles of Concord and Lexington.

The speaker stated that an act of Congress in 1959 authorized the Minute Man National Park be created from some 750 acres with the purpose to preserve and enhance our historical heritage.

She described the park's many programs, including preparation of exhibits of historical artifacts, planning living history programs for children to show what it was like in 1775, performing live demonstrations of battle-fighting on Concord Bridge, preparation of talks at the Visitors' Center, and doing historical research and restoration of old houses within the bounds of the Park.

Mrs. Barone Aids Camp Fund Appeal

The Republican Club of Massachusetts this week opened its 35th annual Republican Camp Fund appeal to provide summer camping experiences for needy children throughout the state. Mrs. William D. Barone of Winchester, Republican state committeewoman for the Sixth Middlesex District serving her second term as Winchester's representative, is assisting with the program.

The Republican Camp Fund was founded in 1938 by former governor Christian A. Herter. During subsequent years the club has sponsored more than 35,000 weeks of summer camp vacations. Children benefitting from the program are selected by Boys and Girls Camps Inc. of Charlestown on the basis of need and without regard to race, color, creed or political affiliation.

Mrs. Barone was commended recently by the National Republican Committee for suggestions and efforts pertaining to recent peace day celebrations in Massachusetts. Chairman George Bush of the national organization wrote Mrs. Barone thanking her for sharing her ideas with others.

Swim Team Wins Last Meets

The Winchester High School swim team ended an excellent regular season by defeating its last two opponents, Lynn Classical and Northeast Vocational.

The final victories boosted the second year Sachems' record to 7-3, assuring them of a very commendable third place in the North Division of the Greater Boston Swimming League. The season is not over, for the swimmers, however. There is still the North Division championship meet in which Winchester is the defending champs, and have high hopes of remaining so.

In Winchester's meet against Lynn, the Sachems broke three more pool records and narrowly missed a forth on their way to victory. WHS swim team now holds nine of the 11 pool records. The medley relay of Steve Blasi, Vin Palumbo, Roy Palumbo and Phil Gouzoule started the meet off with a record time of 1:55.2.

Phil Gouzoule and Vin Palumbo also set pool records, in the 50 yard freestyle with a time of 25.1 and in the 100 yard breaststroke with a time of 1:06.2 respectively. The Sachems went on to win the meet easily, 54-39.

The schedule committee headed by Paul Guarante of 44 Church st. has together a schedule for the more than 800 boys who participate in Winchester Little League.

On the minor league level a 14-game schedule has been planned for each team to be followed by a three-game playoff series involving all minor league teams to determine the Winchester minor league champion.

The major league teams will play a 20 game-schedule, playing, each of their five opponents four times.

The senior league schedule will be identical to last year's with the exception that the season will begin one week earlier. Opening day games for Little League this season are April 25, major league; April 28, minor league; and May 5, senior league.

Mites Split Two

The Winchester Youth Hockey Mites won and lost games with Stoneham and Watertown in the last week.

Tommy Sullivan scored five goals in leading the Mites to a 9-to-0 win over the Stoneham "B" Mites. Four of these goals were unassisted resulting from Tom's aggressive play on defense and his stealing the puck four times. After scoring his four unassisted goals on beautiful rushes down the slot Tom combined with Mike McCarthy and Bobby DiVincenzo to pop his fifth goal.

Billy Eaton started the scoring in the first period when he slammed home a Mike Gorrasi pass as he was camped on the doorstep out in front. Co-captain Chris Parker later stole a puck and slashed in to put it in the lower corner.

Co.-captain Tony Celli converted a pass from Brian Cohen and Tommy Mahoney when he busted in from the red line right down the middle and scored after faking a slap shot. In the third period Brian Cohen worked in front and scored in the lower corner off a Chris Parker assist.

In a tight one the Mites lost to Watertown 2 to 1 with Tony Celli popping the string at the right corner on the short side. Scotty Stillman and Chris Parker assisted. Alan McCarthy played well in goal while improved play was shown by Mike McCarthy and Eric Paskerian.

The Flickers (Terry Andersen, Laraine Milauskas and Dottie Lauletta) continue in second place.

In third are the Sparrows (Angela Pollino, Jane Hersee and Gerry Lesperance).

Glenda Green, Nettie Livingston and Ginny Laats of the Chickadees took over first place for high team series with a total of 1342.

Wakefield Stuns Hockey Tourney

The Wakefield Warriors, second place finishers in the Middlesex League and bottom qualifier for the Eastern Mass. Hockey tournament, staged a surprisingly big upset by holding top seeded Malden Catholic to a 0-0 double overtime deadlock at the Boston Arena.

The Lancers with their record breaking offense and the two top scorers in the state were expected to make mincemeat of the Warriors. But Wakefield had other ideas, and led by sophomore goalie John Parisi they repulsed every thrust of the Malden Catholic officese. As a matter of fact they had several threatening scoring chances themselves, but another sophomore, Dave Norton, was equally unbeatable in the Catholic cage.

Wakefield skated with the flying Malden team, and played a solid defensive game, thwarting no less than three dangerous sorties with trips executed at strategic moments to forestall the goal scoring threat. Play resumed Monday afternoon, with the Warriors again fighting tooth and nail, and threatening their vaunted opponents.

However, the ending came suddenly when George Highes in close held his shot, flipped back to his brother John at the point, and the puck whizzed past Parisi for the winning marker. The goal came at the eight-minute mark, but Wakefield was not through yet. Parisi survived 30 seconds of playing with a stick when it was broken, and the Warriors roared back in a fierce attempt to notch the equalizer.

A poor call by an official of an offside cost them a possible goal, but they pressed right down to the final whistle. Play will continue today, with Malden Catholic and Waltham paired this afternoon, while Middlesex League champion, Melrose, victor by 4-0 over Medford, will face a surprisingly strong Malden team led by Matt Marden and goalie Al Suderi, who dethroned state champion Norwood by 2-1 in double overtime. Faceoff of this game is down for 7:30 p.m.

Morrisions To Host Coffee For Prec. 2

Precinct 2 Town Meeting members are invited to attend a coffee on Sunday at 8 p.m. at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Morrison, 14 Webster st. The purpose of the meeting is to set up a formal precinct structure that will serve as a year-round information channel for TM members, town boards, and the voters of Prec. 2.

On Feb. 25 TM members of Prec. 2 met at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Marshall Kincaid. Walworth Williams, outgoing member of the finance committee, and a newly-elected TM member from Prec. 2 met with the members for coffee and questions.

Williams gave a brief explanation of the transition from a calendar year budget to a fiscal year of July-June as prescribed for all Massachusetts communities in the 1969 state law.

The major part of the evening was devoted to questions from the TM members. They showed deep interest in the current budget changes, the effect on the tax rate, and areas open for possible improvement in town government. Also evident was the general consensus that TM members need to receive information from town boards several weeks in advance of the town meeting or special town meetings.

The coffee, sponsored by Ken Tully and Sally W. Kincaid, temporary coordinators for Prec. 2, was an initial effort to provide TM members with information to prepare them for town meeting. This idea, generated and supported by Raymond J. Kenney, town moderator, is intended to provide a more informed TM membership, to strengthen the TM form of government, and to shorten the length of the town meeting itself.

Mrs. Kincaid, coordinator, urges Prec. 2 TM members to attend a joint Prec. 2 and 3 meeting to be held tonight at Mystic School at 7:45. Finance committee members, selectmen representatives, and authors of special warrant articles have been asked to appear for discussion. Interested citizens are invited.

Two similar meetings scheduled before the town meeting of March 15 will be held in other public buildings incorporating TM memberships of Precs. 1 and 6; and Precs. 4 and 5.

Of special importance for all TM members will be the selectman's tour planned to start from the town hall on Saturday, from 9 a.m. noon. TM members will inspect areas that are pertinent to articles in the warrant of the forthcoming town meeting.

Adult Gatherings

There is an Adult Gathering at St. Eulalia's Church Thursday afternoons at 1 on Ridge st., Winchester.

All are invited to have an afternoon of coffee and chat. Some of the group exchange ideas and instruction in knitting, crocheting, hairpin lace, and needlework, while others play bridge, whist, pinochle, and checkers. Newcomers are welcomed.

Woburn Grid Coach Poses Questions

By John F. Parrell

What's new? Oh, the Woburn coaching position is open. What, again? Yes, the papers have noted that Mike Murphy, former Sachem gridder, will not be rehired, and that the School Committee is accepting applications for the post.

As one sage puts it, "It's no bed of roses." Rumor has it that Athletic Director Walter White is being snowed under with candidates, possibly more than 50. The history of the position has been tortuous in recent years, as many capable coaches have been tried, failed, and then joined the procession into oblivion.

There is only one answer; Woburn must hire a proven winner. Although there has been no formal list released before the closing date, tomorrow, many well-known mentors are supposed to be in the fight. Besides the usual grist of young coaches and assistants, there are many who have proved themselves in college and schoolboy ranks. According to well-founded reports, some of the latter are household names around the Middlesex League.

The reason that the Tanner situation is such a hotbed is that through the years Woburn has been highly successful in youth and Pop Warner football, only to have the promising prospects wither and die when they put on the high school uniforms. The Tanners tried without too much successs to compete in the Northeastern Conference, and finally decided that greener pastures lay closer to home in the Middlesex League. It was felt that these teams might prove an easier nut to crack, with more possibilities of winning. But, to their dismay, the ardent, and often unreasonable, Tanner supporters found that this was not the answer.

The upset of the previously undefeated Sachem 11 of 1968 gave temporary hope, but when the Lennie Hill coached teams of 1969 and 1970 failed to win very often, the capable coach was given the gate. Mike Murphy was selected as the Moses who was to lead the Tanners out of the desert of victories, and although his teams picked up three wins in each of his two seasons, this was not enough for the victory-starved Woburnites.

Now, why would there be such interest in a berth where the sword of Damocles is constantly over the coach's head? The dissatisfaction in the neighboring city has grown to such an extent that public meetings have been held regarding the athletic situation, the lack of coordination of school and outside sports programs, and kindred subjects.

One solution suggested was that the athletic director's position be split, so that one man would handle athletics exclusively and another would direct the physical education program. It is quite probable that many of the better known applicants are willing to face the Woburn firing squad, provided they would also be given the comparatively secure combination post of coach and sports director.

It will be interesting to watch developments, for things are really at a rolling boil in Woburn. The man chosen will have his hands full, and one can only wish him the best of luck. Who will the lucky, or unlucky, applicant be? Time alone will tell, but the formal listing of applicants will certainly make some interesting reading, and the final choice will be waiting on the Orange and Black bench at Manchester Field come Thanksgiving morning.

All Middlesex Final Goes To Wakefield

By John F. Parrell

The Division I section of the Eastern Massachusetts Basketball Tourney (nee the Tech) found 19 quintets qualifying, with three preliminary games required to reduce the field to tournament size, 16.

Lexington, Wakefield and Watertown carried the colors of the Middlesex League into the wide open affair. Watertown won a qualifying game, but fell out in the first round. However, both Wakefield and Lexington have mowed down the opposition, and played in the final game held Tuesday night.

It is very unusual, almost impossible, for two representatives of the same league to face each other in the final game, particularly since they finished second and third in their own league. However, Stoneham, the league titlist at 20-0, and twice victor over both, played in Division II and was eliminated in a stunning first round upset by Rindge Tech. So, Stan Boynton's tourney wise Minutemen and the scrappy Wakefield Warriors came to do battle for the top glory spot.

They had split their regular season games, but it was a moot question whether or not the Warriors could hold up under the tension of the final at the Garden. Lexington had faced it for the last four years, but Wakefield had learned the hard way in three one point losses and a three point win over Winchester.

Three veteran starters of last year's state championship Minutemen were the keys to Lexington's successes this year: Ken Cormier, Jeff Baker and superstar Neil Singelais. Coach Stan Boynton has used Steve in two roles this year—as a shooter and as a ball control playmaker. It was in the latter role that he starred throughout the tourney. But, in the final game, Lexington got into early foul trouble, and as Cormier and Baker fouled out, Singelais was forced to change his part to that of the shooter. This proved to be too difficult, and Singelais was just enough off the mark to keep Wakefield's hopes alive. When the game went into the three minute overtime both Dawson and Singelais were exiled on fouls, but the reserves fought right to the end before losing 56-55.

Lexington stayed in front all the way until the third minute of the fourth period. But when veteran forwards Cormier and Baker went out the Warriors continued their style of driving at Lexington, with Ed Haladay and Ron Sen applying heavy pressure against the Minutemen. The gap closed slowly but surely, and the stage was set for a ding dong finish, which had the spectators on their feet, and the buzzer found the score board reading: Wakefield 53, Lexington 53.

Then came the exits of Dawson and Singelais, and now it was leg weary Wakefield battling the Lexington reserves. It was high pressure basketball as there were five turnovers, three by the Warriros. Three times in the final half minute a Wakefield boy came to the foul line on a one and one situation, and each time the first shot was missed.

There were three time outs in the last eight seconds. The final one came with just one second to play as Lexington took the ball inand called for an immediate halt in play.

The strategy called for a pass in to Bob Phelan, and the latter immediately let loose a well directed high arching shot. It hit the center of the backboard, then the front of it, and bounded high again only to fall outside the strings. Pandemonium reigned as the final buzzer sounded and Wakefield was the new Division I champion. They beat a capable team, but the state titlists never quit, even with only one regular on the floor. The Middlesex League certainly made the final game a thriller, and as this game was played the surprisingly aggressive Warriors beat a good Lexington team that played hard and well in the face of adversity. This time there was no Ronnie Lee or Wayne Morrison to provide the spark to ignite the fuse of final victory. Congratulations to Sonny Lane and his Warriors. You finally ended the seemingly endless domination of the league by the well-coached Boynton Minuteman machine.

Duplicate Bridge

70% Game By North-South

By Bridgette

Weatherwise it's been a good winter for the Duplicate Bridge Club - no Wednesday night blizzards and February now off the calendar.

Section A on the 28th featured a whopping 70 percent game by Guy Mingolelli and Joe Salani sitting North-South, Joe handling the round changes as well. East-West Peggy and Phil won again playing the precision club system.

North-South
Guy Mingolelli and Joseph Salani, 117
Ellen Schofield and William Duryea, 101½
Dr. and Mrs. Robert Blackler, 92½
Ida Finlay and Adaline Duryea, 81
Stephen Haseltine and Charles Richardson, 81

East-West

Ruby White and Charles Choate, 93½
Madalyn Walworth and Anne Galpin, 92½
Nancy Atkinson and Richard Sullivan, 88½
Mr. and Mrs. Paul Cowles, 88½

In Section B the men won both ways, North-South Bob Haskell and Mike Portonova, and East-West Tom Barry and Don Howard.

Robert Haskell and Mike Portonova, 82½
Donna Redpath and Darrell Root, 71½
Barbara Shea and Edmund Joyce, 65
Jim Lee and Stephen Linehan, 64½
Catherine Havican and Mary Shannon, 63

East-West
Tom Barry and Don Howard, 81
Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Cincotta, 74
Mary Lou Clabby and Virginia Ward, 71
Larry Devlin and Thomas Bourgeios, 69½
Mr. and Mrs. Carl Thoren, 66

Discretion was not the better part of valor for board 30 from Section B, no one vulnerable and East the dealer.

Please look at the North hand and decide what you'd bid after South opens with 1H. East-West passes throughout.

A jump shift to 3D seems indicated. Now after South responds with 4D, what is your choice? With the fit in hearts and diamonds, a slam is probable, so 4NT asking for Aces shows South with one Ace.

Where to play the slam? The North at our table, fearing a spade lead through his King if South plays the hand in hearts, cautiously decides on 6D.

Looking at all four hands, 6D is sure to make, no matter what the spade distribution, but inasmuch as East does not have the Ace, Queen of spades and South's Jack is a stopper, 6H makes also, and counts more. Actually the 6D result is an average board, for not all Souths make the 6H; you can guess wrong on an opening spade lead.

Oh well, next time maybe caution will pay off!

Local Police To Face State Police In Game Saturday

The Winchester Police Hockey team will face the state police this Saturday at 9 p.m. at the USA rink, Cross st. Proceeds will go to the Jimmy Fund.

Tickets for hockey game are on sale at the police station or may be purchased at the game. Both teams are presently undefeated.

Winchester Rink Has Bonspiel Win

The 10th annual member guest bonspiel was held recently at the Winchester Country Club. The first event was won by Dr. and Mrs. Henry Hunter and their guests Chris Anderson and Bob Devine of Broomstone's Curling Club. The second event was won by Peggy and Richard Pettingell and their guests June and Waldo Aldrich of the Nashua Curling Club. The third event was won by Grace and Robinson Murray and their guests Beth and Vic Howlett of the Canadian Club.

St. Mary's Defeats National Division

With St. Mary's players providing half the offense and the better part of the defense, the CYO Hockey League's American division all-stars defeated the National division all-stars 6-2 Sunday at McHugh Forum, Boston College.

Richard Jacobs of St. Mary's scored two goals. Teammate Gerard Kivney added one more while St. Mary's goaltender Peter Scopa provided shutout goaltending for the first half of the game before being replaced by Paul Erker of Norwood.

Defenseman Mark Milley also represented St. Mary's and turned in a solid game. He was not on the ice for either National division goal.

The American division all-stars were coached by Jack Falla of St. Mary's. Ken Tibbetts of Charlestown coached the National division team.

Six players from each team will be elected to the League's official all-star team to be announced later this month. Both Scopa and Jacobs were named to last year's all-star team.

Curtain And Cue To Host Region Drama Festival

The Curtain and Cue Society of Winchester High School will host a regional festival sponsored by the Massachusetts High School Drama Guild on Saturday in the new high school auditorium. Eleven other regional festivals will be held at various high schools all over the state also on that date.

Winchester's entry in this one-act play festival will be "Hello from Bertha" by Tennessee Williams. It is directed by Peter Bloch, assisted by Janet Semonian. Featured in the cast are Alison Holt, Claire Simeone, Nancy Hilliard, and Nancy Pease.

Other participating schools will be Malden High School, Somerville High School, Arlington High School, Stoneham High School, and Matignon High School in Cambridge. Winchester will be first to perform at 10 a.m. There will be a 10-minute interval between plays and an hour for lunch.

After the last play in the afternoon, the drama guild consultant will announce the two winning plays which will be performed on March 16 and 17 at each of the two semi-final festivals; one at Northeastern University in Boston, the other at Bay Path Junior College in East Longmeadow. The winners of the semi-finals will perform at the state festival on March 23 and 24 at John Hancock Hall in Boston.

Legion Post 97 Elects Directors

Winchester Post No. 97, the American Legion, held its monthly meeting at the post home, 34 Vine st., in commemoration of Washington's Birthday last week and to elect corporation officers and directors on the 25th anniversary at the present home.

Building corporation officers elected included Timothy O'Leary as president, Louis Castriotta as vice-president and Frederick Cause, Robert Elliott and William Kane Jr. as directors. Kingman Cass was elected clerk of the corporation and Edwin Waters treasurer.

A corned beef dinner night is planned for the near future. Also a delegation from the post plans to attend the ecumenical service of Thanksgiving for the cease-fire in Vietnam, proclaimed by the state commander and arranged at Immaculate Conception Church in Worcester.

Smith Club Holds Film Festival

The Smith College Club of Winchester will present its annual film festival in the new Winchester High School auditorium on March 28, April 11, and April 27. Three classic films will be screened, as well as two specially selected short subjects. Proceeds will go to Smith scholarships.

First to be shown on March 28 at 8 p.m. will be "The Golden Fish," a fantasy directed by Jacques Cousteau about a goldfish, a little boy, and a hungry alley cat. It won an Academy Award in 1959 for the best live-action short subject. The Hallmark Hall of Fame production of "Macbeth" with Judith Anderson and Maurice Evans will follow. This color feature was filmed on location in Scotland and England, and won five Emmy awards in 1954.

On April 11 at 8 p.m. the second film, "Rebecca" will be shown. Based on Daphne du Maurier's book, this early Alfred Hitchock classic was termed "brilliant, haunting, suspensful" by the New York Times. Joan Fontaine and Laurence Olivier play starring roles, complemented by George Sanders, Nige. Bruce, and Judith Anderson. A whimsical short subject, "A Unicorn in the Garden," after James Thurber's short story of the same name, will provide an appropriate light touch for the evening.

The third feature of the series, "Top Hat," starring Fred Astaire and Ginger Rogers, will be presented twice on April 27, at 7 and 9 p.m. The double screening will allow all ages to enjoy the magic of this 1935 romantic comedy, which features music by Irving Berlin, including "Cheek to Cheek" and "The Piccolino."

Tickets will be sold in advance and may be purchased as a series of three, any two combinations, or as singles. For more information call Mrs. Walter S. Palmer, 4 Pilgrim dr. Tickets will also be available at the Gateway Travel Service, Inc., 29 Thompson st.

INTERIOR SELLING TIPS

Remember - when you are showing the inside of your home to a prospective buyer, first impressions are lasting and have an important effect on a potential sale.

A clean, well-kept home shows a home that has had good care and has been properly maintained.

Repaint the interior if it needs it, but use neutral colors if possible. An attractive, comfortable living room is a major attraction but a sparkling kitchen will appeal to the lady of the house. It's the heart of any home, so keep it spotless. No dirty dishes. Women are also sensitive about bathrooms; keep them clean and orderly.

Bedrooms are important - arrange their furnishings neatly. Shiny, clean windows not only are a great asset but let sunlight in and brighten the entire atmosphere.

Clean out the clutter in the closets, basement and garage. And, if you have pets, clear them out too when showing.

If you have any questions on this subject or on any other aspect of Real Estate, please feel free to call or drop in at JAMES T. TREFREY, INC., REALTORS, 27 Waterfield Road, Winchester - Tel. 729-6100.

Lenten Luncheons For Shoppers, Merchants Set

Rev. Dean E. Benedict, pastor of the Crawford Memorial United Methodist Church, announces a Lenten program developed by a special task force headed by lay leader Harry L. Emmons. The program began yesterday, Ash Wednesday, with a covered dish supper. Those who attended received holy communion.

Beginning next Wednesday and through April 11 Donald Sowers will lead a study on the Acts of the Apostles. He will use the Book of Acts and materials from "Key 73." The sessions will begin at 7:30 p.m.

On March 28 another covered dish supper will be held beginning at 6:45 p.m.

On March 25 a special evening of music will be held at the Church of the Epiphany featuring the combined choirs of the Winchester churches. This event will be sponsored by the Winchester Ecumenical Association.

On April 17 The Fisherman's Players will present "The Passion," episodes in the life of Christ. This will be held at 2 p.m. at the College Avenue United Methodist Church, Somerville, and at 8 p.m. at the First Baptist Church, Arlington.

On Monday Thursday, April 19, a prayer vigil will be held from 7 a.m. to 7:30 p.m. Members are asked to sign up for half hour segments to be sent in meditation and prayer. At 7:30 p.m. church members will share in the Sacrament of Holy Communion and the service of Tenebrae.

On Tuesday mornings at 6:45 during Lent, beginning next Tuesday, a men's discussion group will be held beginning with a light breakfast. All the men of the church are welcome.

Recollection Days Offer A Time For Prayer

"Death and Resurrection through the Eucharist" is the theme of the day of recollection to be held at the Immaculate Conception Church. Sunday is the day set aside for the men and March 18 for women. This will provide an opportunity for prayerful reflection at the beginning of Lent.

The schedule: 2 p.m., introduction and first conference; 3 p.m., a film on the Eucharist followed by a workshop; 4:15 p.m., confession; 5 p.m., Mass; 6 p.m., buffet supper.

Men who are interested in attending should contact John Stumcke, 17 Brantwood rd., or Rev. Leonard E. Pelletier. Women may contact Mrs. Dorothy Gonsalves, 15 Belmont st., Woburn, or Rev. William J. Cummings.

Following the buffet supper a short meeting of the Holy Name Society will be held to finalize plans for the St. Patrick's day dance to be held in the parish hall.

Perfect Man To Be Explored At Science Church

"Mark the perfect man, and behold the upright: for the end of that man is peace." (Psalms). And Hosea in the Holy Bible states: "Ye are the sons of the living God." Next Sunday in First Church of Christ, Scientist, these verses will be included in the Lesson-Sermon.

Also included will be from "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "Man is spiritual and peffect ... He is the compound idea of God, including all right ideas; ..."

Residents are invited to the 11 a.m. Sunday services and the 8 p.m. Wednesday evening meetings at 114 Church street.

Youth Groups Join To Present Worship Service

This Sunday the Forum and the diaconate of the First Congregational Church will jointly hold a worship at 10:45 a.m., the first such effort by the youth groups. The service climaxes a series of studies by membership on the meaning of worship.

Church members will celebrate the Eucharist (Holy Communion) with Tom Niblock, youth minister, bringing the message. The Forum choir will offer special music.

Town's Religious Educators Elect Sister Patricia

At their fourth gathering professional and lay leaders of religious education in the catholic and protestant churches of Winchester formed the Winchester Association of Religious Educators. Sister Patricia Kelliher of the Immaculate Conception Church was elected chairperson. Mrs. Mildred Allison of the First Baptist Church is recording secretary, and Mrs. Barbara Marshman of the Unitarian Church is corresponding secretary.

The formalization of this group came as a direct result of an ecumenical night sponsored by the Winchester Ecumenical Association last November when all departments and committees of the town's churches met in common interest groups to pool ideas and resources. This group, responsible for the religious education of children, found they have much in common; both in terms of interest and human fellowship.

Plans are nearly complete for a "Spring Thing on Creative Teaching" to be held on April 29 from 6:30 to 9:15 p.m. in the Unitarian Church.

The following have accepted active roles in the new association: Mrs. Betty Matthews of the First Baptist Church; Mrs. Barbara Jopling and the Rev. George Easton of the First Congregational Church; Mrs. Betsy Bishop, Church of the Epiphany; Mrs. Carolyn Dettinger, Crawford Memorial United Methodist Church; Stephen Beirne of St. Eulalia's and Mrs. Patricia Scannnell of St. Mary's Church.

Clara Barton To Be Honored At Unitarian Church Sunday

The life and work of Clara Barton, founder and patron saint of the American Red Cross, will be given special recognition at the Winchester Unitarian Church Sunday morning service.

Born 151 years ago to a Universalist family in Oxford, Miss Barton at the outbreak of the Civil War resigned a clerkship in Washington to nurse the war wounded. Through the nursing service that she instituted she became known as "the angel of the battlefield."

Her experience in the Civil War and the Franco-Prussian War educated the American public to organize and support Red Cross work. For 20 years she acted as the first president of the American Red Cross, extending its work to civilian relief -- in famine, floods, earthquakes, and riots.

To honor Miss Barton, Rev. Jack Zoerheide will introduce Clara Barton in the person of Corrine Van Allstine of Auburndale who, in authentic costume, will dramatically portray some of the highlights of Clara Barton's life.

The service will have special significance in view of the work of the Winchester Chapter of the American Red Cross which attracts so many local volunteers through its first aid and water safety programs, the blood program with its record-breaking support, and its active transportation service through which volunteers take patients to hospitals and clinics. Also, its service to military families, acting as liaison between the military establishment and the families of servicemen, and its youth program enlisting the support of students for service at veterans' hospitals.

Last year the Winchester Chapter, in the true spirit of Clara Barton, raised over $2,500 for hurricane relief in Pennsylvania, greatly exceeding its quota, and this winter over $1,300 for Nicaraguan relief.

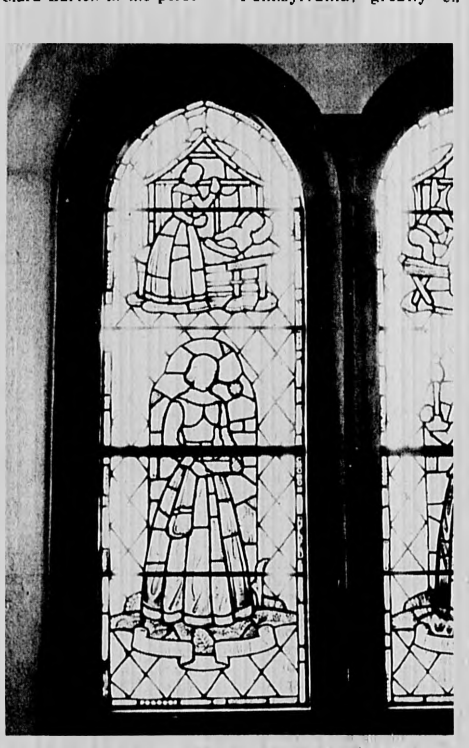
Special recognition will be given to the eight Red Cross stained glass windows in the cloister of the church, designed by Wilbur Burnham and given by Mrs. Arthur Kelley and the late Mr. Kelley as a memorial to their daughter, Dawn Kelley Bartlett who as a Red Cross staff assistant died in Okinawa in the Second World War.

The windows are said to be among the first windows in this country to include the Red Cross symbol in an ecclesiastical grouping. They show Jesus and Mary, the Good Samaritan, as well as Florence Nightingale and Clara Barton.

"Take Courage from Clara" is the title of the dramatic presentation expressing the philosphy of Clara Barton. Assisting Mrs. Van Allstine will be Mrs. Percy H. Hill, Mrs. Irving W. Dingwell, Jr. Mrs. James O. McIntosh, Mrs. Thomas Anderson and Mrs. James Detore, all in costume. The pulpit drama presentation will be directed by Mrs. Ganson Taggart.

Music director Mary Ranton Witham will be in charge of the music. The folk singing group will assist with the civil war and women's rights songs of the period. The folk singing group includes Bob and Diane MacDougall, Nancy Cunningham, Jean Williams, Faith Waltman, Gordon McIntosh, Tom Bird, Bob Bird, Cindy White, Linda Tregeser, Eve Linson, Becca Linson, Wendy Klug, Lisa Hill, Andrea Fritch, Vernon Fritch, Lisa Jeffery, Wendy VonRosenvinge, Lorrie Goldin, Eric Johannessen, Larry Rainey and Larry Stoddard.

The senior choir, assisting in the service, includes Monty Aiken, Alma Brotherston, Dolly Bryant, Lynwood Bryant, Joshn Baldwin, Wallace Blanchard, Stevenson Davies, Nancy Hemmerich, Justine King, Janet Burbank, Linda Nichols, Richard Lawrance, Rolf Wundt, Steve Parkhurst, Betsey Ewing, Nancy Cunningham and Jack Zarker.



SUNDAY SERVICES at the Unitarian Church will recognize founder and patron saint of the American Red Cross. This Clara Barton stained glass window is one of eight in the cloister of the Unitarian Church featuring the spirit of Red Cross and honoring the memory of Dawn Kelley Bartlett who died in Okinawa in 1945.

Decor 'n Design

by Paul Flanagan
The way you decorate your windows can regulate light, muffle sound, assure privacy, correct architectural defects and shape a room's character ... Above all pretty windows make a pretty room, even of one with little going for it otherwise ... Windows close together in a wall can be treated as one big window ... You have multiple choices ... Where light control and privacy are important, shutters or blinds offer one happy advantage: They do away with the bunching of fabric ... A false wall built just inside a wall of windows is a good way to camouflage their sizes and shapes, even to create the illusion of one wide sweep of glass ... There are any number of ways to decorate your windows depending upon what you want to accomplish .....

To My Fellow Citizens:

This brief note is written to express my heartfelt appreciation and thanks to everyone who took part in the recent election: Those who actually went to the polls and voted, the other candidates and their campaign workers, and all who did volunteer work on Election Day. A special word of thanks goes to all who gave so much of their time and ability to my own campaign for Selectman.

The dedicated activity of so many of our citizens is evidence that "participatory politics" can be something more than a slogan in our Town.

Very truly yours,

Town Tour

EXPLAINING WHY Fire Department budget should not be cut is Selectman John J. Sullivan. Town meeting members and other selectmen listen during a tour of the town Saturday.

Officials To Seek Delay Of Town Meeting; Incomplete Reports Cause Of Problem

The Board of Selectmen tonight will ask the town meeting scheduled to begin at 7:45 p.m. to postpone their meeting for a week because of incomplete town reports.

The decision to seek a delay in the start of the meeting was made at a private session Tuesday night behind locked Town Hall doors. In attendance were Selectmen Paul F. Amico, William G. Chapman Jr., Arthur E. Dunbar, Town Moderator Raymond J. Kenney Jr. and Finance Committee Chairman Lawrence T. Smith.

At an open-door special meeting earlier in the night, Town Meeting Member Arthur J. Hewis Jr. of Prec. 1 requested the three selectmen to recommend postponement to the town meeting tonight. Chairman Amico told Hewis the board would decide what to do tonight.

This turnaround in what the selectmen said publicly and what they decided in private session after adjournment of their special meeting apparently came as a result of conferring with Smith and Kenney.

The other two members of the Board of Selectmen, John J. Sullivan and Vito Giarrizzo, were not at either the public or private session.

Wednesday morning Rep. Harrison Chadwick was asked by The Star if he recalled a town meeting being postponed. Chadwick said in his 16 years as moderator the only postponement was once, because of a severe blizzard.

Amico, contacted by The Star, called the private meeting a "coordinating session." He said there were no votes taken, that there was no formal meeting of the board.

He said all three selectmen and the moderator and Finance chairman were "in accord" with the decision to seek a delay. Amico added that the delay should give town meeting members the information they require. This, he said, "will avoid confusion."

He said the extra week should be enough time for the Finance Committee to prepare a handout to give to the members. According to Finance Chairman Smith, this handout would contain a prediction on the tax rate.

Amico said a number of budgets not previously evaluated by Finance may be included in the handout. Stating that Hewis had some valid points to make in his criticism, Amico said there are a lot of uncertainties at this point and a week's delay will in the end "save time."

The town meeting can only be postponed by majority vote of the town meeting

When Will It Begin?

At this time of year the usual question town meeting members ask themselves is: How long will it last this year?

But this year meeting members will be asking themselves a new question: When will it begin?

Town officials are seeking a delay in the start of the meeting to March 22. Arthur J. Hewis Jr., the man who nudged the officials to seek that delay, doesn't want the meeting to convene until March 26.

He says needed reports won't be ready until that date. The officials feel the members will have enough information to begin their business on the 22d. Hewis says he will seek to amend the Board of Selectmen's motion on delaying the start to his preferred date.

In any case, whenever the meeting does convene, members will be asked to act on a number of items of major concern.

Hewis Claims Laws Violated

Arthur J. Hewis Jr. of Prec. 1 has won a victory in his request to the Board of Selectmen that the town meeting be delayed.

Though the board at a special meeting Tuesday night took no action on his request, in a later session with other town officials they agreed to seek support to delay the start of the town meeting.

Appearing before a special meeting of the Board of Selectmen Tuesday night, Hewis appealed to the three selectmen present — Paul F. Amico, William G. Chapman Jr., Arthur E. Dunbar — to support him in the interest of "diplomacy."

Failing to receive the selectmen's support, Hewis said he would consult with his lawyer in the morning to see if legal action would be his next step.

Hewis maintains that because the town treasurer and town comptroller reports, and

Finance Tells Selectmen: 'Clean Your Own Carpets'; Leonard Pool Gets Nod

The Finance Committee and the Board of Selectmen met jointly Monday night to discuss their budget differences and covered one topic both sides found amusing: Who should shampoo Town Hall carpeting.

Finance is recommending to town meeting that $500 be cut the budget for carpet cleaning. Paul F. Amico, chairman of the Board of Selectmen, asked: "Can you convince me why you don't think it appropriate to clean the rugs this year?"

Finance member Barbara Hankins: "Yes, as the lady on the committee, I think I can answer. You can rent a shampooer and do it yourself."

To which the selectmen's executive secretary Edward F. Donnelly replied that he had been advised by those knowledgeable about such matters that non-professionals might cause damage--for example, might use too much water and wreck the seams.

Hankins: "If someone wrecks the carpet and you have to spend $200 to repair it, you are still $300 ahead."

Finance chairman Lawrence T. Smith said he recently had a carpet installed in his kitchen and was advised "renting shampooing equipment is the right way to go."

Finance maintains the selectmen have sufficient staff to do the job. The selectmen say they do not.

As with most of the differences discussed Monday night, there was no bridging of the ways. In fact, there were heated words exchanged between some members of both boards over the other's reluctance to discuss their positions.

Chairman Amico at one point urged that politics stay out of discussion. "This is not a politically motivated town."

Finance member Mark A. Lombardi countered: "I think that remark is out of order."

The Finance Committee is now working on a tax rate hike of $3.92, hoping to whittle it down. The committee Monday voted to recommend its approval for appropriating funds for reconstruction of Leonard Pool, hoping that the $190,000 cost may be offset through a saving this year in the snow and ice budget.

Finance member Benjamin C. Davis figured the town is saving $125,000 ($5,000 per inch of snow) this year because of the extremely mild winter. Where the money would come from - revenue sharing, reserve cash or appropriation--remains to be resolved.

Earlier in the evening the Leonard Pool Study Committee met with the selectmen and said the earliest re-construction of the pool could begin would be Aug. 9. A special town meeting would have to be held in June. The committee several months ago had hoped for a special meeting within the annual meeting beginning tonight but that's impossible.

Leonard Pool Committee on March 22 will ask the annual meeting to approve $8,500 for completion of specifications. The last annual meeting approved another $8,500 for specifications.

The L-shaped summer-only pool would have a diving area and a renovated bath house. The committee is investigating federal funding. Chairman Duane M. Belden said the Park Department would turn the area into a park with limited parking.

Belden estimated the pool at $120,000, area improvements at $30,000 and bath house renovation at $40,000.

Finance refused to restore money in the election and registration budget for filling a vacancy in the Town Clerk's office Chairman Smith said during the next 18 months--the town's budgets are being prepared for 18 months--election activity will be minimal.

The selectmen also appealed to Finance to restore money in its budget for maintenance of town-owned property. Finance is recommending a cut of $1,250, from $3,425 to $2,175. Amico said the board wants to keep the property--mostly houses--in basic shape until the town decides what to do with them. "We can't be slum landlords, that's for sure," he said.

Executive secretary Donnelly said some of the money goes for upkeep of Wedgemere Station, where vandalism last year cost $600-$700. Finance gave no indication what it will do on these matters.

Chairman Smith said the committee "would be willing to reconsider and submit the entire amount of the dog officer's requested budget of $4,500.

As for the Fire Dept., Smith said the selectmen have no hope of restoration of $1,184 for chief's holiday pay and $9,550 for other overtime.

Smith said the cut in overtime could come out of money for summer vacation help and a man from the West Side station could cover at the central station to offset reduced manpower there.

Also to be reconsidered by Finance is their recommended cut of $1,615 for public celebrations. The money would be used to hire bands for Memorial Day parade. Amico: "Gentlemen, this is like motherhood. In this town there are very few community activities that hold people together."

The selectmen wish to hire a band because they lost one when Immaculate Conception School closed. Smith, noting the end of the war, said: "This item is one we will discuss."

School Budget Hearing Mar. 23

A second open hearing to discuss the proposed $10.5 million 18-month Winchester school budget will be held March 23 at Sanborn House. This budget is $40,000 less than originally proposed by the School Committee, reduced after cooperative work by the Finance and School Committees.

According to the report of the Finance Committee to the annual town meeting, the major increases in the budget includes an improvement in the teaching staff at the junior high schools to bring that instructional level more in line with elementary and high schools in the system.

Recommended new personnel includes: music specialist, $9,162; half time speech therapist, $5,350; half time elementary counselor, $5,450; high school counselor, $10,900; seven and three-fifths teachers at McCall Junior High, $70,186; two and two-fifths teachers at Lynch Junior High, $22,164; clerk aide at McCall Junior High, $4,850; nine and three-fourths custodians at McCall, old high school and senior high school, $63,748; maintenance mechanic, $12,038; and lunchroom supervisors (nine supervisors and 37 regular) at $36,902 for a total of $225,700 for new pesonnel.

The budget also includes necessary staffing and facilities in anticipation of the closing of St. Mary's School and the relocation of those estimated students into the school system, according to the Finance Committee report.

A third area of increased expense is the

Bonnell Says Water Will Still Flow

Bonnell Motors proposed relocation site on Cambridge street will not interrupt the flow of water to Winter Pond, according to a spokesman for the firm's planning company.

Thomas Murphy of Carlson Construction Co. of Newton said culverts would direct the flow of water into an existing brook alongside the Bonnell property at 339-353 Cambridge st.

Murphy said, "In general, that area appears to be a water retention area of some sort." He said some water overflow from the other side of Cambridge street comes into the Bonnell property. This runoff would be allowed to continue its flow through the Bonnell land by the use of the proposed drainage system.

The firm — designers, engineers and builders — will present a final plan to the Winchester Conservation Commission.

An article before the annual town meeting seeks to rezone the six-acre site from single residence to business district to allow the Winchester and Woburn Bonnell Ford agencies to combine into a single business.

Ralph Bonnell of the Winchester agency said-if the land is determined to come under protection by the inlands wetland act, "We'll conform to every letter of the law." He said he has been informed by town officials concerned with conservation that when the property is developed and hot-topped a proper drainage system will insure continued water flow for nearby Winter Pond.

The Bonnell land is considered a major source of water for Winter Pond.

Bonnell said there is no fear of pollution of the pond from the automobile agency.

Bonnell added that there is no clear link between what is believed to be an oil spill in the pond with the oil that recently spilled from an overturned truck at Woburn Plaza. The Fire Department washed the truck-spilled oil into drains on Cambridge street.

"We would never spill oil," he said.

The Board of Selectmen has taken no position on the proposal, waiting for the Planning Board to make a recommendation before taking a position.

The Finance Committee, which has recommended unfavorable action, qualifies its position, according to Chairman Lawrence T. Smith, by stating it is not opposed to the agency locating at the site but feels a decision on the relocation should take place after the Planning Board zoning by-law is — "hopefully" — adopted.

"As long as the Planning Board is close to

A 'New' Building For Winchester; Remember The Old Laundry Place?

The old laundry building on Converse place in Winchester Center has been transformed into a modern structure of medical suites and offices to become one of the town's largest office buildings.

A ribbon-cutting ceremony at dusk last Friday officially opened the glistening new building to the approving eyes of several hundred guests who strolled through the four-story building, drinks in hand.

The man behind the transformation is Richard W. Schmader, a manufacturing consultant with an office in his new building, which he has given a new name: The Mill Pond Building.

Workmen are now finishing the offices, laying carpets, installing equipment and erecting paneling. It takes imagination to remember that last summer all that was standing on the site were the steel supports from the old laundry building.

Schmader had all the walls in the 50-year-old building knocked out, leaving only the hulk. Idle for many years after New England Laundry closed, many persons were interested in converting the structure into other uses. Apartments and offices were frequently discussed.

Active in Winchester Hospital planning, Schmader saw the need for additional doctor's space in town, went to Dr. James McDonough, former president of the hospital's medical staff and now president of the Massachusetts Medical Society, and received a blessing to go ahead.

Richard J. Donovan of Winchester was selected to assist in the architectural planning and was the general contractor for the conversion. The building has over 10,000 square feet of usable office space. The only non-medical office is Schmader's.

The other offices and suites are occupied by: Dr. Frank D. Bates, M.D., J. Douglas Murray, D.D.S (peridontist), North Shore Radiological Associates, Inc., Lawrence F. Quigley, Jr., D.M.D., Middlesex Urological Associates, Inc., Richard E. Stiles, M.D., Paul F. Kelly, M.D., Robert M. Spellman, M.D., Northeast Orthopedics, Inc., William L. Kermond, M.D., Robert Poss, M.D., Arthur L. Boland, M.D., Enaco Laboratories, Albert L. Muggia, M.D., and Edward L. Sleeper, D.D.S.

Eventually the "lower concourse" basement will be developed, Schmader said. The building is of first class construction and has been designed, according to Schmader, to conform to existing and future building codes.

Schmader assisted the doctors in the laying out of their office plans. His consultant background was helpful in planning for maximum efficiency in foot traffic. The building presented many challenges in conversion.

For example, 13-foot ceilings were turned into an advantage. Lower drop ceilings were installed and the area between the drop ceiling and the old ceiling was used for air conditioning ducts. Medical office buildings, explained Schmader, require complete temperature control.

A 60-ton air conditioning unit is located on the roof.

Schmader's association with the medical profession began when he was a pre-med student. An interest in medical instruments led him to the American Optical Co. in Southbridge where he became general manager. He left this company in 1956 and became associated with International Equipment Co. in Brighton.

By 1966, Schmader had put an investment group together and purchased the Brighton firm. In 1968, with an annual sales of $10 million, it merged with the Damon Corp. Schmader was then the chief executive officer of International Equipment.

He left Damon in 1970 "primarily to do something different. I wanted to change paces." He founded Schmader Associates, a manufacturing consultant firm which, as Schmader fondly puts it, is a doctor for sick companies.

Schmader Associates advises firms on how to rescue their companies financially. It deals only with manufacturing companies and only with those in the $1 million to $20 million sales range.

Schmader, 50 years of age, says the

Town Meeting Is Expected To Aggravate WHS Parking

After sign posting, painting and chains across Nelson st. the Winchester School Committee admitted it was "back where we started" Monday night regarding the parking problem at Winchester High School. And Town Meeting sessions there are expected to aggravate that problem.

Committeemen issued a plea that persons not park in the fire lanes during the evening meetings. At this point the greatest problem with illegally parked cars had come in the evenings. Despite previous efforts with paint, signs, etc., the regulations are being ignored.

The fire chief in chief of police have complained about this situation, however, since these are private ways, their departments apparently have no power of supervision here. The Committee is considering such measures as towing, window stickers, etc.

Other news pertaining to the 1973 Annual Town Meeting brought up Monday night included the scheduling of a second school budget hearing for March 23 in Sanborn House.

Richard B. Lawrance, School Committeeman and an advisor to the WHS radio station, told his audience that the station will not be able to broadcast sessions of the Town Meeting until it receives a license to operate, not anticipated for a least 10 days.

While the studio is located at the high school, the tower has been moved to Sanborn House, which is expected to provide better reception for all townspeople on 91.9. He added that the student-run radio station has received much citizen aide, including $1,000-2,000 in professional effort.

Votes were taken on two motions concerning use of tennis courts at the high school, a matter touched upon in the Town Meeting Warrant. Approval was given for use of these courts by the Recreation and Park Departments when not being put to educational purposes with the stipulation that these departments provide supervision during those times.

Also granted was a measure allowing Park or Recreation to have lighting erected at this location when the School Committee assumes ownership of the high school building (It is now owned by the Permanent Building Committee), providing that the Town Meeting authorizes funding of this project.

Installation of lighting will cost less under the auspices of the School Department. It will then be sub-metered, so that the electricity will not be billed to the Schools. Committeeman Robert T. Pritchard, who is the representative to the Recreation Committee, stated that he believes those two departments intend to enlarge the courts when the lighting work is done.

Gymnastics Cancelled

The Recreation Department has cancelled girls' gymnastics classes for grades 3-9 Saturday morning at Lynch Junior High School because of activities at the school Friday night.

The regular classes will resume March 31.

Dangerous Drug Course Completed By Sgt. R. Roy

Sergeant -Inspector Roland J. Roy of the Winchester Police Department recently completed his third course offered by the Federal Bureau of Narcotics and Dangerous Drugs.

The two-week course, which extended from Jan. 15 to 26, was held in Framingham for a class of 50 officers from throughout Massachusetts.

The lectures, discussions, demonstrations and study composing the course involved drug investigation techniques, narcotic and dangerous drug identification and attention to organized crimes, pharmacology and legal aspects. Such classes are conducted for police officers throughout the country.

Other training courses attended by Sgt. Roy include one offered by the State Attorney General and another two by the Bureau of Narcotics.

Proposed legislation expected to be of greatest concern this year deals with extension of the dog leash law, improving the town's contribution to employees' health insurance, selling certain School Department properties "not needed for the purpose for which they were purchased," transferring McManus House at 465 Main st. from the School Committee to the selectmen for use as a center for senior citizens and the perennial issue, taxes.

reports from the Finance Committee on recommendations of certain department budgets have not been submitted, the town meeting members will not be able to make judgments how money should be spent.

He said some members, including himself, will be unable to make motions because they don't know how much money is in the stabilization, general surplus and revenue sharing accounts.

Hewis, asking for postponement of the meeting until March 26, said the Finance Committee report was not delivered before the seventh day preceding town meeting as required, that it doesn't include certain information as required and that it doesn't make required recommendations.

He said, in addition, that as a result of these failings, the selectmen, town clerk, comptroller, registrars of voters, Personnel Board and other budgetary departments are in violation of state or town law.

"As a result of this total lack of responsibility of various elected or appointed officials to carry out the duties required of them ... the malfeasance, misfeasance or nonfeasance of the same makes it imperative that the town meeting ... be adjourned to a sufficient time for these errors of commission or omission to be corrected."

Chairman Amico said that because two selectmen were absent, action on Hewis's request would be delayed until tonight.

The board met with Treasurer Marguerite H. Troop and Comptroller James Costello prior to Hewis's remarks to find out the reasons for the dealys in their reports.

Treasurer Troop said she will be ready to send Costello her receipts figures this week. Ten days after that Costello could send them to the printer.

Reasons for the delays appeared to be increased workload — "I just don't know where to start next," Troop said — billing errors from the Registry of Motor Vehicles and antiquated accounting procedures.

The special meeting adjourned at 9 p.m. but the selectmen were still in the board room at 10:30 p.m. They were joined by Moderator Raymond J. Kenney and Lawrence T. Smith. The Town Hall doors, however, were locked to the public.

Letters To The Editor

About Letters...

This page is a forum for readers of The Star to express themselves. Readers who wish to make a point on any subject may write a letter to the editor of The Star, 3 Church st.

Letters should be typed and double spaced. Please type on one side of the paper only. Letters must be signed and include the writer's address.

Letters should be as short as possible. If they exceed 250 words in length they will be condensed by the editor.

Fire Dept. Praise

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

The Winchester Fire Department should be congratulated for its skilled handling of last Wednesday's train fire on the Winchester Station overpass.

It so happened that at the time, I was the only person standing on the southbound platform in a spot where it was possible to view the entire incident. I watched the northbound 4:08 pull into the station and the Winchester commuters descend and proceed down the ramp.

Suddenly, I noticed a glow under the second car on my side of the train which immediately burst into flames. As passengers were still seated inside and those who had left kept on moving down the ramp, I realized that no one on that side of the tracks could see the fire. I tried to call but the engine was running and no one heard me. The flames were spreading but there was absolutely no sign of smoke. It really was weird.

The telephone on the platform was locked as were the doors inside the waiting room. In those two or three minutes, it was a helpless feeling to be up there on that platform alone with no way of communicating with anyone. I even tried to attract attention in the railroad tower but no one saw me.

In a few minues several boys who were running up and down the ramp came near enough to hear me and we finally attracted the attention of someone inside the Ted Charles Music Agency which faces the platform. Someone there phoned the fire department.

The department did an unbelievable job reaching that inaccessible spot for there was no more than two feet between the train and the wire fence. However, the first fireman to appear managed to get through with their hoses kneeling in almost precarious position if any sudden explosion or flash flames had occured.

It was an exciting half hour and I would like to commend Chief Amico, Captain Dalton and the other men.

Cynthia L. Barone

A Thank You

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

I want to thank you, the editor, very much for having my letter published in The Winchester Star, and I want to thank all the wonderful people from Winchester and surrounding areas for sending me get-well cards, letters and birthday cards. I received a good bit of mail and it sure made me, a disabled veteran, very happy.

I am the man that had four operations before I had my left leg amputated, and I had seven more operations after I had my left leg amputated. I am a disabled veteran of World War II. Anyone still wishing to send me a get-well card or an anniversary card would make me very happy. My 25th wedding anniversary is on the 17th of March.

Mary Haggerty

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

Enclosed please find a letter directed to Mrs. Mary A. Haggerty relative to her retirement, which will be effective March 31, 1973.

Her dedication and faithful service to the Town of Winchester is worthy of note.

Vartkes K. Karaian

Dear Mrs. Haggerty:

Your letter of resignation dated Jan. 31, 1973, was presented to the Board of Health at its recent meeting on February 21, 1973, and the board voted to accept with regret your resignation.

The Board of Health is pleased to have had your continued and dedicated service as clerk for the past years beginning in December 1943.

This board and members of the staff extend to you our very best wishes for good health and happiness in your retirement.

Very truly yours,
Vartkes K. Karaian

On Directory

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

I think it would be a great mistake for you to drop your church directory as it is fo great value to church goers here, and also to strangers not yet acquainted with the church hours in Wincheser.

I have been annoyed in other unfamiliar places and at newspapers to find no statement as to a church's denomination, time of service or name of minister.

Please don't leave us uninformed of our Sunday and other services. They are an important part of life.

Helen A. Hall
9 Summit ave.

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

May I add my name to the list of those protesting the elimination of the church directory in the Star.

Considering the quality of the clergy and laymen in Winchester it might be increased rather than diminished.

Marion F. Whitten
15 Everttt ave.

EDITOR'S NOTE: We agree that church news might be increased rather than diminished and this is why we began eliminating the church directory in the first place to make room for church news for which there previously was not space. We have condensed the directory to include the name of the chief clergyman and the hours of worship services and church school and will run it in The Star on the church page at least once a month and other weeks as space permits.

Thank You Note

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

Anna Shields wishes to thank everybody who made her stay for five weeks at the Winchester Hospital a little easier with all the beautiful cards, plants and flowers. The flowers and candy on Valentine's Day sure made her heart feel a lot better. Thank you all again.

The Winchester Voter

(The "Winchester Voter" is a series written by the League of Women Voters to acquaint readers with town voting practices and issues.)

When town meeting opens, very much in evidence among the members will be the Finance Committee report, more popular even than the town warrant. What is this document, and why do so many town meeting members consider it indispensable for ready reference during the evening?

Since 1947 Winchester has had a Finance Committee composed of 15 members who serve three-year overlapping terms. All 15 are voting members of the town meeting. They are appointed by a committee consisting of the moderator, the outgoing chairman of the Board of Selectmen, and the retiring chairman of the Finance Committee.

It is the duty of the Finance Committee to consider all business, whether or not of a financial nature, proposed for action at town meeting. Their report on such business is printed and distributed to all residents at least seven days before town meeting opens. It is the result of their careful examination of all proposed budgets and special articles in the warrant.

The committee is divided into subcommittees to review the 60 budgets of the town administration, each subcommittee studying a certain number of budgets and conferring with the heads of these departments. There are subcommittees for general administration—the total budget; community service—Planning Board, Library, Building Department, Assessors, etc.; protection—police, fire, school traffic, civil defense; public works—engineering, highway, sewer, forestry, etc.; health, charities, veterans; education; parks and recreation; financial—comptroller, workmen's compensation, reserve fund, etc.; capital planning—oversees long-range planning done by the town though it has no budget.

The number of subcommittee members varies with the number of budgets it oversees, but as a general rule each Finance Committee member serves on three subcommittees, headed by a chairman.

From Nov. 1 through town meeting the Finance Committee meets each Monday and Thursday evenings. The subcommittees meet when necessary. When the departmental budgets are submitted during the first few weeks of the year, there are even more meetings.

Another function of the Finance Committee members is to serve as representatives in bargaining sessions with associations of town employees. There are many such associations: teachers, custodians, school secretaries, town employees, police town hall clerical associates. These meetings are seasonal; the length of contracts varies, some being for two years, some for seven months, some for one year.

The committee works frequently with the comptroller, consulting him on the budgets and asking him to sit in on their meetings.

Finance Committee members serve without pay and after a full day of work at their own places of employment. After reviewing their schedules, one can only conclude that it is a labor of love. But their efforts are not in vain, for when the chairman stands at the podium to say, 'Mr. Moderator, the Finance Committee recommends favorable (or unfavorable) action," we are all influenced in our own votes.

HOUSEBREAK

The Winchester Police Department was awarded two grants from the Massachusetts Committee on Law Enforcement totaling $39,000. Since October of 1970 study and implementation phases of the project, "Comprehensive Attacks on Burglary," have been progressing within the town. In connection with this heightened focus on burglary, the Department will present "Housebreak," a column suggesting ways in which Winchester residents may assist these efforts against crime, in weeks to come through The Star. Look for it.....follow it.....it's for you.

When away in the winter have walkways shoveled, and in the summer have the lawn mowed. When not done, these omissions are dead giveaways to a burglar that no one is home. Also, have mail picked up and newspapers canceled.

Homeowners Engraving Identification stickers serve as reminders to would-be burglars that your house is protected even while you are gone, too.

Chief Pulls A 'False Alarm' To The Delight Of Town Meeting Members In Tour

By Arthur MacDonnell
Editor of The Star

Saturday's tour of town facilities conducted by the selectmen so town meeting members would be aware of the need of appropriating money for certain things the board feels the town requires was fairly bland. The only real spark of the 3½ hour tour came at the fire station when Selectman John J. Sullivan said cuts in the Fire Department budget recommended by the Finance Committee would reduce the town's fire protection.

With Finance Chairman Lawrence T. Smith among the 50 or 60 guests, Sullivan said Finance's cuts would reduce by one man the number of firefighters responding to a fire. Smith, who as a result of last week's election will shortly become a selectman, maintains Finance's recommended cuts can be absorbed by reducing overtime hours, the hiring of temporary help and similar categories.

Sullivan said Fire Chief I. Francis Amico, who has "the opinion he should have additional men," doesn't think it wise to send a vehicle out with less than three men on it. There are three fire engines in the central station routinely responding to a call.

Unhappily for many on the tour, no real alrm came in while the town meeting members were finding out how a Fire Department works.

But to the great excitement of everyone, Chief Amico did simulate an alarm, complete with sirens and bells and men sliding down poles. It took about 30 seconds from the time the "alarm" came in for the men to be ready to leave the station with their engines roaring.

A couple of recent fires, by the way, couldn't have come at a more fortuitous time for Amico, who with the selectmen will be asking the town meeting for a major purchase of new equipment. Both the St. Mary's and Winchester Station Buddliner fires could have been major ones if they hadn't been contained quickly.

The annual town meeting begins tonight and if there are any bookmakers in town it would be interesting to know what kind of figures they would give as to how long the sessions will continue. Winchester meetings are notorious for their longevity, mostly it seems because a few members feel the need to edify the audience with their thoughts on every single item. If other towns can conduct their town meetings in reasonable time periods there's no reason Winchester can't. Though the town meeting would be loath to do it, perhaps a further limitation on speaking is the answer.

Paul F. Amico, a town meeting member and chairman of the Board of Selectmen, said jokingly the other day he hopes the town meeting doesn't last too long so he can leave office. Amico didn't run for a third term. He remains in office until town meeting concludes.

Last week's town election contained few surprises in a town of far too few political surprises. It seems almost de rigeur that the chairman of the Finance Committee is automatically elected to the Board of Selectmen if he chooses. With only 33 percent of the voters caring enough to show up at the polls in perfect weather, the successful candidates can hardly be called representative of the electorate.

The number of persons running for office can only be termed disgraceful. Such apathy may result in Winchester joining the growing number of New England communities abolishing town meeting, a form of government the rest of the country envies. Town meeting has survived wars, depression and every other social phenomena of the last 300 years. But the question is written broadly on the horizon: Will town meeting survive the lure of television and mass viewing of men bumping into each other, often referred to as spectator sports.

By the way, if you'd care to hear some bumping of thoughts—as mundane as budgets and fire equipment might be—go to the new high school tonight after 8 o'clock. You don't have to be a town meeting member to attend. Maybe what you will hear will get you so angry ("He doesn't know what he's talking about") that you'll run for town meeting member next year and there will be enough candidates to insure a contest for every seat. There were almost no contests this year. Vacancies left unfilled after the election are filled by vote of the town meeting members from each precinct. Democracy in action?

Though the town meeting is slated to begin at 7:45 it's always a bit later before things get started.

The Star recently dropped for two weeks its directory of temples and churches with the thought that the directory never changes and those who wished to refer to it weekly could cut it out and save it and the large amount of space taken by the directory would be better served by printing more news about temple and church activities.

The amount of mail and telephone calls prompt the newspaper to restore the directory, albeit in a shortened version. We will now try very hard to include it weekly.

Most of the telephone callers were very polite and offered thoughtful comments why the directory should remain. But one woman was so abusive that The Star writer who took the call was later heard to remark: "Wow. That woman really needs to go to church."

House Demolished

The picture in last week's Star of the "home of Mrs. Charles Hall, Main st., Cutter Village," which the Historical Society was interested in finding out about has prompted the following responses:

Sherman R. Josephson, realtor, of 824 Main st.: The house was demolished 10 to 15 years ago. It was owned by former assessor Pat Foley. The Foley homestead was to the left of the new brick building where Kelley & Hawes is now.

Mrs. Edith Lawton of Woburn remembers that when she was a child in Winchester, in 1912 or 1913, a family by the name of Murray lived in the house. She said it was located on Clark street.

Frances Ver Planck, Winchester Historical Society, reports: The charming "Cutter Village" Greek Revival house, with its delicate iron rails, has been replaced now, sadly for historians, by a brick storage warehouse. Recently this was the garage for the Winchester Brake and Wheel Co. After the house was moved from Clark st., Mrs. Virginia (Foley) Graham believes the sequence of owners were Hall, Irving Murray, Michael J. Foley, and finally James Bruno, who bought the Kelly & Hawes business and made the brick garage over into a warehouse. The street number was 788 Main st.

John Pierson remembers that a Mr. Goodhue, who chauffeured for a lady on Prospect st., once lived there.

New Mail Service

Locally deposited mail directed to residents of Winchester will be handled faster under a new service going into affect by the United States Postal Service.

"Improved mail service is being initiated in Winchester to expediate the processing of locally deposited mail designated for delivery within our immediate community," Postmaster Charles R. Hill announced.

The new procedure will retain within the local post office area all locally deposited mail addressed to residents of Winchester. Pressurized bands stamped Winchester, Mass. 01890, will be used to band all mail addressed to local customers.

The banded mail may be deposited in any collection box in town. Collection will separate all local banded mail and deposit it at the local post office for processing and next-day delivery.

Bands will be supplied to all doctors, dentists, businessmen, professional, social and fraternal organizations who generate large mailings to local residents.

In addition, a collection box marked "For Local Mail Only" has been set up in front of the local post office. Customers may deposit locally addressed mail banded or loose in this special box for next-day delivery.

Hill will be available to assist with any mail problems.

Support Pool

Show of strength in support of town meeting article to reconstruct Leonard Pool, off Cross st., was recently taken by neighborhood mothers and their children. The article will be acted on March 22.

Woman Hurt In Police Crash

A Winchester police cruiser chasing a speeding car last Thursday morning collided with another car at Marble and Park streets in Stoneham.

Grace L. Connor, 78, of Stoneham, the driver of the other car, was taken to New England Memorial Hospital. After being in intensive care she is reported to be "doing very well." Winchester Police Officer Frank Manzie was not injured.

According to the police, Manzie was ringing in at the police call box at Forest st. and Forest cir. when he saw a car traveling up Forest street at what he said was an excessive speed.

He pursued the car onto Marble street in Stoneham when the collision with the other car, going southerly on Park street near Route 93, occurred.

Both vehicles were towed from the scene.

In other recent police action, Mrs. Alice Eberle of 84 Hillcrest Parkway reported last week that her home had been entered. A pane of glass was found broken. Taken was $6 from a purse.

members. Members should show up at the new high school so action can be taken.

Chairman Smith said Tuesday's session was not a meeting, it was only "to see if we could get the support of our respective boards and committees." He didn't know why the Town Hall door was locked, thought it was the custodian's usual procedure and said it wasn't intentionally locked by the town officials.

Smith said: "I came out of that meeting without knowing a decision was made. No decision was made except to go back to our boards and ask them for their feelings. It was an informal chat."

bringing in a new zoning by-law," Smith said, "the committee feels it's best to wait until it is presented and adopted before any changes in zoning take place."

He added that the committee has never taken a position on the merits of Bonnell relocating to Cambridge street.

Smith said he feels particular specific rezoning requests should wait until the Planning Board's townwide classification of zoning districts is adopted.

How To Register For Kindergarten

In many of the Winchester school districts kindergarten registration will be conducted in two phases on two separate days.

During the first phase several school specialists and parents have volunteered their services to check each child's vision, hearing, speech and general coordination. Within the next eight weeks parents of incoming kindergarteners from the participating schools will be notified of their appointment date and time.

These appointments have been scheduled during released time afternoons. The second phase of registration will come later in the spring when each school will notify parents of the procedures to follow.

A listing of participating schools and dates follows: Noonan, Feb. 27; Lincoln, March 5; Parkhurst, March 27; Wyman, March 27; Vinson-Owens, Apr. 3; Ambrose, Apr. 3; and Mystic, Apr. 10.

Any parents who have not received notice of an appointment time at least two weeks prior to the date listed for their school should contact Howard Niblock, director of pupil services (729-8850), and an appointment will be arranged.

Some of the participants in this first phase of registration include the school nurses under the direction of Gloria Pearson, and Rachelle Isserow and Sally Fishman, speech therapists. Kindergarten teachers will be present to meet with children and their parents. Volunteers from the Lions' Club and parents' associations will coordinate efforts with the Kiwanis volunteers under the direction of Janice Coakley.

A special committee within the School Department has been meeting since November to formulate plans for this additional program. The members of this committee are Niblock; Paula Caffrey, principal of Noonan School; Andy Allen, principal of Parkhurst School; Margaret Ingram and Joan Grenzeback, school counselors; Judy Hawkes, learning disability coordinator; Linda Atwood and Mary Alice Niles, kindergarten teachers; Sandy Thompson, representative of the Winchester Association of Nursery Schools; Gloria Pearson, Sally Fishman, and Rachelle Isserow.

Assistance has been provided by James Loftus of Kiwanis and Michael Boodakian of the Lions' Club.

by Paul Flanagan
To be really pleasant for dining, a room must be relatively quiet -- the visual quiet of drawn curtains and soft light as well as the absence of clatter ... An over-lit room is a horror ... The temperature of a dining room is also very important ... A too-hot room can take away your appetite ... Before every dinner party, no matter how cold the day, I think the door should be closed and the windows open for at least half an hour ... When you decorate the table, beware of centerpieces with too many flowers in too-big bouquets ... Much more charming is a simple flowering plant in its own clay pot or a little wicker basket -- and please don't have strongly scented flowers ... In this room you almost wish dinner would go on forever...

Visiting Nurses Discuss Prospect Of Regionalization

After a business meeting including reports by chairmen of each committee on duties and functions of groups, given primarily for new members, the meeting was turned over to the education committee chairman Mrs. McClellan who led a discussion on the question of regionalization which calls for each Visiting Nurses' Association to get together with others in their areas to explore the possibility of merger. United Community Services suggests that this might strengthen services and lessen duplication of efforts.

Members of the regionalization study committee offered opinions and stimulated questions and statements from other members. The big question appears to be: How long can the individual town VNA stand the financial burden of best services for the community? It was suggested that by combining with other agencies Winchester VNA could reach its goal of providing best care at the lowest cost. The question of regionalization still remains unanswered.

Merchants Of The Week

Originally A Tailor's, Chitel's Adds Custom Tailoring, Fitting

Chitel's of Winchester at 6 Mt. Vernon st. has been the town's leading store for men's clothing since 1948, when present owner Jack Chitel took over his father's tailoring shop.

Philip Chitel's tailoring business was a small shop in the center that grew into the large store featuring the latest and complete look in men's clothing that is now Chitel's.

This year tailoring has returned to the business. Chitel's has just added a custom tailoring and fitting department for individualized fitting of suits, sport coats and slacks.

"The Door Six" shop is another recent addition, featuring clothing for male and female students. "The Door Six" jeans are more popular with the girls than boys, Chitel's staff reports.

Jack Chitel and manager Bob Freedman make periodic trips to the major national conventions to learn about the coming trends in clothing. They are also members of the Men's Wear Retailers Association and the North Shore Men's Retailers, organizations to keep members up to date with current styles.

Jack Chitel, who was born in Winchester on Elmwood avenue and attended the Winchester schools, has two children and four grandchildren. Well known around town, he played the coronet in the Winton Club productions for many years.

Mr. Chitel keeps up his interest in the coronet by playing Dixieland music. One of the founders of the local Kiwanis, he is past president of that organization and past president of the Winchester Business Association. He is now on the board of directors of the WBA.

His son-in-law, Bob Freedman, came to Chitel's five years ago. A resident of Lexington, he and his wife, Nicki, have two children.

Mr. Chitel remembers with strong feeling the fire that destroyed the store in 1950, 10 days before Christmas. That night he was on a train to New York City and returned with a truck load of new merchandise and opened up nearby 48 hours after the fire.

The store was doubled in size in 1959 and remodeled. Both Mr. Chitel and Mr. Freedman like to emphasize that their customers are free to browse at their own pace without feeling pressured. They feel the shop should be pleasant and comfortable where everyone is welcome. Chitel's offers tasteful free gift wrapping.

Just opening is a new shoe department featuring Bostonian and Johnson & Murphy shoes.

LEARNING ABOUT TOWN GOVERNMENT - John Sullivan, selectman, is one of several speakers who have addressed the Ambrose School social studies classes. Students in the intermediate unit followed town elections and now will keep track of town meeting activities. Fifth and sixth grade students will attend the opening sessions of town meeting, write a warrant and hold a mock town meeting.

Ambrose Students Study Town Meeting

Students in the intermediate unit at the Ambrose School have been following town elections and expect to watch town meeting in Winchester this year in their social studies classes. Through a series of activities and speakers students are learning about election campaigning, the history and form of town meeting, and what town officers do.

Speakers who have talked to Ambrose classes include Mrs. Peter Phillou, member of the Winchester Schools Enrichment Committee; John Sullivan, member of the board of selectmen; Mrs. Robert Oppenheimer, chairman of the League of Women Voters' service committee, and Henry Skehan, of the town finance committee.

In the next two weeks Ambrose fifth and sixth grade students will attend opening sessions of town meeting, write their own warrant for their school community, and participate in a mock town meeting to be organized by Mrs. Richard Thuma, first vice-president of the League of Women Voters.

Late spring plans include a study of the function of town departments and a visit to town hall.

Elementary Lunch Problems Cited

Though "lunch itself has gone fairly well," problems have arisen during the recreation period of the Winchester schools elementary lunch program. Any changes will await September.

Recalling comments from elementary principals, Superintendent of Schools William C. MacDonald said that there was a suggestion that students be alternated between classroom and lunchroom only beginning in April. MacDonald stated that he preferred shortening the lunch period, perhaps to 30 minutes.

No changes will be initiated until the fall opening of schools for reasons of bus contracts, etc. The elementary lunch program has been in effect since January of this year.

WEPA Distributes Incinerator Index

"The Incinerator Index," a pamphlet describing how to use the incinerator area and how to understand Winchester's anti-litter laws, has been prepared for distribution to town residents under the auspices of the Winchester Environmental Protection Agency.

WEPA co-chairman John Moore said the flyer was financed by the Aberjona Civic Association as a public service and will be delivered door-to-door by the girl scouts.

The handy-sized, two color pamphlet, was written by Mrs. Winfield Knopf and Mrs. Ralph Seferian. It capsulizes the town regulations about the disposal of all types of rubbish and restates Winchester's anti-litter laws in plain amusing language.

The cover picture of a "litter bug" was drawn by Anne Bird, a fifth grade pupil at Wyman School.

Copies of the brochure may be obtained from Michael D. Saraco, director of the Board of Health, and from Marjorie Johnson, Winchester's Welcome Wagon hostess who will distribute them to all new residents.

Riley In Choate After Accident

Charles J. Riley, 71, Winchester editor of The Daily Times of Woburn, was injured in an automobile accident last Thursday night shortly after 11 p.m. in a car owned and operated by his brother-in-law Thomas H. Collins of Woburn.

Riley had spent the evening with Collins and his wife and was being driven to his home on Eastern ave., Woburn, when a car reportedly traveling at high speed on Green st. hit the passenger side of Collins' car as it was crossing at the intersection of Green st. and Eastern ave.

Riley and Collins, along with a female passenger in the other vehicle, were taken to the Choate Memorial Hospital.

Riley, who is still in the hospital with soreness around his rib cage and suffering bruises, is reported to be uncomfortable but in good spirits. Collins, shaken up by the incident, was released soon after entering the hospital. His car was a total loss.

Winchester Rink 'Waited Until Next Year 'And Won

By John F. Parrell

The team representing the Winchester Country Club won the national curling title in the week long series of matches held at the World Arena in Denver, Colo., Sunday. The local contingent finished with a 10-1 record to decisively beat out the North Dakota quartet, national champions for the past two years.

It was sweet revenge for the young Winchester rink, all of whom are just 24 years old. It was just a year ago this time that the local youngsters battled through the week-long event to end up with a 9-2 record. Exactly what the defending North Dakota titlists compiled, a playoff was necessary, Although they had defeated the champions 5-4 in regular play, they dropped the final and the title in the playoff.

So, it was the old familiar "wait until next year" and this time there was no need for a playoff. Winchester won it fairly and squarely, as Michigan and then Minnesota beat the champions in the tenth and eleventh draw. Winchester's only loss was at the hands of Alaska.

The final standing of the teams:

Massachusetts	10-1
North Dakota	8-3
Alaska	7-4
Minnesota	7-4
Washington	7-4
Wisconsin	7-4
Illinois	5-6
New York	5-6
Michigan	4-7
Nebraska	3-8
New Jersey	2-9
California	1-10

Barry Blanchard was the lead, with Henry Shean as No. 2, Doug Carlson as vice skip, and Charles Reeves, Jr., as skip. This group has been playing as a unit for several years. If they stay together they figure to be national contenders for many years to come. Besides winning the national championship, Reeves was named to the national all star team in the key position of skip. Many of the other skips have been in world wide competition for many years.

The Winchester rink now goes on to play in the Silver Broom world title curling competition. This event will be held beginning next Monday at the World Arena in Regina, Saskatchewan. Rinks from all over the world are entered to compete. The Winchesterites hope to be at the peak of their game so that they can add the world title to the national one that they picked up in last week's stern competition. If they succeed, they will be only the second United States representative to ever turn the trick.

Top Prospect

John Clair, a senior at Winchester High School, is a top prospect to round out Westmar College's tennis team. The Westmar Eagles began practice last week in preparation for the upcoming season.

The team representing the Winchester Country Club won the national curling title in Denver, Colo., Sunday, after a week of matches involving teams from 10 states. The champs, all 24 and recent college graduates, are Barry Blanchard, lead; Henry Shean, second; Douglas Carlson, mate; and Charles Reeves Jr., skip.

Smiths Win Mixed Pairs Tourney

By Bridgette

Long-time Duplicate Bridge Club members Waveney and Wally Smith were winners of the mixed pairs championship held on March 7. Also playing a fine game and taking second place were Ida Finlay and Dick Sullivan.

The two sections of the championship were run as one-winner Scrambled Mitchells so that any one hand might be played in either the North-South or East-West direction. Above average players were:

Section A

Ida Finlay and Richard Sullivan, 85
Barbara Shea and Anthony Ferdinand, 81½
Dr. and Mrs. Robert Blackler, 77½
Mr. and Mrs. Robert Wassmuth, 75
Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Johnson, 71½
Dolly Pasquale and Paul Portonova, 69½
Donna Redpath and Stephen Haseltine, 67½
Mr. and Mrs. Guy Mingolelli, 66½
Paul Vatter and Lewis Ward, 65
Cathy Alexander and Robert Haskell, 64
Leonora Carty and Anthony Ferdinand, 63

Section B

Dr. and Mrs. Waldron Smith, 87
Natalie Kouyoumjian and Thomas Walsh, 73½
Mr. and Mrs. Norman Houlding, 73
Mr. and Mrs. William Duryea, 71½
Mr. and Mrs. Edward Mansfield, 64
Mr. and Mrs. Paul Cowles, 64
Lillian Sheridan and Michael Scherrer, 64
Miggs Root and Edward Sullivan, 63½

A third section took care of the unmixed partnerships, Carl Galante Jr. directing.

Section C

Anne Galpin and Madalyn Walworth, 39
Stephen Butcher and Gerard Walworth, 36½
Carl Galante Jr., and Carl Fisher, 34
Mary Shannon and Catherine Havican, 31

In the championship game one South member, playing a weak two-bid, promising a six-card suit and from five to eleven high-card points, found Board 19 from Section B tailormade for the bid. South is the dealer with East-West vulnerable.

North

C - A K 10

West

C - Q J 9 8 6 5

South

H - 8 4
D - 9 8 3
C - 7 4

South opened 2S. and after a 3H bid by West, North took over the reins, bidding 4NT, and after South's 5D response, showing one Ace, firmly saying 7S.

And it is obvious that 7S makes with ease.

The bidding, however, is far more difficult if South passes and West bids 3H or 4H before North-South enter the bidding. So in this case, the weak two-bid, often useful as a preemptive bid to use up the opposition's bidding space, gives North just the information he needs for the grand slam bid.

Incidentally, of the seven North-Souths playing the hand, four bid 7S to tie for the top score, one bid 6S, one 4S, and one doubled East-West's 5H.

Four Winchester residents, members of the North Suburban YMCA developmental gymnastic team, participated in the northeast region gymnastic qualifying meet in Wallingford, Conn., recently. They are Kim Shawcross, Dolly Porter, Kitty Smith and Tari Allard.

Kim Shawcross qualified in the all-around category with a score of 22.5. St. Mary's Fire Being Investigated

A fire in a storage closet at St. Mary's School last Thursday has been called "suspicious" by Fire Chief I. Francis Amico and is under investigation by his department, the police and the state fire Marshal's office.

The noon-time fire forced evacuation of the building at 162 Washington st. All of the children got out safely. One of the teaching staff reported seeing smoke coming out from the stage in the auditorium on the first floor.

When firefighters arrived, the building was so dense with smoke the men couldn't locate the blaze immediately. A second alarm was struck because of this delay.

The burning closet was located on the floor beneath the auditorium stage. It contained books and magazines. Firemen removed the burned material to the lawn and hosed it down.

The fire was confined to the closet and a section of the ceiling. Chief Amico said a serious fire was prevented because of the modern construction of the new section of the building housing the auditorium.

Amico said he didn't know the cause of last Wednesday's train fire in Winchester Station. The 4:08 Boston & Maine Buddliner coming from North Station apparently caught fire after leaving Wedgemere Station.

Amico said possible causes included a break in the oil line and a short circuit. The fire was located under the passenger compartment and was confined to one car. Firefighters were hampered by the small amount of space located between a chain link fence and the track.

There were no injuries. The burned car was towed back to North Station.

Mrs. William Barone, a passenger waiting on the other side of the patform, said she watched the train pull in and the commuters get off and proceed down the ramp.

"Then I noticed a glow under the second car on my side of the train which immediately became a real flame.

"The passengers were still sitting inside and those who had left kept moving down the ramp so I realized no one could see the fire. I tried to call but the engine was running and no one heard me! The flames were getting higher but there was absolutely no sign of smoke. It really was weird.

"The telephone on the platform was locked as were the doors inside the waiting room.

Smoke drifts out of St. Mary's School during last week's fire in a closet below the auditorium. Firefighter installs a fan to vent the building.

Real Estate Today

LET AN EXPERT SELL IT

Selling a house in today's highly competitive market is not a do-it-yourself exercise. Your first step should be to place your home with a reliable Realtor and give him an "exclusive" for the first 60 to 90 days. That will give him extra incentive.

"But why a Realtor?" you may ask. "I can sell it myself and save the commission." It's not that simple. For one thing, the typical buyer will expect you to deduct the commission for his benefit - - before you even start serious negotiations. And there are many do-it-yourself pitfalls. Are you prepared for curiosity seekers? Do you have the time and ability to negotiate and bargain? Can you handle the intricacies of financing?

A bona fide Realtor will screen your prospects and give your house maximum exposure; he's familiar with the local market, zoning and financing; and finally, he's usually able to sell it for the best price in the shortest amount of time.

If you have any questions on this subject or on any other aspect of Real Estate, please feel free to call or drop in at JAMES T. TREFREY, INC., REALTORS, 27 Waterfield Road, Winchester - Tel. 729-6100.

★ Budget

supervisory staff necessary to implement the elementary school lunch program that has been mandated by the state as of September 1973.

This latter topic has received much attention by the School Committee, superintendent of schools William MacDonald and parents. At an earlier open hearing on the school budget, led by School Committeeman Stephen Parkhurst, parents indicated concern over the $36,902 expense for lunchroom supervisors.

At the School Committee meeting last Monday night and at a recent Mothers Morning Out group, Supt. MacDonald said the lunch program is fairly successful but has lunch program is fairly successful but has ticularly since children finish their lunch in a short period of time and need supervision during the remaining half hour or so which is used for play. Changes may be made in the fall with regard to rescheduling, he said, but the program will continue as it now is through the spring.

At the earlier budget hearing Richard Pharo, Finance Committee member and School Committeeman-elect, suggested that parents against the lunch program unite and apply to the state for a waiver. Both Parkhurst and Mrs. Mary McQuillan, lunch study committee representative, cautioned against this approach inasmuch as the town may have a better reason for applying for a waiver at a later time in another situation.

The School Committee has also included in the budget money to allow the moving of McCall Junior High School into the newly remodeled old high school on Main st. as of September 1973, and making necessary repairs to the McCall building to use it as an elementary school to be opened in September of this year. Lincoln School will be closed. The School Committee feels that with these changes the building requirements for the school district will be met for years to come.

Nearly $1.4 million of the budget will cover supplies and materials, contractual services and current expenses. Equipment expenses amount to almost $62,000.

Winchester Music Club Meets Sunday

On Sunday at 7 p.m. at the home of Dr. and Mrs. John Mills, 11 Rangeley rd., the Winchester Music Club will greet spring with its fourth program of the 1972-73 season. Mrs. Ira E. Parry, who prepared the program, will follow a tradition of offering club members an opportunity to hear fellow members perform classical instrumental music.

Anyone interested in being a co-host or attending the functions may contact one of the following people prior to March 29: Mrs. Betsy Brickley, Mrs. Gail Burns, Mrs. Polly Driscoll, Mrs. Diana Donnellan, Mrs. Sylvia Jacobson, Mrs. Mary Price, Mrs. Patricia Waite or Mrs. Margaret Wheeler, all of Winchester.

Chairmen of the event are Mr. and Mrs. John Looney 729-1652 of Winchester. There is no admission charge for the evening.

ESP Demonstration In Bedford The 23rd

The Middlesex Community College Celebrity Series will present Russ Burgess, noted parapsychologist, in a lecture demonstration in ESP on March 23rd at 8 p.m. in Building 8, located on the Veterans' Administration Hospital grounds in Bedford.

Burgess, formerly with the Department of Justice, not only reads the unspoken thoughts of the audience but answers with an uncanny knowledge that defies belief. Burgess, who himself has powers of extra sensory perception, has spent years experimenting with this force.

Scholarship Foundation Begins Drive

This week the Winchester Scholarship Foundation will launch its annual drive for funds to provide financial assistance to Winchester students desiring further education. This is the 28th year that the Scholarship Foundation has made this contribution to the life of Winchester.

Starting in 1945 the Scholarship Foundation assisted nine graduates. In 1972 assistance was given to 44 graduating students and 43 graduates of earlier years. This year the need will be even greater.

The objective of the Foundation is to make it possible for every high school graduate to achieve his own personal educational goal. Any citizen who shares that goal can help by sending a donation to Richard Ingersoll, treasurer, at the Winchester Trust Company.

On Dean's List

Three Winchester students attending Westfield State College were named to the dean's list for the first semester. They are Lynda Lyons of 33 Grayson rd., Rhoda Marotta of 28 Tufts rd. and Virginia Johnson of 47 Richardson st.

Accidentally Overheard

Where did the bloomer get its name? It was a costume developed by Amelia Jenks Bloomer in 1849. It consisted of a close-sleeved jacket, a skirt extending slightly below the knee and a pair of loose trousers gathered by elastic bands a little above the ankle. Miss Bloomer was a leader of the Women's Rights Movement of 1849. Bloomers, she said, would emancipate women from the conventions of the day and would add to their health and comfort. Unfortunately for Miss Bloomer, the costume garnered only ridicule. However, many hail bloomers as the predecessor of the pantsuit!

Mill Pond Building

WINCHESTER'S NEWEST PROFESSIONAL BUILDING

The Organization:

Richard J. Donovan, Inc. was organized in 1951 and conducts a general practice in consulting and engineering services, and the design and construction of facilities for private industry, municipalities and power utility companies.

Shortly after establishing residence in Winchester, Dick Donovan started his operations in a single office in its present location. Some 22 years later the firm now occupies some 6000 square feet of floor area in the same building and employs locally about 50 people, a number of whom are town residents. The personnel in this office consist primarily of engineers, draftsmen, technicians, clerical and administrative types. Construction and field personnel vary with the workload and the season, with key supervisory personnel generally employed on a permanent basis.

Further to serve the industry and clients in regional areas, branch offices are operating in Manchester, New Hampshire and Providence, Rhode Island. The construction division operates locally from a separate office on Thompson Street. For several years an office was maintained in Dublin, Ireland, where a number of design-construct projects were completed.

Richard J. Donovan, Inc., generally operates in the local and New England areas, and furnishes consulting, planning, design, construction and construction management services to such industries as electronics, metal fabrication, sugar, leather, carbons, resins, manufacturing and warehousing. Among its clients are such national firms as United Fruit Co., Weyerhaeuser Company, Clark Oil Company, W.R. Grace and Co., Swift and Company, Corps of Engineers and others. Local clients include the Federal Reserve Bank of Boston, Sanders Associates, Polaroid Corp., Sippican Corp., Massport, Boston Edison Co., New England Power Service Co., Public Service Co. of New Hampshire, Fitchburg Gas & Electric Co., Central Maine Power Co., and others.

This is an organization in which all of its officers and most of its managers and key personnel are professionally qualified. Dick Donovan, the president, is a civil engineer with an extensive background in the design and construction of commercial and industrial facilities. He is professionally licensed in some 13 states and by the National Council. Mr. Bill Finney, vice-president, has a long background in the power utility area of operations. He is licensed in 9 states, is a senior member of IEEE and has a distinguished background in the design, development and construction of high voltage transmission systems.

Over the years, the firm has established a reputation for high standards of quality workmanship, excellent performance habits and reliability for service, all made possible by gathering a team of competent personnel, with diverse talents and specialties, that combine to complete many successful projects.

The Project- The People-

In the spring of 1972, a challenging assignment was undertaken by Richard J. Donovan, Inc., namely the renovation and transformation of a long standing vacant commercial building that was an eyesore to the community, into a functional building with aesthetic appeal. After a series of conferences with Mr. Dick Schmader of Winchester, the owner, the basic needs and requirements were established and the design and construction machinery was put into motion.

The building, as standing, was in sound structural condition, being a reinforced concrete frame with concrete floors and roof slabs. It would be stripped to its basic frame and rebuilt with new and modern materials. The project was planned to be done in two principal stages, with the 1st step being the preparation of the complete exterior shell to a point where step 2, the interior layouts and construction could start as soon as possible.

Extensive demolition work was required to prepare the building for its new appearance. All masonry panel walls were removed, old foundations, fuel tanks, boilers, mechanical piping and equipment were all removed and disposed of. New water, sewer, sprinkler and electric services were installed to accommodate the new use of the building. All remaining concrete and masonry areas were rebuilt to a sound condition. Exterior windowalls with bronze aluminum tubular framing and tinted insulating bronze glass were installed to create a new outer skin. A new 4 story, hydraulic elevator was installed and compliance with fire and building codes dictated the need for a new 2nd egress and fire escape, which was built on the exterior of the building to minimize loss of floor space. The roof was repaired, the existing stairwell was refurbished and a new exit from the basement was included. The existing parking lot was enlarged and repaved and can accommodate about 25 vehicles.

Step 2 consisted of developing the tenant areas on each floor of the building. These were custom designed, constructed and decorated to suit the individual needs of each occupying tenant. Partitions are metal studding, insulated and covered with firecode sheetrock and vinyl wall coverings. Carpeting covers most floor areas with some occasional use of resilient floor tile. Ceilings are acoustical lay-in type in a metal grid system with recessed fluorescent lighting throughout. Metal door frames, solid core wood doors, heavy duty hardware are used throughout. Individual toilet areas and specialized plumbing fixtures and equipment were installed to suit special needs and desires. Heating, ventilating and air-conditioning are provided by a gas fired, roof top unit, with distribution through a central core to each floor level. Individual thermostat controlled zones supply each suite on each floor. Miscellaneous fixtures, cabinets and special millwork were on an individual basis. All areas not covered with prefinished materials were painted and the exterior completely waterproofed.

For the Donovan organization, Matt Paluccio created the conceptual design and established the architectural and structural requirements for the project, with Dick Adams responsible for the development of the working drawings for construction and the interior layouts for the various tenants. The overall management of the project was under the direction of Joe Ciarcia, a local resident, who is the construction division manager for Richard J. Donovan, Inc. On site supervision of the construction work was handled by Mr. Ed Souza, the job superintendent. Co-ordinating between field and office for materials, schedules and sub-contractor activities was managed by Bill Fiore, Jr., from the construction office.

MS Victim Campaigning For Access To Buildings

By Pauline Dishmon

About nine years ago when Maureen Winn of 10 West Chardon rd. was 21 she learned she was a victim of multiple sclerosis, a progressive disease of the central nervous system that destroys the myelin sheath which surrounds the spinal cord and the brain. When Myelin is lost, nerve impulses are distorted and muscle and sensory response is impaired or absent.

From that day forward Mrs. Winn lived differently. Without a God-sent miracle or an MS cure she knew her physical capabilities would continue to diminish.

"I knew I had to think positively and look forward to something meaningful or I'd have a miserable life ahead of me," she recalls, sitting in her kitchen in the wheelchair she has been confined to for the better part of the last five years.

In addition to her private life with her devoted husband, Robert, a Winchester native who works as a civil engineer, Maureen Winn has found special meaning for her life as she serves on the board of directors for the Mystic Valley Association to Overcome Multiple Sclerosis (ATOMS) and acts as delegate to the Mass. Council of Organization of the Handicapped, a coalition of about 20 handicapped groups working toward legal reform.

The chief purpose of ATOMS, which includes people from surrounding towns, is to give MSers a monthly opportunity to socialize and enjoy programs of entertainment with other MSers. "My husband is vice chairman of the group and we go to the meetings together," Mrs. Winn says.

Massachusetts is the only state to have ATOMS chapters which are branches under the National Multiple Sclerosis Society. Another major goal of ATOMS is to educate and promote the forming of chapters throughtout the nation, Mrs. Winn adds.

As a delegate to the coalition which meets in Boston monthly, Mrs. Winn participated in a hearing before the Mass. Social Welfare Committee on Feb. 7 giving testimony with cerebral palsied victims, residents of the Fernald School, and others on such matters as the inaccessibility of public buildings to the handicapped.

"I was really impressed with Sen. Backman's sincerity as he listened to all of us," Mrs. Winn says of the committee chairman Later he sent her a letter thanking her for

TM Gets Second Start; 37 Articles

Town meeting members meet again tonight in another attempt to start the annual town meeting delayed last week at the request of the Board of Selectmen because of incompleted town reports.

Members will be acting on a 37-article warrant which includes proposals dealing with extension of the dog leash law, improving the town's contribution to employees' health insurance, selling off certain School Department land, turning McManus House into a center for elderly affairs and a total 18-month budget of about $21 million.

Last year's $13 million budget covered 12 months. The meeting last year acted on 42 articles and lasted two months. In 1971 there were 42 articles discussed over five weeks.

As in previous years, the members will be meeting Monday and Thursday until conclusion — expected to be at least a month.

Last Thursday's session when members met and agreed to delay their start a week lasted 30 minutes, the second shortest town meeting session in 37 years, according to one veteran TMM. The shortest session was one called off because of a blizzard.

Selectman Paul F. Amico told the 167 TMMs present in the auditorium that "confusion and uncertainties" over revenue sharing, state funds and the new 18-month budget resulted in the tardiness of town reports.

He also said the Finance Committee report failed to contain the normal breakdown in how the estimated tax rate was arrived at. (Finance is still grappling with its tax rate projection. Its latest figure is $3.89 per thousand.)

Amico cited several other reasons for this year's dilatory reports and said the necessary information should be available tonight. (At Monday's Board of Selectmen's meeting Selectman Arthur E. Dunbar commented: "We will have enough information to go forward." Amico said the town treasurer's report had been completed and sent to the comptroller.

(Amico added: "The extra week has given all boards committees time to expedite matters.")

At last Thursday's town meeting session some members attempted to proceed with non-budgetary articles but failed to win any support.

The leash law proposal, to make the law effective 24 hours a day rather than the present 7 a.m. to 7 p.m., was filed as a result of a petition of Vincent G. Carroll, who filed the original proposal. The Finance Committee has recommended unfavorable action. The selectmen have made no recommendation.

Both Finance and the selectmen are

Fire Bombs Misfire; Man Is Questioned

Two fire bombs thrown in Winchester Center early Sunday morning did little damage because they were an "amateur" job, according to police.

One was thrown at an apartment house on Elmwood avenue — Stetson Hall — where it struck the front stairs. The other was directed at the wooden police box at Mt. Vernon and Main streets.

At 12:30 a.m. a radio message of a small fire in front of Stetson Hall was received at the police station after residents of the building became alarmed. Firefighters were not needed.

At 2:45 a.m. an unknown male called the station to report that the police box was on fire. Damage was mainly charred wood and a broken window.

Lt. Andrew Crawford described the fire bombs as "beer bottles with wicks in them. They didn't have much effect. It must have been an amateur who threw them. The wick burned out before igniting the liquid. We don't know what the liquid was."

Officers Richard W. Fisher, Thomas E. Faulkner, William J. Gannon, Erwin W. Nurnberger Jr. and William F. Wright responded. Police have a suspect — not a youth, they said.

Other acts of vandalism were reported at a Highway Department shed on Lake st. and at

Selectmen-Finance 'Trade Off' — How Town Runs

A one-week hiatus in the start of town meeting has given the Finance Committee and Board of Selectmen more time to settle their differences, particularly over what equipment should or should not be bought.

The selectmen this week agreed to lower their request for snow and ice money for the next 18 months if Finance would go along with their recommendations on equipment purchases.

This give and take between the two boards points out the nature of town government, a structure not completely understood by many.

Finance has the responsibility for studying all department budgets and makes recommendations on them to the town meeting, which has the final say on all fiscal affairs.

The Board of Selectmen, which controls 28 - 30 percent of town budgets, submits to Finance for study each department budget it has prepared for the coming year. Finance either recommends the budgets be approved or disapproved.

Background

The remaining 25-or-so percent of town budgets are controlled by other elected boards such as the Cemetery Commission, Library Trustees and Park Commission.

Often the selectmen consult with the 15-member Finance Committee before a recommendation is made in order to bargain.

Thus on Monday, with the Finance Committee meeting on the first floor of Town Hall and the selectmen on the second, there were a number of trips up and down the stairs made by liason for the evening, Selectman John J. Sullivan.

Of interest this night were the equipment the board will try to get through town meeting. The selectmen discussed their need for new Highway and Fire Department vehicles, particularly a new $80,000 ladder truck. The total figure for equipment they originally wanted came to about $200,000, considerably above the $150,000 specified in their own five-year plan for new purchases.

Rather than risk losing the ladder truck — a vehicle they feel is vital — by budget-conscious Finance and town meeting, the selectmen eliminated a salt spreader, a leaf shredder, a backhoe for the Water Board and a fire prevention car.

At one point Monday it seemed that Finance was about to recommend elimination of a Fire Department rescue truck ($11,000). The selectmen became disturbed over this possibility, citing the age of the present rescue truck and its need in rescuing accident victims from tangled cars.

So a "trade off" took place. The selectmen agreed to reduce their snow and ice budget, already previously reduced by $35,000, by another $110,000, making a total reduction of about $145,000.

Finance gave in on this basis and the selectmen now go before town meeting for $169,000 in new equipment.

Besides the ladder and rescue trucks, the $169,000 includes four replacement vehicles for Highway, a van for the dog officer, four replacement cruisers for the Police Dept. and two Water & Sewer Board trucks.

That was the easy part. The town meeting, facing the possibility of a nearly $4 tax increase (to $65) will have lots to say about that $169,000.

Sign at Finance Committee meeting shows the latest tax figure the committee is working on.

Incinerator Immediate Issue

Board Fears Regionalization Means Loss Of Local Control

Members of the Board of the Board of Selectmen this week expressed serious doubts over the wisdom of regionalized services but were generally favorable to district-run incinerators.

The issue arose over a report by Selectmen Vito A. Giarrizzo, the board's representative on the Metropolitan Area Planning Council, on MAPC's pending legislation to establish solid waste disposal districts in Greater Boston.

"Until now MAPC has just been a study group," Giarrizzo told the selectmen. "This is their first step to get a foot in the door of local government."

He said this may signal a start of regional government, which he called an "infringement" on local control which could lead to control of education, recreation and services.

"Home rule is starting to go down the drain."

Chairman Paul F. Amico said he sees the time when the state will make regionalization of solid waste disposal mandatory. "But maybe that's the thing to do. I don't know."

Selectman John J. Sullivan thinks there's "enough safeguards" in the MAPC proposed legislation to protect local government from outside control.

The MAPC bills would set up solid waste disposal areas, allow their establishment on a local-acceptance basis, establish a commission appointed by the governor and legislature to approve state reimbursement of up to 50 percent of district incinerators and exempt incinerators from local taxation. Provision would be made for payment in lieu of taxes.

Winchester, one of Greater Boston's few incinerator communities, "suffers," according to Sullivan, because neighboring towns lack them.

All of the selectmen were against any reginal "hierarchy" similar to county government.

In other business before the selectmen, the board voted to ask the town's Historical Commission to study how Winchester can participate in the United States bicentennial celebration.

The board was requested by the state's Revolutionary War Bicentennial Commisssion to undertake some kind of project.

All The Comforts

Town Completes Bargaining Talks

Town meeting members will be asked this year to approve 27-month wage settlements giving firefighters a 5 percent and policemen 2.5 percent increases. The police would get another 2.5 percent next year.

The new rates would raise to $9,240 the firefighters' minimum wage and patrolmen to $9,020. Maximum rates, reached after two years' service, are $10,028 for firefighters and $9,789 for patrolmen.

In addition to the percentage wage increases, firefighters, in July of next year, will receive an additional $300 for five years' service, $600 for 10 years, $900 for 15 years and $1,200 for 20 years.

Maximum salaries of a fire lieutenant will be 15 percent above the maximum of a firefighter. Captains will be 30 percent above.

The police may also receive additional monetary benefits. Beginning in July of 1974, they would receive $300 for five years, $600 for 10 years, $900 for 15 years and $1,200 for 20. Beginning this year, they would get half the dollar amount of those rates.

Salaries of Sergeants and lieutenants in the Police Department would be 15 and 30 percent above the patrolmen minimum.

By July of 1974 the rates for firefighters and policemen will be the same, as will be the yearly service increments.

The 88-member Town Employees Association recently signed agreements with the town for a five percent wage boost over the next 15 months and 4½ percent for the following 12 months in a 27-month contract.

Planning Board 3-2 Approval Of Auto Agency May Change

Winchester's Planning Board has voted 3-2 in favor of a town meeting warrant article to change the zoning on 6.3 acres of Cambridge street land to allow construction of an automobile agency.

No details on the recommendation are yet available. Planning Board Chairman Otto E. Schaefer said the board wants to wait until newly elected member Joseph Geary votes before making a written statement.

A two-thirds vote of the town meeting is required to rezone land.

At the Board of Selectmen's weekly meeting Monday, Ralph Bonnell, owner of the automobile agency, spoke to the members on a number of points raised in his recent presentations at precinct meetings.

Bonnell said the land was purchased outright--not on option--from Sherman Saltmarsh after the 1971 town meeting approved the site for apartments.

The owner of Bonnell Ford estimated that combining the Winchester agency with his brother's, located in Woburn, would generate about 300 cars in and out a day at the property at 339-353 Cambridge st.

As for spot zoning, Bonnell said the area is a general business one.

He said charges that the site is a wetlands "shouldn't be an issue" since the property, if developed for apartments, would be as much affected by the inland wetlands act.

Bonnell appealed for zoning approval on the basis that the Planning Board's townwide rezoning plan may not come before town meeting for action until the summer.

He estimated real estate and excise taxes from the agency would be about $40,000 a year.

Wedge Pond Cleanup Urged

Cleaning up Wedge Pond was a principal topic at a recent meeting of Winchester Environmental Protection Association (WEPA). Other items on the agenda were the Aberjona River clean up, Arbor Day plans and the distribution of the pamphlet the "Incinerator Index," which describes Winchester recycling rules.

Mrs. Susan Guild, resident of Wedge Pond, brought three other pond neighbors to the WEPA meeting. They stated their intention to call together all shore property owners in order to organize a pond cleanup this spring.

William Burroughs, WEPA member and forum advisor, promised cooperation from the First Congregational Church. The group will report on its plans and progress at a later time. They expressed concern about the need to educate the public about throwing refuse into town waters.

Walter Farrell, representing Winchester Boy Scouts, showed a film of last year's Aberjona River cleanup during which over 30 truckloads of refuse were removed from the Aberjona. He announced that boy scouts plan another river cleanup on March 31. Winchester schools will be asked to show this film to students as part of the WEPA sponsored community education program.

Another WEPA educational program, Arbor Day, was outlined by Mrs. Betsy Pickup, who stated that four elementary schools were interested in an Arbor Day celebration, April 27. Mahoney's Rocky Ledge Farm will donate one tree to each school that participates.

Mrs. Ann Oppenheimer reported that television channel 44 will consider giving WEPA a half hour for a panel discussion in May. This possibility will be discussed at a later meeting.

John Moore, co-chairman of WEPA, showed copies of the "Incinerator Index", stating that the Aberjona Civic Association had funded the printing, and Winchester Girl Scouts agreed to deliver the pamphlet to every home in Winchester.

The Index, written by Mrs. Terry Sefarian and Mrs. Phyllis Knopf, and illustrated by Anne Bird, a student at Wyman School, tells of Winchester recycling rules and anti-litter laws.

Mrs. Howard Frazier, WEPA co-chairman, announced that March 27 would be a very important WEPA meeting. Chiefs of fire, police, and heads of town departments have been invited to come to the board of health room, town hall, at 7:30, to exchange ideas about Winchester improvements. The public is welcome to attend.

RACER - Nicholas Fitzgerald of Winchester recently competed in a NASTAR race at Waterville Valley, N.H., on the intermediate valley run. NASTAR is the National Standard Race for recreational skiers and occurs every Wednesday and Saturday at Waterville Valley, as snow permits.

Threat Made To Close Rink

A public hearing by selectmen on problems associated with the Universal Sports Arena off Conant rd. drew a handful of neighbors and a threat from a lawyer representing two of them of possible legal action to close the facility.

Atty. Margaret Mahoney, representing Mr. and Mrs. Melio Luongo of 242 Cross st., said the rink doesn't have the required parking area and thus the building shouldn't be used "because it is unfinished."

She contends 160 additional parking spaces are required. She accused the owners of bad faith, saying the parking lot could be completed by the second week of April.

Atty. Morris Karll, representing USA, said there are sufficient spaces as required by law. A new parking area will be constructed over the summer, he said.

The selectmen took no action on the issue until the town engineer checks on the parking.

The residents also discussed a number of other complaints they have brought before the board during recent public hearings. Sign lighting, parking along Cross st. and abatements on their property were among them.

Atty. Mahoney urged the board to make use of its licensing powers in forcing USA to comply with resident wishes. "If you have allowed him (USA) to make money at the expense of the Luongos and others in the area ... the Luongos will press their case in court."

The selectmen received notice from the Recreation Committee of two vacancies on the committee and a list of five possible replacements. The selectmen will speak to the candidates before making any decision.

Crackdown On Dog Owners Announced

By Kay Cardin
Winchester Animal Rescue

Dog Officer Dominic Molea, who tries to be understanding in his work, warns that a crack-down is necessary — not on dogs, but on careless owners.

Some of the same dogs have been picked up three or four times for creating nuisances around schools and other places. Molea issued nine tickets to dog owners last week. Fines will follow. It is most important not to let your dog follow the children to school. Owners must take responsibility, he maintains.

Around the first of April the town will run its annual rabies clinic. The shot is quick, easy

Renewal time for licenses will also be around this time. Molea suggests that one request his telephone number be included on the license for his protection. It would make it much easier to get a dog back, should he become lost.

Notify Dog Officer Molea (729-7990 or 5530) at once if a pet is missing. One owner waited 12 days and was very lucky to get her dog back. Usually he would be gone by then.

Female dogs in heat continue to present a problem. Have a female spayed. She will make a much better and easier pet. No, spayed females do not get fat if their diet is carefully watched. Molea has information on financial help with spaying, if that is a problem.

Presently at the dog pound awaiting their owners are two very cute mixed breed puppies, one brown, one a shepherd type.

RENT-A-PARENT

When Mommas and Poppas want to go away on an overnight or extended trip, sans enfants, they can take advantage of a baby-sitting service that sends young married couples in to take care of the children and the house. University Home Services of Needham screens couples for moral character, responsibility, and good judgement, then sends them to your home for an interview and approval. Most couples are college age or graduates. They prepare all meals, do the laundry, maintain the house, and manage details such as garbage disposal and snow plowing. It's arranged for the sitters to become acquainted with the children beforehand so they won't be strangers when the parents leave.
The agency can also provide house-watchers, chaperones, tutors and home caretakers.

Student Who Escaped Bulgaria In Car Trunk Values Freedom

By Kenneth Bacon

In a time when so many of our basic freedoms are being threatened, there is a Winchester man who has seen both sides of the fence and is presently building his life around his freedom of expression.

Plamen Gorchev, 21, of 4 Robinson st. was born in Communist-controlled Bulgaria. For 12 years he experienced first hand the Communist system. Along with his mother, Lili, and father, Ted, he escaped the Iron Curtain by hiding in the trunk of a converted Volkswagen. At the age of 14 he arrived in America. He definitely prefers life here.

Plamen saw Bulgaria as an expressive dead end. Basic rights were restricted unless they followed the party line. Taboos were placed on hair length and dress, and all the children were forced to join youth groups. A college education was practically impossible unless you were related to a Communist official.

In his opinion, "Communism looks good on paper, but is not in reality. In order to have the ideal Communism, people must all be the same.

"Art in Bulgaria isn't dead. But it is restricted. Culture is allowed as long as it isn't critical of the party."

Because of these sentiments Plamen cherishes and plans to utilize his freedom of expression in the film industry. He is dedicated to a philosophy of art: "Freedom to achieve the most in whatever way without restriction."

Plamen is a junior majoring in journalism at Northeastern University, one of 58 students from Winchester who attend school there. His main goal is to produce films, beginning with ski documentaries and branching out from there.

He is going to school full time, foregoing the work-study program and taking a double load of subjects so "I can get out of here as fast as I can" and begin producing films.

Reader Says Thanks For Reporting Both Sides On Hospital

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

Thank you very much for running my letter to the editor on the subject of "Hospital Deception" in the Feb. 22 edition of The Winchester Star. Mrs. McCarthy, the many neighbors who commented favorably on it, and I, all appreciate the attention you gave to our plight.

I should also like to acknowledge your editorial posture regarding the whole problem of the hospital's encroachment. You have covered the subject most thoroughly, faithfully reporting the positions of both sides.

Pigeon's Death

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

While in the process of trying to find out why a beautiful pet pigeon died of a hemorrhage here some weeks ago, we discovered that, unlike the other pigeons who died in our yard, this one did not die as a result of the poison used on the railroad overpasses in town.

According to a letter I received, this particular pigeon evidently was the victim of an anti-coagulant type of poison, often put in cracked corn to kill rodents.

Although there are always rats in the area of a lake, pond, or river, it is extremely dangerous to use this type of rat poison, because the corn is so attractive to all kinds of birds.

There are poisoned baits which will attract and kill rats only, and I strongly urge anyone who wishes to eliminate them, to use that type - never cracked corn!

Praise For Hatch

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

At this time it seems most appropriate that we in Winchester pay tribute to Ralph Hatch for what he and his family have stood for over so many years and for what he has done for our town.

I am sure that all who are aware of his many unselfish contributions to our civic and business affairs will join in expressing to him publicly our recognition and gratitude for his devotion to our community. Twelve years as secretary of the finance committee, nearly two decades as cemetery commissioner, 28 years as treasurer of the Winchester Hospital and 45 years with the Winchester Savings Bank are but a few of his commendable deeds.

Truly he is one of our outstanding citizens and so, for us all, I say "Thank you, Ralph, for so many jobs well done and for being an inspiration to our future generations. May you continue to enjoy many happy years in the Winchester which you helped to mold by your constructive leadership and civic spirit."

Charter Referendum

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

The Town Government Study Committee has thoroughly examined its objectives since the 1972 town meeting. At that meeting, its proposal for strong centralized management in the public works area of the town operations was passed by town meeting members by a 3-2 margin after thorough debate. The town meeting action was struck down by a very narrow margin in the referendum which followed.

The first result of our committee review was to return to the central conclusion of our DPW proposal: the day-to-day management of the town's manpower and resources must be modernized. However, the committee has now expanded this concept beyond the public works area to a proposal for centralized management of all town operations, responsible to a single Board -- the selectmen.

The second result of our review was to recognize that the voters failed to back the action of the 1972 town meeting because the process of planning and developing the DPW proposal had not involved enough interested citizens of the town. Consequently, as part of our report to the town meeting under Article 37 of the warrant, our committee will outline its 1973 objectives as follows: to sponsor a citizens group which will initiate a referendum for a charter commission under the Home Rule Act of 1966.

This act provides that any town whose citizens have the conviction and determination to shape a custom-made charter for their town government can do so. We are convinced that the timing is right and that broad citizen participation can be mobilized to develop and propose an adaptation of the selectmen-manager or selectmen administrator form of management which meets Winchesters specific needs and political realities.

We will be using the medium of your paper to publicize the organizational meeting at which the citizens group will be launched. As the activities of this group move toward the critical voter-decision points, we hope your columns can also provide a channel for voter education.

Progress Report On Work Of Historical Society, Commission

By Calvin T. Cramer
with
Don R. Brown and Fran Ver Planck

In reporting to the town on the progress of the historical survey currently underway, it seems appropriate to begin by commenting on the emergence of new interest in the work of the Winchester Historical Society.

When the selectmen recently appointed a new seven-member historical commission they recognized formally the importance of historical research, preservation and restoration in the cultural life of the town. More to the point, a new commission, with its new people and energy, could never have been possible were it not for the presence and work of the Historical Society.

Until recently, the Winchester Historical Society, for all its longevity, its past efforts and its long-term significance to the town, has suffered dearly from a lack of broad membership. Although probably attributable to lack of crisis atmosphere emanating from the organization, this shortfall has inhibited the society's effectiveness.

These days, with supposed crises abounding in everything from education to energy, how can we get steamed up about collecting stories and artifacts from Winchester's past? But the "crisis" is now just around the corner, and soon will be in full view. We must begin to prepare now for the nation's bicentennial in 1976.

The Winchester Historical Society needs new members; it is uniquely situated right now to organize and direct the town's vote in a very special program—the celebration of our country's 200th birthday.

If you are interested in the work of the Historical Society, the way to begin your involvement is to join forces with a small but growing group of fellow citizens trying to meet need with involvement. For further information call 729-2557 for membership information.

The liturgy of the great national event must be familiar to its celebrants if they are going to truly participate. It is incumbent on us all, then, to fix in time and place for ourselves and for our progeny an accurate sense of who we are and where we come from. The Winchester Historical Commission will survey the homes of Winchester, but the commission will serve as well to highlight the desperate needs of the far older Historical Society.

The task of establishing Winchester's history must become the serious task of the community at large. This means joining the Winchester Historical Society as a member. The Historical Commission asks the townspeople of Winchester to take time right now to lend a hand in the task—and make our own Historical Society an important contributor to this great impending event.

Any brief status account of the survey work would be incomplete if the energetic activities of Frank Curtis were not reported. He has managed to meet with four of the seven division teams and review with them the needs and objectives of their areas. Shortly he will be orienting two more teams and should have them all underway by the end of March. In identifying the kinds of information the teams are looking for, it is important to know the ownership, age, history of alterations and any famous person who lived in your house.

The four divisions well underway are the Hillside, Wyman, Rumford and Central West. The Hillside is almost completely surveyed. One unusual development, thanks to the work of Loring P. Gleason, is the turning up of an original deed from Squaw Sachem, dated 1650, one of three such documents known to have been from her hand. This division is now preparing photographs to complete its assignment.

The Wyman Division, with Mrs. Irene Schneller and Ken Trevett, is well underway with its survey, as is the Rumford, where all but the canal right-of-way has been inventoried. Lee Weller has been most helpful in this division. Mrs. Kirkendall has begun the Central West Division's work in earnest and a beginning has been made in Central East, under Calvin Cramer's direction.

The society has so far provided the commission's teams with various maps keying early town development periods with charts and with early layouts of houses, the canal, factories and other structures of interest. Starting so late to collect what may turn out to be a mountain of data, any assistance the commission is able to garner counts. The knowledge and the willingness of the society to serve makes the commission believe it has a chance to meet its project deadline of June 30. The proposed budget for the Winchester Historical Commission comes before the town soon.

Finally, recent contact has been made with the Woburn Historical Commission, and an informal agreement on exchange of ideas, needs and information between the two commissions has been reached.

Conducting The Public's Business In Private: Some Strange Goings-On In Our Little Town

READERS OF THE STAR:

Some strange things sometimes happen in this little town of Winchester. Last week TMM Arthur Hewis asked the selectmen to call a special meeting of the board to discuss delaying the start of town meeting because some town budget reports were not completed.

The selectmen called the meeting, but Chairman Paul F. Amico said its purpose was to discuss with certain department heads the uncompleted reports. After the discussion Amico asked Hewis if he wanted to say anything. Hewis did.

He argued that TMMs would be unable to make intelligent decisions because they wouldn't know how much money was in certain budgets. He said if the selectmen didn't ask for a delay he might seek legal action.

Amico said that because only three selectmen were present the board wouldn't make a decision of Hewis' request until a few minutes prior to the start of the town meeting Thursday night. Then the meeting adjourned, everyone got up as if to go and most went.

But not the selectmen. They remained until 10:45 p.m., huddling with Finance Chairman Lawrence T. Smith and Town Moderator Raymond J. Kenney Jr. The Town Hall doors were locked. The next morning telephone calls to Amico and Smith revealed that the town officials would be asking the town meeting to delay its start.

Amico referred to the private meeting among the officials as a "coordinating session," Smith as an "informal chat." But the decision had been made during that meeting to seek to postpone town meeting and the public should have been able to listen to the officials' arguments.

Selectmen Arthur E. Dunbar has been receiving congratulations and hand shakes from various town officials recently. It appears Dunbar is next in line to be chairman of the Board of Selectmen even though the board's vote on a new chairman is not scheduled to take place until the first meeting after the conclusion of town meeting, as prescribed by law.

For those who have been curious why the new high school field is not being used, Assistant Superintendent of Schools William Clark says 1½ years of grass growth are required before playing can take place.

Two years ago consultants advised the Park Commission, which maintains school grounds, that the field shouldn't be used until grass seed had at least that much growing time.

Clark says the new field is a physical education one and not an athletic field. Athletic activities such as football will continue to be held at Manchester Field. Though the new high school is built on pilings, the field is not. The weight of a stadium and its attendant crowds would plunge the field into the river that flows underneath.

Three six foot concrete pipes carry the river from one side to the other. The field was initially seeded in the fall of 1971 and will have had two full seasons of growth by next fall.

Winchester boy scouts will be helping clean up the Aberjona River a week from Saturday during annual spring cleaning. The effort involved in coordinating the boys, men, canoes, trucks, food and other details is great.

Too bad this exercise in good citizenship is necessary. In 1971, 35 truckloads of litter were pulled out of the river. Last year, 31. What is 1973 concealing? Instead of using the Aberjona as a litter basket, it's too bad people can't take their shopping carts back to the supermarket and dispose of their beer and tonic cans in one of the recycling bins at the dump.

Help make the Aberjona once again the river Henry Smith Chapman described in his 1936 "History of Winchester": "Serene and unpolluted as nature intended it to be, an element of charm in the Winchester landscape."

Winchester Hospital administrator Reese E. James recently expressed surprise at The Star's consistent interest in the hospital's expansion plans. He feels it's too early for the hospital to explain its plans since they aren't final.

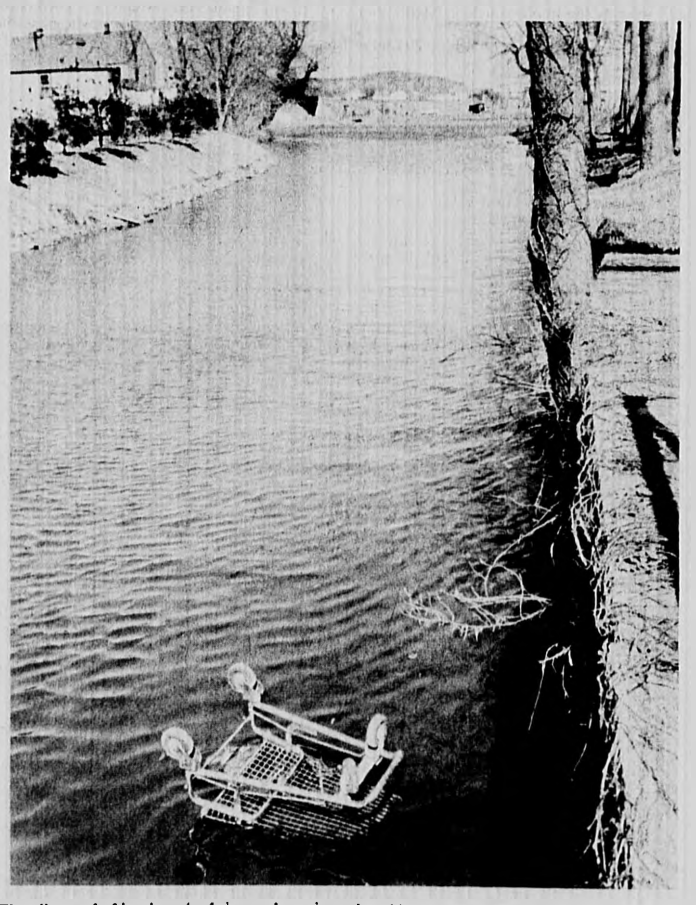
Perhaps that's just the reason why the hospital should explain what it's thinking about. If it involved the public in all phases of its plans it would receive far less resistance because then the public wouldn't feel so powerless. The public should have a voice in the planning since they are so directly affected by the final outcome.

Two Winchester police officers reportedly took a cruiser out of town recently and were caught by their sergeant. One of them, called a "special" because he had not received a permanent appointment, was bounced from the force. The other, a regular patrolman, was disciplined-five days without pay.

Because of space difficulties The Star has been unable to include recently some of the announcements and news of organization activities it has received.

One indignant telephone caller suggested the newspaper get rid of all its "junk," which she defined as advertisements. One hockey enthusiast suggested we get rid of all the church news. One church goer thought we should eliminate all the hockey. Sometimes we get the feeling you can't please anyone. But we're going to try this week by running extra pages

Arthur MacDonnell



The flow of Aberjona's fair waters is interrupted at the bridge in Winchester Center by a long forgotten shopping cart. This will be one of the targets of clean-up day March 31. Letter From The Editor has a comment on the subject. (Staff photo by Eric Weiss)

Candidates Thank Voters For Support

EDITOR OF THE STAR:
My sincere thanks to all who considered me for the office of assessor. My deepenst thanks to friends and fellow voters who supported my campaign.

My warm congratulations to Sumner Beal on his victory for the three-year term on the board of assessors.

My straight loss for assessor created no joy; nevertheless, my efforts may be rewarded; by having honest taxation methods for all and not favoritism for some selected few big property owners.

My fondest memories remain; those of watching the old and very young who voted. In future elections, I would enjoy seeing twice the number of people voting.

My many thanks to you for enriching my life by the many associations for a very important town office; sorry most meets may have occurred at our dump.

May I humbly serve you in the very near future.

Ralph C. Powers
3 Meriden rd.

EDITOR OF THE STAR:
I would like to extend my sincere appreciation to the citizens of Winchester who have allowed me the privilege to serve in the capacity of Cemetery Commissioner.

I am honored and promise to serve the town to the best of my ability.

John W. Lane 3rd

EDITOR OF THE STAR:
To all the many residents of Winchester who supported me in my campaign, I extend my heartfelt thanks.

Although I was not elected your selectman, I promise to continue to work towards keeping Winchester a town we can be proud of at a tax rate we can afford to pay.

Mark A. Lombardi
14 Ware rd.

EDITOR OF THE STAR:
Please express my thanks to the voters of Winchester who elected me as a member of the Northeast Regional Vocational School District.

I will endeavor to do my best for the students and taxpayers of Winchester.

My thanks go also to all the civic-minded candidates who offered their services to the town.

Gerard P. Donahoe

EDITOR OF THE STAR:
May I extend my sincere appreciation to the people of Winchester who voted for me in my recent campaign for the Park Commission.

Congratulations go to my opponent, William Ryerson, for a hard earned victory. I'm sure he will find the next three years stimulating and rewarding. Thank you very much.

Philip E. Richardson

EDITOR OF THE STAR:
It has been rewarding to serve the people of Winchester as a cemetery commissioner the past 18 years.

I wish to thank those who took the time to vote for me for reelection.

My best wishes are extended to my successor, John Lane III.

BOOK REVIEW

by Elva L. Nelson

THE KENNEDY NEUROSIS
by Nancy Gager Clinch

However one feels about the Kennedys—anti, pro, or neutral—this unique book provides fascinating, even if at times it seems brutal, reading. The author has intended her book to be psychobiography in varying depths of the Kennedy family, but with also a broader purpose.

"In a wider sense," she writes, "this is a study of Americans living in the second half of the 20th century. Thus the Kennedys are analyzed not only for their individual characteristics, but also, and more importantly, for their significance as factual and symbolic exemplars of emotional and social maladies that afflict an entire nation. We are all, in this sense, victims in differing ways of the 'Kennedy neurosis'."

The universally recurring human sickness which she calls the Kennedy neurosis is a drive to power and dominance over others rather than a drive for equality, love, and sharing. Power seeking is essentially a negative force. "The pathological, neurotic drive to power is the opposite of the healthy development of one's leadership potential. The former is based on competition, the latter on competence."

She contends that the Kennedy drive to power was largely neurotic in origin and so largely neurotic in its goal. "When power was obtained, the Kennedys were severely limited in the use of their authority for positive aims because of emotional conflicts and ambivalences. The peculiar paralysis of power suffered by the Kennedys was never obvious, but eventually it became apparent to many observers despite their aura of glamour. In essence, the New Frontier rarely found purposeful direction or effective expression because, on the personal level, the old frontiers of inner stress and anxiety had never been breached."

In the case of the Kennedy parents, Joe and Rose, the author believes that their excessive demands for perfection and social success helped produce in their children neuroses. The Kennedy sons all tried to carry out the impossible demands of their parents.

She writes, "The first destructive dynamic was the overwhelming dominance of the father who not only set neurotically perfectionistic goals in his offsprings' childhood, but also continued to assert his preeminence throughout their adult lives. In effect, the boys became what Dad wanted them to become. No amount of rhapsodizing over Kennedy successes can hide the fact that the chief life task of each son, especially the older sons, was to attain the peaks of social success, acceptability, and prominence that eluded the father."

The contention is that Joe Kennedy wanted political power for his sons not because he wished to shape the nation's destiny, but to achieve a mammoth triumph over the prejudiced WASPs, who had snubbed him as the son of an Irish ex-bartender.

This book traces the development of the Kennedy men, the father and his sons. Did the children outgrow the family? One feels at times that politics was something like a corporate enterprise. "No one in the Kennedy clan," the author states, "has ever been allowed to outgrow the family. This means that each one has been kept a child in some major aspects of his development. Such an immaturity was apparent not only in the identical life directions accepted by the sons, but also in the continuing dependency of all on the father's financial direction (including JFK when he was president of the United States), even though the father had given them material independence."

Parental dominance generated tensions and anxiety in each son. One such example can be seen during the Cuban missile crisis. The author comments on a conversation between President Kennedy and Bobby: "That such an incredible idea as impeachment crossed the minds of the Kennedy brothers strongly suggests the ramifications of their inward guilts and anxieties. Better to risk annihilation, they seemed to feel, than the threat of personal punishment and shame." As regards the presidency of JFK, the author seems to think that emotional obstacles prevented him from ever using his intelligence and great political expertise to shape answers to urgent human needs in our society. "Therein lay the great tragedy of Kennedy himself and of the country he failed to change."

Her book, in its conclusion, makes a point that we should study ourselves and our leaders, and not be so childlike in our expectaions. That we should base our judgements more on deeds than on rhetoric. But many people will want to question her statement: "The Kennedy story is an epic of personal and national illusion." Where does illusion begin and where does it end?

EDITOR OF THE STAR:
Many thanks to those who took the time and effort to support my candidacy for Selectman.

I sincerely extend my good wishes and success to all the successful candidates.

2 French Teachers Jailed In Vietnam To Give Testimony

Many of the Winchester Peace Committee members are going to Olin Sang Hall, Brandeis University, tonight to hear Jean-Pierre Debris and Andre Menras, two young French teachers recently released from South Vietnamese jails after being imprisoned since 1968.

Tomorrow night at 7:30 p.m. Congressmen Robert F. Drinan and Joseph Moakley, representing a Massachusetts congressional delegation, will hear testimony in a public hearing at Fanuel Hall from the French teachers along with K. Barton Osborn and Ngo Vinh Long.

Osborn is a former agent in the CIA-Thieu Phoenix program in which the South Vietnamese government is said to have killed 40,000 civilian opponents of their government between 1968 and 1971.

Ngo Vinh Long is director of the Vietnamese Resource Center, Cambridge, which carries information on Vietnamese culture and research material related to the Vietnam War.

For more information or for a ride to tonight's meeting at Brandeis University, contact Mrs. Mary Lawlor of 162 Highland ave.

Peace Group Aids Bach Mai Hospital

Due to donations of those attending Noam Chomsky's recent lecture the Winchester Peace Committee has given $50 towards the $500 needed by the Arlington Peace Committee for its purchase of an infant incubator for Bach Mai Hospital. These funds are administered by Medical Aid for Indochina, a US group concerned about American responsibility for the present health situation in Vietnam. Further donations to this cause may be sent to M.A.I., 140 Sixth st., Cambridge, 02142.

Winchester Peace Committee's program of speakers will continue throughout the spring in an attempt to offer public discussion on such issues as the history of the Indochina War, the implementation of the ceasefire, amnesty, medical aid to Indochina, and corporate responsibility.

PUPPETS-Eleanor Boylan, puppeteer, will present a program of puppet plays and stories basesd on fairy tales at St. Eulalia's Church. The program is sponsored by the Junior Guild of the Infant Saviour.

St. Eulalia's To Feature Puppeteer

On March 31 at 1 p.m. at St. Eulalia's Church, the Junior Guild of the Infant Saviour will present Eleanor Boylan, puppeteer, in a program of puppet plays and stories based on popular fables and fairy tales.

A past president of the new England Guild of Puppetry and a directory of children's theater in Newton, Mrs. Boylan combines entertainment and demonstration in her program. Her plays are interspersed with informal talk on how puppets are made and operated. She demonstrates different kinds of puppets and discusses how to be a puppeteer.

Believing that puppetry is one of the most creative hobbies a child can have, Mrs. Boylan encourages audience participation and welcome visitors backstage after a program so that questions may be asked and puppets may be examined at close range.

Tickets may be obtained at O'Neil's Pharmacy, McCormack's Apothecary, or at the door.

Mrs. George S. Telman of Hingham, chairman of the Children of the American Revolution, was speaker and made the Good Citizen Award presentation on behalf of the Winchester Committee of Safety Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution.

The chapter also sponsored a second Good Citizen from Stoneham High School. Patricia Corkum, equally qualified with many interests, was recipient. Both girls and their mothers were present for the awards.

The Good Citizen presentation is an annual project of all DAR chapters across the state. Winchester's group has participated in the program for over 20 years. Girls are evaluated and chosen by faculty and students in their senior year on several qualifications including scholarship, leadership and extracurricular activities. All girls receive a recognition pin and certificate of commendation and have an opportunity to be chosen as the Massachusetts Girl of the Year.

The recent awards meeting was held at the home of Mrs. Lewis L. Wadsworth, 54 Wedgemere ave. Refreshments were served to members and guests.

Carucci Family Gets, Gives Help To Scholarship Fund

During March the Winchester Scholarship Foundation is conducting its 28th annual fund-raising drive to provide financial assistance to Winchester students desiring to continue with their education.

If you ask Mr. and Mrs. Angelo Carucci of 14 Main st., what the Winchester Scholarship Foundation is all about, they will tell you a heart-warming story of what happens when a community organization becomes involved in the lives of the residents of that community.

In 1961 Nola Carucci was graduated from Winchester High School. She requested and received scholarship assistance that enabled her to attend the University of Massachusetts for two years. In 1971 Nola Carucci Gladstone, died unexpectedly and prematurely. In grateful recognition of the help their daughter received Mr. and Mrs. Carucci requested that contributions in her memory go to the Winchester Scholarship Foundation.

In 1965 the Carucci twins, Janis and Judith, were graduated from Winchester High School and wanted to go on to nursing school. Again the Winchester Scholarship Foundation offered assistance. Janis (now Mrs. Louis Crafts) commented: "When there are seven children in the family it's enough of a problem to send one child on to school, to say nothing of two at the same time. The Foundation was a big help."

Janis and Judith (now Mrs. John Bees) graduates of the Massachusetts General Hospital School of Nursing, are on the nursing staff of Winchester Hospital.

They say that they arrived at their decision to become nurses quite independently. According to Judith: "There was no medical background in our family; we had not done candy-striping or worked around a hospital. Maybe it was the Tom Dooley books I read that sparked my interest in nursing."

The Carucci girls, as they were known around Winchester Hospital until their marriages in 1970, had not trained together and for a while after training worked at different hospitals. Judith started as a staff nurse at Winchester Hospital in June of 1968 and in January of 1970 became head nurse of the intensive care unit. Janis began at Winchester Hospital as a staff nurse in July 1969 and in October 1971 became Head IV (intravenous) nurse.

Janis and Judity say: "Our parents are thrilled and proud that we are both back working in Winchester, the community that helped give us our start."

CHRIST CHILD - William J. Kelley, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles M. Kelley of 5 Churchill rd., was chosen to portray the Christ Child in this year's production of "The Christus" which was held March 17 at the John Hancock Hall, Boston. St. Kevin's Church, Dorchester, has an annual contest to choose the baby to play the title role in this Lenten pageant. William was one of four finalists.

The speaker is Mrs. Richard H. Battin who has been active in the political and cultural life of Lexington. She served as chairman of the structure of town government committee which was responsible for legislation establishing the town manager plan in Lexington. She will bring pertinent and timely information to the Winchester League which has had a long and consistent interest in this subject.

Non-members who are interested in attending this meeting are asked to call Mrs. William Meader, chairman of the league study.

The home is an expression of the people who live in it and fits their way of life ... It has an air of ease and lively enjoyment rather than the static appearance of a stage set ... Everything seems to belong, even if everything doesn't match in the conventional sense ... What creates this elusive charm? ... What are the elements of this harmony? ... It's a matter of individuality first and foremost ... A home is the product of growth ... It takes time to work out interior arrangements that truly reflect you and your tastes ... Decorating is not done — it is doing ...

Compare your carpet cleaning method with the amazing Steamatic system. Dry foam, dry compound and cylindrical brushes cause pile distortion and flaring; wet shampoo rotary brushes leave shampoo and soil; and a wet shampoo vibrating plate cleans less than other methods. Steamatic uses a controlled jet of super-heated hot water to penetrate deeply into fibres suspending dirt, then quick removal of soil and excess moisture helps to restore pile. Steamatic cleaning is handled exclusively in New England by ENVIRONMENTAL CLEANING SERVICES, INC. For free estimate and brochure call Paul at 391-2123, Medford

Mothers Morning Out

Supt. MacDonald Says Key To Teaching Is Personnel

"Personnel is the key to making a school outstanding. Each school needs an understanding principal to provide leadership."

These statements were made recently by William MacDonald, superintendent of schools, when he spoke to the Mothers' Morning Out group at the First Congregational Church.

Sitting in a circle with about 15 mothers including Mrs. Audrey Deshler, director of the Winchester Board of Mental Health, sponsors of the session, MacDonald introduced his remarks by saying he would touch on three points of education: personnel, curriculum and the job of the superintendent.

Each school needs an "understanding principal to provide leadership," MacDonald said. And we need teachers who relate to students. What do we look for in a teacher?" Answering his own question he listed: a good educational preparatory background, good to successful experience, expertise in a particular field, and most important "a sympathetic understanding of kids."

MacDonald, who said he attempts to visit all of the schools, recalled an instance on a visit to the Parkhurst School near the beginning of school last fall. Seeing a boy entering the school with his arm in a cast, Parkhurst principal Andy Allen asked, "Paul, what happened?" MacDonald said he was impressed that Allen knew the boy's name, adding, "We must put people first. We need to humanize the system."

"All teachers are not the best," MacDonald said. It doesn't happen in Winchester or any other town, he feels, nor does it occur in any other business, but the department needs to look at pupils and see how they can best be served, he said.

On the topic of curriculum, MacDonald said, "In Winchester I feel we are far ahead of other areas." He attributed this to the high caliber of people on the School Committee and a demanding public. "Give me a demanding public rather than an apathetic one any day," he said. "We work our teachers hard and we expect our curriculum to be geared to meet the individual needs of kids."

He feels the department can't go jumping in and making changes or get into experiments just for the sake of change. "Making changes every other year is not good. We need to research, see what techniques are best for implementation and start a pilot program."

He described the way curriculum changes occur in Winchester. Usually an idea begins in the mind of a teacher who takes the idea or a suggested plan to the principal.

MacDonald advised the mothers that an effort is being made to have small classes in each of the nine elementary schools in Winchester, which he described as not being duplicates of each other. It is an expensive operation, he feels, but it is best not to have too many in a class. "Kids don't fit into neat packages," he said.

This year MacDonald met with elementary principals. Their number one priority was to rate each school building for its capacity. How many pupils can a building hold to provide effective learning? Each classroom, K-6, was rated on its size and the number of pupils it could effectively accommodate. For instance, it was determined that Vinson-Owen could handle a 25-1 ratio; Washington School, a 24-1; Noonan, 23-1.

Then they devised a formula: By dividing the pupil ratio per classroom into the total number of children in a school, you find the number of educators required.

Principals have the prime responsibility for a school's program, MacDonald stated. "They will be different in their approach as they look to the kids to see how they can best be served. In a year we will review and make appropriate changes," he added.

Concerning the role of himself as superintendent, MacDonald said he must "bring all people together for best educational planning." Humorously, he referred to his "recent hobbies of redistricting and school lunches" and added he has learned to be pretty good at predicting weather, all subjects for which he did not have courses of preparation.

Negotiating takes time. "I had 40 negotiating sessions throughout the summer," he said, listing the five separate bargaining units in the Winchester school system: teachers, principals, custodians, secretaries and cafeteria workers.

He cited the need for good public relations and a good program of communications as among his goals for continued concern. He said he needs to be a good listener to mold curriculum and to solve problems. "Sometimes residents of a community are suspicious of town employees and a confidence factor needs to be built-up," he said, pointing to redistricting as a situation where parents got involved so that the latest plan for redistricting (which MacDonald has since presented to the school committee who did not vote on it wanting to await presentation to families involved) "is nowhere near the original plan."

He said we are in "troubled times in terms of dollars and need to do what is best for kids. We need to be partners in planning. Then we will continue to have a damn good educational system."

During the question period the mothers asked:

Are Winchester teachers happy?

MacDonald responded, "Yes, for the most part our teachers are happy though we have had instances like the candlelight vigil, which consisted of a handful of people." (About 100 teachers protested protracted contract negotiations.)

In view of the fact that most teachers are not moving because of the current job market, do you still look for teachers?

Yes, said MacDonald, who explained that that very afternoon he was going to a university in search of a couple of teachers and administrators. He said he looks for a nice blend" in the total picture -- one-third beginning teachers, one-third with from 4-5 years' experience, and the final third with more than 4-5 years of experience. We also want a "nice blend of men and women. We need more men in our elementary schools."

For budgetary reasons he is now looking for the $8,000 range teachers. He doesn't want experienced teachers unless their experience is good. He maintained that the first six years of a teacher's experience is probably his or her best because of "enthusiasm and freshness."

Do you encourage fluidity of movement within the school?

MacDonald responded with "One hears lots about ungraded schools nowadays. But kids always know what grade they are in." He said he didn't see how you could have absolute ungrading as long as you have a 12-year school system. "Yes, there is fluidity of movement in our schools. Imaginative grouping experiences come from the principals."

Supposing there are two children from one family. Can you envision that they would ever go to different elementary schools?

MacDonald said, "Theoretically this is good but I don't ever expect to see it happening. Picture open enrollment in nine schools. What if the majority of parents want to send their children to the same school? Kids are better off in one school from K-6."

At this point the neighborhood school concept was brought up. MacDonald and a few of the mothers agreed there would be "more plusses" by sticking to the neighborhood school idea.

This brought up the subject of the lunch program and busing. MacDonald said that the lunch program was working better than expected but there is the problem of recreation after lunch which results in too much time for too many kids for too few supervisors, he feels.

One possible solution would be to shorten the length of day by one-half hour, MacDonald said. While half the kids eat lunch the other half are in class learning, then flip-flop the groups. Some children will still be allowed to go home. The only problem is the half hour the elementary children would be dismissed under this plan would run into the time that junior highs are dismissed and additional busing would cost $7,000. And to juggle hours at all schools would necessitate renegotiations with teachers. Teachers' contracts clearly specify hours, MacDonald said.

Is it possible to cut out buses altogether?

No. State law requires a bus ride if a child lives 1 1-2 miles from school; two miles for junior high and over. A mother spoke of ineligible youngsters leaving their homes early in order to walk to the bus stop to ride with eligible bus riders thereby causing overcrowding on buses. She raised the question of safety. MacDonald suggested these kinds of incidents should be reported to assistant superintendent William Clark, who would contact the bus company. "The rules are as good as enforcement by the bus driver," he said.

Discussion on redistricting brought up the topic of Lincoln School closing. Lincoln pupils will be going to McCall, K-6, and junior high kids who would normally attend McCall will go to the old high school, which will be a junior high school.

A comment from a mother: "As I see it there will be no need for another new elementary school or redistricting again."

MacDonald said, "Not for at least five years." Redistricting could come about again from studies of birth rates, housing, or younger families moving into areas formerly lived in by elder citizens, he suggested.

Is there need for released time?

"Nothing wrong with education will improve by having less released time," MacDonald said. (Released time is time off for teachers to give them an opportunity to study or gather together to explore better ways of teaching; or time off for final exams, etc.) "There is need for released time," he said. "The question is how much."

In a new proposal for next year the number of released days will be reduced by 10, he said. Tuesdays in elementary schools will be released time days. The only exception will be if there are not five working days in a week. One day per month will provide released time for secondary teachers.

Is there any truth to the rumor that the school year will be shortened?

No, MacDonald said.

The meeting ended.

Parkhurst Students Attend Mini Courses

Over a two-month period, the last hour on Friday at Parkhurst School is set aside for the fourth grade students to attend mini-courses in activities of particular interest to them. Some classes are conducted by volunteers from the community in their homes and others by teachers at Parkhurst as follows: dramatics, Mrs. David Morse, Denise Maikis; woodworking, Mrs. Allan Rodgers; ceramics, Mrs. Arthur Vancini; chess, Frederick Murray; photography, Mary Matson; cooking, Mrs. Mark Gallagher of Concord Caterers, and Mrs. William Coppins; and music, Mrs. Clark Kendall, who brought the young Tempo II singing group to Parkhurst in November.

The program, supported by the Parkhurst Parents' Association and arranged by members of its Enrichment Committee, is designed to involve talented people in the community who are willing to share with children. It is felt students learn by doing. They may express themselves through music or dramatics. A student may learn to think his way through the moves of a chess game or discover advantages of one technique over another in woodworking or ceramics.

The program aims to help pupils make decisions, learn procedures and find self-discipline, and at the same time enjoy himself. Parkhurst children have responded enthusiastically, and their enthusiasm is shared by the adults involved, according to Mrs. Stephen D. Barry of 11 Albamont rd.

"The youngsters will soon be sharing the results of their efforts with their school friends, parents and other interested adults. "Mrs. Barry says, "It is hoped they will inspire other parents to offer their time and talents, and gradually develop a team of people who can offer a selection of activities at fourth, fifth and sixth grade levels for periods of five to eight weeks. With time, courses could be made available in various hobbies, home gardens, greenhouses, foreign dishes, tinkering with automobiles, and your own favorite skill," she concludes.

McManus House Open To Public

McManus House, next to the old McCall Junior High School on Main street, will be open to the public to inspect Saturday between 9 a.m. and noon.

Subject of a warrant article to be acted on at this year's town meeting, the house is controlled by the School Department which wants to use the site as a kindergarten play area when McCall re-opens as an elementary school.

The School Department claims the old house is unusable, that it is termite infested and structurally unsound.

Certain residents maintain it can be fixed up into a suitable center for the elderly to meet and want it turned over to the Board of Selectmen for use by the Recreation Committee.

Junior Library Offers Many Services: Records, Art, Film

By Pauline Dishmon
and Ann Landau

EDITOR'S NOTE: The Winchester Public Library, under the direction of Mrs. Leila-Jane Roberts, offers interesting and varied services to fulfill the educational and recreational needs of the town. In previous issues The Star readers have become acquainted with the main adult library, its history, circulation, and inservice and outreach programs. This week the focus is on the junior library.

When children are able to write their own name they are eligible to register at the library through its junior division. The junior library offers a variety of services: books, magazines and other periodicals of interest to pre-school non-readers and in-school readers alike; record albums, which must go out on an adult card, games of skill and a gallery of pictures to borrow.

Effective last July 1, Mrs. Jean Twitchell, who had been working on a part-time basis in the junior library for 10 years, accepted the appointment of children's librarian filling the vacancy of Deborah Crowe, who resigned to become children's librarian in Concord, N.H. Mrs. Twitchell has a library degree from Simmons College and work experience with children in West Hartford, Conn., and Morrestown, N.J. "Mrs. Twitchell has used her knowledge of the town and the library to create a smooth transition in responsibilities," says Mrs. Leila-Jane Roberts, head librarian.

Mrs. Twitchell is assisted by Mrs. Harriette S. Graves, a fulltime professional library assistant; Mrs. Harriet Stettiner, half time pre-professional assistant; Patricia Cullen, fulltime library assistant; and Frances Reeves, part-time junior clerk.

The junior library has many programs that are geared to finding ways to encourage individual growth and pleasure among pre-schoolers and children up through the first part of the seventh grade. According to Mrs. Graves, who was present at the time The Star visited, the library is continuing its pre-school story hours for pre-school children.

"There are two sessions with six groups of children who are at least four years of age in each session, and from 20 to 25 in each group," Mrs. Graves says. She reports that the interest in story hour is so great that all requests for participation cannot be handled.

Sign-up lists, posted in the library previous to a seven-week segment, are filled on a first-come, first-serve basis. In short order the classes are filled "Mostly by parents whose children have experienced story hour before," Mrs. Graves says, adding that "kindergarten teachers tell us that they are able to identify which children have attended story hour and which have not." Teachers can make arrangements for story hour for their classes.

Mrs. Graves led summer craft classes which permitted about 80 children to experiment with materials, often considered throwaway junk, and create colorful and useful items.

Summer film programs also fostered constructive use of leisure time for almost 400 children, and there was a summer reading program that involved 220 children in reading and reporting on what they read in a variety of ways.

And last August an outdoor theater program was presented by the Theater Resources for Youth, a children's drama group from the University of New Hampshire. About 350 children attended. Audience participation included singing and games.

Speaking of games, the junior library has several games of logic and skill enjoyed by young children. Two go out on circulation — one on linguistics, the other a Chinese Tangram puzzle.

In the children's room there is a wide display of mini-prints children may check out for a week and hang in their homes. It was easy to see from signs of wear what pictures are the most popular. One of these portrays a gathering of rabbits sitting on the ground in a circle with a lighted candle in the center. the Gathering can be for whatever the viewer wants to imagine.

"The purpose of this program is to help children appreciate art," Mrs. Graves says. Circulation of the mini-prints is limited to seven days "to keep children from becoming too attached to a picture.

"Not only do these programs and services draw children to the library and encourage them to use what they find, but the staff has an opportunity to offer individual guidance in reading growth."

Outreach programs involving library staff reach outside of Winchester as well. Mrs. Graves ran a workshop on children's craft work in the Winchester Library for the Eastern Regional Public Library System; Mrs Twitchell reviews books for the Eastern Massachusetts Children's Book Review Group and attends their meetings twice a month; and Mrs. Roberts is a member of the Best Books for Young People of the young adult services division of the American Library Association.

The Winchester library staff works with and in the town's school system. "Good lines of communication are maintained" with Mrs. Betsey Sheeran, coordinator of school libraries. Reports and informational items of mutual concern are shared.

Following the practice of several years, elementary teachers new to the town spend an afternoon with Mrs. Twitchell to learn about the services offered and to see first-hand the collection of materials available.

Last year nearly 14,000 books who sent to local schools on one-month loans. Eighteen teachers have requested that their loans be on an automatic basis. Fifty-four collections have been sent out to classrooms to meet special assignments and five others kept on reserve at the library for specific classes' uses.

Fourth grade pupils were bussed to the library in a special program that was instituted this school year to teach them use of the catalog card index and its relationship to books on the shelves of the junior library. Mrs. Twitchell and Mrs. Paula Eustis began this program which brought about 30 pupils to the library at a time. The school department provides the bussing.

When pupils are in the middle of the seventh grade, they are eligible to receive adult library cards. To introduce them to the adult section of the facility, students are presented at their junior highs a two-part slide-tape tour program showing the floor plan of the library and become acquainted with its offerings and how to locate what they wish to borrow.

Part I, called "Treasures in Sight," covers the various ways to use the library: choosing books, listening with earphones at the listening table, checking the subject file of the card catalog for books on subjects of special interest.

Part II is "How To Dig For Treasure" and follows through on the use of the library for research focusing primarily on the card catalog, the collection of reference books and the people on reference duty.

In general; the tour acquaints students with the adult library floor plan and contents and stresses the privileges and responsibilities that go with having an adult card.

A new policy recently approved by the trustees permits children who have not reached the middle of grade seven and feel they would profit from access to the adult collection of materila

A new policy recently approved by the trustees permits children who have not reached the middle of grade seven and feel they would profit from access to the adult collection of materials to take home a form to be signed by parents who will accept responsibility for choice of materials. Mrs. Roberts says that 52 such cards have been issued.

Mrs. Roberts says that 50 percent of the town's populace is registered at the library. Of these, one half is under 20 years of age. With an active junior department it appears that library use by a youngster carries through to become a part of his or her lifestyle.

"A man named Mr. Dewey couldn't find the books he wanted at the library. He went up and down the shelves looking for poetry but they were all mixed with other books. So he got an idea ..." stated Mrs. Jean Twitchell as she launched into an explanation of the Dewey Decimal System for a sixth grade class from the Wyman Elementary School.

"I think it's very helpful," commented Ricki A. Kleist, teacher of the 22-student group. Mrs. Twitchell, children's librarian, guided the youngsters through the various facilities of the junior library at the Winchester Public Library recently.

"Suppose you want a book about hockey?" Mrs. Twitchell asked the group. She explained that the card catalog offered three ways to find a book. Numbers on the catalog card are called "your clue."

The entire presentation is a service available to elementary school teachers and their classes by appointment. All fourth grade classes in Winchester will receive the tour in a special cooperative arrangement with the schools.

Miss Kleist felt the tour was especially useful for sixth graders as advance preparation for junior high school work and that receiving guidance on location in the library made a greater impression on the students than simple instruction in the school classroom.

Other services to elementary school teachers include the preparation of book deposits, on special subjects or a general selection, for school classrooms; cooperation with teachers in gathering materials on a specific topic to be used by an entire class in the library; on occasion, films from the Winchester collection or from the Boston Public Library.

In the case of book deposits for school classrooms, the School Department "pony express" service handles transport of books.

Assignment sheets are available to teachers who are assigning one topic to a number of students at one time. This aids the children's library staff in circulating materials on the topic so that each child gets a chance to use them.

Always available of course are several sets of encyclopedias, some of which may be checked out for home use, and books of maps.

En Ka Exchange Has Low Prices

There exists in Winchester today a business where prices have not gone up in the past 15 years.

According to Mrs. William Platzoeder, this place is the En Ka Exchange at 736 Main st.

Founded in 1958 at its first location on Church st., the shop was initiated as a community service for persons who might appreciate a place where they could buy good used clothing, or turn in similar clothing for resale.

Mrs. Platzoeder explains, "The consignment basis used by En Ka allows a person submitting clothing a two-thirds return of the sale price for a seven-week period while En Ka retains one-third. Patrons of the Exchange enjoy a monetary return and En Ka's donations to many and varied civic projects continue."

Men's women's, children's and infants' clothes fill the racks at the shop, open on Wednesdays and Thursdays from 10 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. and 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. as well as Fridays from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m.

Items are "taken in" only on Wednesdays. During the winter season a popular corner of the store is devoted to skis, ski boots and skates.

The shop is staffed entirely by volunteers who strive to see that the clothes are in season, in style and in A-1 condition. Items not sold in the first four-week period are then reduced in price for the next three weeks, after which they go onto a special sale rack. Those left from that sale go directly to some worthy charitable organization. Periodic sales throughout the year offer spectacular savings to shoppers.

McLaughlin's Has Been In Winchester For 82 Years

Service to his customers is the aim of Harvey Lilly, proprietor of McLaughlin's Shoe Store of 9 Thompson st., as he begins his seventh month in a business that has been in Winchester for 82 years.

Previous owners were James McLaughlin, who opened the store in 1880 as a shoe repair shop, and Morris Snyder, who bought the business in 1930 and continued with it for 43 years.

Mr. Lilly has been in the shoe business for 25 years — in manufacturing, buying and retailing. McLaughlin's Shoe Store features fashion styles for men, women and children. A special service is in providing orthopedic needs for troublesome feet.

Recently a customer came in with a special problem. A handicapped youth with limited finger dexterity and unable to tighten and tie shoe laces needed an easy-to-handle, yet secure shoe. Lilly is obtaining a special pair of shoes that will have double straps across the instep for foot security and a side zipper for easy accessibility.

Keeping up with the latest trends is another goal of the new owner of McLaughlin's. Lilly just recently returned from a national shoe show in Chicago where he witnessed a preview of shoes of the future. Next fall, he says, the trend will be "higher slimmer heels for women's dress shoes and a more feminine graceful appearing shoe." Men's shoes will also feature slight high heels. And in casual wear men and women will be wearing saddle shoes.

McLaughlin's has a well-stocked line of "name brand shoes" for men, women and children. In children's shoes the store carries a full line of Kali-sten-iks, which Lilly considers to be "the top brand in the country today for both quality and fit."

Lilly says he understands Winchester residents trusted Snyder and frequently sent children to him with a note or a phone call requesting "special attention" to a child's foot needs. "We want to carry on this tradition and pledge our effort in this direction."

Recognizing the restlessness and sometimes shyness of children, Lilly is remodeling the store to include a play area for children who can be entertained by coloring or playing games while awaiting elders who are buying shoes. He purchased special circular felt covered cushioned chairs which "children can call their own and not worry about not putting their feet on the furniture."

In the short time Lilly has been serving Winchester's shoe needs, he has redecorated and expanded the store to almost twice its original size.

A new feature is a ladies' handbag line. In addition, McLaughlin's carries a complete line of socks for men, women and children.

Since purchase of the store, "We've really been having a treasure hunt" and are "still discovering" old shoes in various parts of the facility. Some of the old shoes are from 35 to 75 years old and will become an exhibit for store visitors.

Besides Lilly, sales personnel at McLaughlin's include his wife, Marsha, and his brother-in-law, Larry Feldman. Lilly and his wife recently returned to the Boston area after having been in business in Houston, Tex., for a number of years. They live in Londonderry, N.H.

Locally, Lilly is chairman of the membership committee of the Winchester Business Assn. and nationally is a member of 2-10, a philanthropic organization of persons in the shoe industry.

McCall K-6 Redistricting Decision Is Expected Soon

The Winchester School Committee postponed a vote on redistricting for the future McCall elementary school recently after presenting the latest proposal regarding Mystic School students. A vote is expected at the next committee session.

Monday night's plan was offered by Superintendent of Schools William C. MacDonald following meetings with parents and school administrators. He stated that a decision on redistricting here was needed before a staffing problem arose concerning the transfer of teachers within the system.

The new elementary school will consist of the entire Lincoln School student body, nine pupils from Noonan School and 45 from St. Mary's, should that institution close by this fall, as well as some Mystic students. Under consideration now for Mystic is a plan by which some streets would be more-or-less permanent McCall K-6, while another set of streets was chosen only for this coming fall, thus far.

The affected streets in the first group include Herrick, Mystic Valley pky, Lorena, Maxwell, Lloyd, Lawson, Leslie, Mystic ave., Main (Chestnut to Lincoln), Highland (from Lawson) and South Border (nos. 390 and higher).

In the second group Mystic students in grades 3-6 have been designated for McCall K-6 in 1973. The streets include Chestnut, Jefferson, Lincolnshire, Madison Ave. West, Symmes, Winslow, Bacon, Main (Lincolnshire toward Mystic), Highland (Lawson toward Mystic), Felsdale Close and Lawson Extension.

The second group has been given an option. Among the families affected by this plan there are 11 children in kindergarten and grades 1 and 2. These families will be allowed to have the younger pupils also attend Mystic.

MacDonald emphasized that once students are assigned to either Mystic or McCall they would remain at that location throughout their elementary career.

According to this proposal there would be 68 students from the first group and 42 from grades 3-6 in the second group to mean 110 Mystic students feeding into McCall K-6. If the 11 kindergarten through grade 2 children in the second group joined them, the total would be raised to 121.

Man Finds Auto In Flames Sunday

Local police investigated several incidents involving motor vehicles during the past week.

Mid-afternoon Sunday, Frederick Eromin, of Arlington came out of a Cambridge st. nursery to find his 1970 sedan in flames. Firefighters arrived and doused the flames which left the inside of the car gutted. The vehicle was towed from the scene. A short circuit was believed to be the cause.

That evening Walter W. Winship of 19 Warren st. was taken to Winchester Hospital for treatment of a laceration on the forehead following a two-car accident at Oxford and Warren sts. Winship was proceding northerly on Warren when contact was made with Mark M. Barnhill of 5 Pilgrim dr. traveling west on Oxford.

Both vehicles were towed. There was damage to the right side of the Winship automobile and to the front end of the second car. Sgt. John J. Frongillo and Officers James P. Kelley and William H. O'Neil responded.

In other police activity, a 1972 automobile was stolen from a Wildwood st. yard on Saturday and recovered a day later by Somerville police. Another 1972 model was later taken from a Church st. driveway and has not yet been recovered.

At 2 a.m. Saturday firefighters and police arrived at 15 George rd., where a 1970 stolen vehicle was completely involved in fire at the steps of the house. Engines 2 and 3, the ladder and rescue trucks and Woburn apparatus worked an hour at the scene. The front end and the automobile's interior were extensively damaged. A stockade fence the car had rammed through and the lawn, railing and stone wall of the house owned by Arnold Mason of Boston were damaged.

Police evacuated adjoining houses in the fear of an explosion. It was found shortly later that the car had been stolen from the driveway of a Woburn man sometime after 1 a.m. There was no one around the vehicle when police arrived.

The following morning at about 3:30 a police chase of a stolen car by Burlington officers resulted in a crash against a utility pole on Cambridge st. The operator fled on foot. The automobile, owned by a Wilmington man, had been taken from that town. Officers Daniel C. Pearson and David K. Richardson were present.

Winchester In Film On Salt

A new film in which former editor of The Star William Jordan appears tells how four communities came to grips with citizen concern over environmental effects of road salting operations and took positive action.

"A Tale of Four Towns....Community Action For The Environment" is a 10-minute color film that examines the salting issue as it affected Burlington, Winchester, Concord and, Needham.

In each town, local study groups were formed. These committees examined all aspects of salting and its environmental impact. The Salt Institute, which produced the film, said it will show other communities how thoughtful study can lead to improvements in local salting programs.

"A Tale of Four Towns" also features others who took part in the salting studies: a League of Women Voters' president, police chief, public works director, and selectman.

The film is available for civic groups, town meetings, conservation commissions, voters' organizations, and other groups interested in environmental matters.

Sponsored by the Salt Institute the film is available for free loan from Modern Talking Picture Service Inc., 230 Boylston St., Chestnut Hill.

Unusual Music To Be Presented By Harvard Glee Club

The Harvard Glee Club has scheduled an unusual program for presentation at the ABC (A Better Chance) spring benefit concert. The first half of the April 14 program will focus on Early Renaissance music never performed before in the United States. Selections by Josquin will be the featured work.

More spirited and popular selections will be sung during the second half of the program. Typical folk songs from Czechoslovakia and Japan will be offered. Well-known traditional songs from the U.S. will conclude the song fest.

Last year the concert was a sell-out. This year's program promises to attract a capacity crowd at the Winchester High School auditorium. Proceeds from the event will be used to support the 10 students from educationally disadvantaged communities who attend Winchester High School.

School Committee To Meet Tuesday In Sanborn House

The Winchester School Committee will hold its second regularly scheduled meeting of the month this Tuesday in Sanborn House beginning at 7:30 p.m. The shift from the usual Monday timeslot is in deference to the Town Meeting session planned for that evening.

Under unfinished business committeemen will consider redistricting for the McCall K-6 school, the parking problem at the High School, a tennis program for the junior high schools and a decision on a course on values.

Among reports to be heard will be one from WHS Principal Vincent E. Larocco on schedules, credits, etc. for the MAXED program. Personnel and business matters will round out the agenda.

Dave Powers Co-Author will be At Our Woburn Office In Person Saturday March 24th 9 am-12 noon

Dave Powers was a devoted companion and confidant of John F. Kennedy for more than fifteen years. Dave avoided the limelight so successfully that he usually was mistaken for a Secret Service agent throughout John F. Kennedy's presidency. Because he had constant access to Kennedy's thoughts and moods, this book of reminiscences reaches the inside of the man as none other has before.

"Outside of Bobby, President Kennedy had only one really close friend and that was Dave Powers," according to Ken O'Donnell.

Kennedy liked to have him around as much as possible. Dave Powers is now the Administrative Officer and Acting Museum Curator at The John F. Kennedy Memorial Library.

HS Seniors Take Red Cross Course

Winchester High School seniors for the first time are taking a course in Red Cross First Aid. They are pioneering in a radically new method of learning first aid.

Officially known as "Standard First Aid Course – Multimedia System" the course was developed for the Bell System employees and given to the Red Cross by the AT&T as a new teaching device.

"Accidents are reported to be the leading cause of death among persons between the ages of 1 and 37," says John J. Waite Jr., chairman of the Winchester Red Cross Chapter, and we believe every high school graduate should have knowledge and skills this course offers.

Waite emphasizes the value of having 300-400 graduates coming out of Winchester High School every year with Red Cross first aid certificates. "Boys and girls who are applying for jobs as life guards or ski patrols, for which the Red Cross first aid certificates are necessary, will be greatly helped after qualifying for the certificates in their high school class."

At Winchester High the new course is being taught in the physical education classes by Joan Rosazza and Brooks Holmes. Last fall each took the new multimedia first aid course and the special instructors course.

The basic innovation of the multimedia first aid course is a four-reel, color, sound teaching film, provided by the Winchester Red Cross with money given by EnKa.

The new course is entirely a cooperative venture involving many departments and people. The industrial arts department provided splints and tourniquet sticks and the parent faculty association gave blankets. Girls have made slings and bandages using the sewing machines of the home economics department.

The library made wall-to-wall carpetted second-floor space available for the classes, and the police department loaned Officer John McKinley to teach the heart massage method of dealing with heart failure. The programmed, self-study, work books are provided by the school department.

For the new course -- as well as for the regular first aid courses given at the chapter house - the Winchester Rotary Club has given the chapter a life - size, neatly modelled, plastic manikin, known as "Tammi," especially designed for instruction in effective life-saving technique, particularly mouth-to-mouth resuscitation and cardiac compression.

"The course this winter is revealing a real need for first aid training, "says Miss Rosazza. "For instance we have discovered that in spite of all the scout training and summer camp experience less than a quarter of the seniors are familiar with and trained for artificial respiration."

The new multimedia course in high school does not lessens the importance of the Red Cross standard and advanced courses taught by John O'Neill and James Boone at the Chapter house or the assistance the Red Cross is giving the police and fire departments in their first aid instruction says Waite.

Racing Enthusiast Doesn't Even Have Driver's License

Mathew Wilson, 16, of 9 Longfellow rd. is the owner of a shining racing car exhibited recently at the Autorama in Boston but he doesn't have a license to drive either the racing car or a standard car.

Working in a District of Columbia racing shop last summer, he bought the chassis used for $2,700, "took it apart and fiddled around with it" and eventually purchased a transmission, for $1,000, and an engine, for $2,000.

He raced the car in practice at a West Virginia track during the summer and received instruction from professional drivers. A member of Corvettes of Massachusetts, Mat intends to get his driver's license soon so he can race in the spring.

The sports car club displayed the car at the Autorama. Bonnell Motors sponsored him. The car--Formula-Ford Class, "Royale," model RR2 made in England by Racing Manufacturers, Ltd.--is "not an amateur one," Wilson says.

The Winchester High School junior describes racing as an exacting sport requiring great precision and much practice. "It really gets down to a science." For instance, racing drivers draw an imaginary line around each track they race.

This line tells them the course they should follow for maximum speed as they travel the looping curving track. A driver must follow this line as closely as possible, braking and downshifting at the proper time. Even as seemingly a slight deviation of four inches from this line on a curve can mean the loss of four car lengths.

The cars reach speeds of 140 miles per hour on straight sections and 80 mph on curves.

Mat expressed disdain for what he termed "hot shot dragging," which he doesn't consider racing since "the driver doesn't do anything." Victory in dragging is the result of the power of the car rather than any ability of a driver, he feels.

When Mat returned to Winchester in the fall the car was towed here--it isn't made to run on the street--and he kept it outside his home with the speculation of participating in the last week of his club's season events. He had registered for one of these events. But the person who had promised to tow the car couldn't make it. That's another reason Mat wants to get a driver's license.

When the winter approached he took the car apart and began to work on it, "wiping off the West Virginia red clay," removing rust, sanding the chassis, priming, painting and shining everything.

The weight of the car, "grided and wet" (ready to go), is 900 lb. Horsepower is 105. The gear ratios are such that fourth pulls 5,800 rpm's. Mat's car has a "trick" gear box which lets him put in four, five or six gears. It has four now.

Racing cars takes a lot of time and money. Mat's work last summer helped pay for some of the expenses but "I, like 99 percent of other people in racing, am in debt."

He intends to work again next summer in West Virginia. There he will get a professional to drive his car around the track and test his speed against the professional's. Assuming the lap takes the professional 110 seconds, if Mat can do it in 110 he feels this speed would justify his remaining in the sport.

Testing one's time against another driver is what racing cars is all about. The first time Mat drove his car he tested his speed against his father's, who drives an Alfa Romeo, which Mat describes as a semi-racing car. Mat did 10-15 seconds better than his father. Could be racing drivers, unlike their cars, are born and not made.

Little League Registration, Tryout Dates

The monthly meeting of the Little League steering committee held recently, set the following dates for registration and tryouts for the coming season.

Registration dates will be Saturday March 24 and March 31 from 9 to 12 noon at the K of C Hall across from the Town Hall on Mount Vernon street.

Tryout dates for major and minor leagues will be April 7 and 8. Senior league will be April 14 and 15. The fields to be used will be Ginn Field for American major and minor leagues covering precincts 1, 2 and 3.

West Side Field will be used for national major and minor leagues covering precincts 4, 5 and 6. American senior league covering precincts 1, 2 and 3 will use Manchester Field while the national senior league covering precincts 4, 5 and 6 will be at MacDonald Field.

The steering committee will have its next meeting at the Crawford Memorial Methodist Church on March 27 at 7:30 p.m.

A nunber of items came up for discussion at the last committee meeting. Pat Sizemore of the lady's auxiliary spoke on trying to get electricity for the Ginn and West Side field houses. League president James Stewart polled his vice-presidents on manager vacancies and it was determined there were currently four positions to be filled.

It was felt, however, that the present openings would create no problems and they would be filled shortly. Stewart appointed each player agent to be the safety officer in his league. Each will receive one of the new safety books.

Carl Ockerbloom, chairman of the fund raising committee, said that his committee is planning to raise funds. Some ideas are drawings of television sets, trip to Bermuda, tag day. When the program is completed it will be presented to the steering committee.

Mites Bow In Tourney Play

The Mites of Winchester Youth Hockey came from behind twice before bowing to Arlington 5 to 3 in the Wilmington Invitational Mite Tournament on Friday.

After falling behind 2 to 0 at the end of the first period, Tommy Sullivan started the comeback when he put one home out of traffic in front, assisted by Chris Parker and Allen McCarthy. Late in the second period Allen McCarthy continued in the action as he backhanded one high in the upper right hand corner on a downed goalie - a great play assisted by Scotty Stillman and Chris Parker.

Co-captain Chris Parker, in on all the scoring action, tied it up late in the third period when he jammed one in from out in front with a real strong effort assisted by Mike Gorrasi and Tommy Sullivan.

Mike Gorrasi and co-captain Tony Celli did it all on defense and kept the Mites close in preparation for the upcoming Middlesex Youth Hockey League playoffs.

Bench help by Guerry Eaton and Dick Parker along with young Ron DiVincenzo was appreciated.

In the annual father-son game the sons upset the fathers 6 to 5. It was ruled following the game that a penalty shot scored by the fathers was disallowed due to starting before the whistle. This big Mite win was spearheaded by Chris Parker's two goals along with single goals from Mike Gorrasi, Tony Celli, Mike McCarthy and Brian Cohen.

Mike McCarthy led assisters with two while the others were by Mike Surabian, Allen McCarthy, Bobby DiVincenzo, Billy Eaton and Jimmy Coppins. The "tired 15" were Celli Cohen, Coppins, DiVincenzo, Eaton, Falla, Gorrasi, Mahoney, McCarthy, Parker, Parkerian, Stillman, Surabian and White.

Jr. Braves Win Hockey Tourney

This month the Boston Junior Braves became the first American team ever to win the great International Pee Wee Hockey Tournament. The win took place in Quebec City and involved four members of the Winchester Youth Hockey Blackhawks. They are Owen Cote, Patrick Fortin, Mark McGoldrick and Allyn Stillman. In addition the coach of the Braves, John Falla, also of Winchester, is a director of Winchester Youth Hockey and coach of the pee wee Blackhawks.

The Junior Braves recently stunned the Canadian Hockey world with an awesome display of hockey prowess and are now achieving national recognition for their exploits. The Braves were the first team ever to go to the finals in their first tournament appearance in the 14 year old history of the greatest of all pee wee hockey tournaments.

In addition, the Braves were the first American team ever to win the Grand Championship of the tournament.

The American entry started their march to the championship by defeating the Toronto Olympic 4-2.

The next encounter was a record 13-1 trouncing of the Toronto Ted Reeve Club. Thursday the Junior Braves met their toughest opponent in the club from Quebec City, the Quebec Limoilou, who with 12,000 of their local fans cheering them on, played very well before succumbing 3-2.

The young Braves arrived to play last year's tournament Champions, Toronto Dorset Park, and were amazed to find a standing room only crowd of 14,000 fans an hour before game time. Inspired by the large crowd, the Braves skated to an easy 4-1 score.

Next came a two game total goal series against Montreal's Ville Emard. In the first game Boston outshot Montreal 39 to 13 but only managed a 3-2 win. However, in the final game played before a nationwide television audience, and with the governor general of Canada in attendance, the American team simply toyed with their rivals to emerge with a 5-1 victory, and the title of "miracle team" in the Canadian press.

The Winchester line of Allyn Stillman, Mark McGoldrick and Owen Cote was outstanding throughout the tournament. They proved themselves an excellent passing line, as they scored eight points, with Allyn Stillman banging home four important goals.

The other Winchester lad, goaltender Patrick Fortin, was great at all times, especially in the Limoilou game when he came up with several brilliant saves in the closing moments of the "squeaker."

Other Winchester residents contributing to the Quebec episode were Cliff Falla and Bill McLean, equipment managers. Mary Falla was team business manager for the trip, and Patrick Falla, 7-year-old team mascot, skated between periods and delighted the crowd with his shots into the empty nets at either end of the ice.

Royal Rooters who went on the warpath with the Braves were Mr. and Mrs. Roger Stillman, Owen Cote, Mr. and Mrs. James McGoldrick, along with daughter Maura and son Jeff., Mr. and Mrs. Richard Fortin, Andrea Fortin, Ned Fortin, Mrs. William Lynch and Maryellen Falla.

Athletes Ready--But Not Field--For Spring Sports

By John F. Parrell

Another spring has rolled around, the second since the new high school has been in operation, and still the playing fields are unavailable for use. The contractors felt that use last year would have ruined the high-priced layout, and to wait until next year would insure a better surface.

But once again the gymnastics classes, the baseball team and students in general are kept from the playing areas. When will these fields be available? That's a good question, but the answer is shrouded in mystery. One thing seems certain — if the very sizeable bill remained unpaid, the contractors would not have expected to be as patient as they expect the citizens of the town to be.

In spite of this fact, more than 200 boys have turned out as candidates for the spring sports — baseball, track, lacrosse, tennis and golf. The girls' sports — tennis and softball — are expected to attract a good number. For most of the teams it is back to Manchester Field, or Ginn Field, or Leonard Field, while the grass at the new playing area grows and physical education instructors attempt to improvise a program without any suitable outdoor areas.

Practice sessions are being held daily, and the weather has been favorable. But a sudden change involving rain, snow, or cold weather will put a crimp in the progress of the teams. Almost every sport will open the full spring schedule during the week beginning April 16, a vacation week for the Winchester schools.

Coach Bill Colella and his assistant, Vandy French, are working with a bumper crop of 65 candidates for the baseball team, of which 37 are sophomores. Co-captains for this year are Steve Johnson, pitcher, and Ned Keating, who can handle almost any position in which he is needed.

The candidates include:

Seniors — Jack Cleary, Tony Guarente, Pat Lee, Keith Leonard, Tip Macdonald, Keith McPhail, Robert Meserve, Rick Mullaney, Michael Sacca, Dave Sarapina, Pete Tilden, Ted Trefon, Pete Wakefield, Dorian Wilson, and Glenn Wright.

Coach Gene Bouley and his assistant Dave Berman have 57 stickmen in action at Leonard Field including:

Girl Gymnasts Win League Title Under Mrs. N. Connell

Noreen E. Connell, coach of North Reading's varsity girls' gymnastics, completed the current season with an undefeated North League record, winning the league championship. Seven of her gymnasts qualified by competitive scores for participation in the Massachusetts state individual championships.

Fourth place award winner in individual floor exercise is Lee Costello, first year varsity gymnast at Winchester High School (coached by Pam Canney)and privately instructed by Mrs. Connell.

Mrs. Connell is a rated United States Federation gymnastics judge, and holds the Massachusetts Girls' Gymnastic Association executive board position of dance clinic director and coordinator for the state. She also has membership in the Boston Board of Officials and the New England Gymnastic Clinic Committee for 1974, which will be held at the U. S. Coast Guard Academy.

Other interests are pursued through her memberships in the Dance Teacher's Club of Boston with the American Society and her staff appointment with Hayden Center in Lexington.

Mites'Record

The Mites, led by charging co-captains Tony Celli and Chris Parker, put together a season record of 14 wins and six losses.

Leading scorer Tommy Sullivan and zipping Allen McCarthy as forwards did it all in the tight games with a lot of support from Scotty Stillman and Mike Surabian as flying wings. A lot of defense from solid rushing Mike Gorrasi laong with Tommy Mahoney, Danny Sullivan and Ned White made it tough going behind the blue line for the opposition.

Mr. Save in the goal was Patrick Falla, who came as the season went. He comes back next year. Next year's team should be bolstered by the return of hard skating forwards Jimmy Coppins, Billy Eaton and big improvers Mike McCarthy and Bobby DiVincenzo. Real workers in the slot and always in the action were Brian Cohen and Eric Paskerian.

These 7 and 8-year-olders brought quality and enthusiasm to the ice.

Pete Sullivan To Coach Woburn

Peter Sullivan, son of Mrs. Mary T. Sullivan of 21 Sargent rd. has been named football coach at Woburn. He moves into the hot seat which became vacant when Mike Murphy's contract was not renewed.

The former Medford High gridder has enjoyed great success during his five years at Wayland, losing only seven games in his five-year tenure there. His teams play an exciting brand of football, and his style should make the annual clash with the Tanners even more attractive.

Now that Woburn has a proven winner as coach, it will be interesting to note whether this is the answer to the problems which have long plagued the Tanner elevens. Regular success in Pop Warner football has not been followed by even a remote similarity on the varsity level, and as a result blame and even abuse has been piled on the coaches.

Sullivan was a scrappy player himself, and is a hard working and enthusiastic coach. It will be very interesting to observe the reaction of the many Woburn curbstone quarterbacks if he does not produce an immediate winner.

Winchester has scrimmaged against his teams for the past three seasons, and the workouts have always been profitable. So, the Sullivan system is pretty well known to Coach Manny Marshall and his players.

Rumor has it that the new mentor was the first choice for the head coach berth at Salem, but the Woburn offer was more attractive since it also includes an executive position in the school health department.

Sachem Line Wins One Of The Highest

By John F. Parrell

Although final statistics on the hockey season have not become available, one thing is certain — Winchester had one of the most productive lines in schoolboy hockey ranks.

The trio centered by Tom Brennan, with Mark Siegfriedt and Charlie Evans at the wings, rang up a total of 26 goals and 65 points.

Their output was a major portion of the total offense of the Sachem puck chasers, who tallied 41 goals in the 18 games of the Middlesex League schedule.

The high scoring forward wave will be back intact for another season and figures to be among the best lines of the 1973-74 campaign. They have been playing together for many years and have stayed as a unit in PeeWee, Bantam, St. Mary's CYO and Lynch Junior High.

They can anticipate each other's moves. This asset combined with good position play and their ability to move the puck makes the group a constant scoring threat.

Another year may also find them adding to their effectiveness by additional play back to the points, which would add further power to the Sachem scoring arsenal. Brennan is a sophomore. His line mates are juniors. So the upcoming season should find them at the top of their game, barring injuries or other unexpected developemtnts.

Their 1972-73 record is:

	G	A	P
Tom Brennan	6	19	25
Charlie Evans	11	9	20
Mark Siegfriedt	9	11	20
Totals	26	39	65

Ex Sachem Coach Headed Titlists

The smashing victory of Auburn over Arlington in the final game of the state hockey tourney has a distinct Winchester flavor. The coach of the Auburn Dandies is Jim McElholm, who formerly handled the reins of the Sachem puck chasers and whose mother still resides at 22 Nathaniel rd.

The 5-4 victory over the Spy Ponders marks the second time that the central Massachusetts team has edged Arlington for the title. Their other win came in 1968 by 3-2.

Coach McElholm's team had a great season with a record of 17-2 including a victory over last year's state champion, Norwood.

Girl Gymnasts Had Good Year

The girls' gymnastic team of Winchester High has just concluded a highly successful season. They compiled a 6-3 record under the tutelage of Coach Pamela Canney. The teams which defeated them were all prominent in the state tourney.

This year's team included many seniors, and their experience was helpful to the younger team members who will be returning next season. The co-captains were Nancy Higgins and Vicki Hanes. They both competed in the floor exercise event, with Nancy also performing on the uneven parallel bars and Vicki in the uneven parallel bars event.

Mary O'Grady in the floor exercise, Mary Martin and Aleta Cogilano specializing in the vaulting and the uneven parallel bars rounded out the group of senior point getters.

All in all, it was a highly satisfying year. The team members enjoyed the competition, won their fair share of points and victories, and made good progress in gymnastics, which is one of the fastest growing interscholastic sports.

Marie Furr Wins Mixed-Up Doubles

After several weeks of tournaments, Mrs. Marie Furr of Winchester regained winner's laurels for the Winchester residents who play tennis. Mrs. Furr was winner and high scorer of last Saturday's tournament held at the Winchester Indoor Lawn Tennis Center

She was high scorer among the 19 women who joined 19 men in mixed-up doubles where a participant plays for five one-half hour periods with a different partner and different opponents. Scoring is via the Vass system, a point scoring system similar to ping-pong.

Mrs. Joseph A. Roark, who functioned as tournament director, said Mrs. Furr displayed a very aggressive type of game characterized by some excellent volleys and deep, forcing service return. Mrs. Roark added that such agressive play, plus a minimum of errors, easily enabled Mrs. Furr to prevail as high scorer and winner for the evening.

In recognition of her achievement, Mrs. Furr was given an inscribed trophy.

Indoor tennis tournaments will resume Saturday night. On March 24 an all-men's tournament will be featured.

HEAVY DUTY LINE: Mike Siegfriedt, Tom Brennan, and Charlie Evans showed the way in scoring for Coach Ted Kelley's Sachem puck chasers. This unit will be back for another season as a nucleus for the Winchester attack.

Winchester Pair Awarded Varsity Letters At Ithaca

Two Winchester residents have been awarded varsity letters for their performances with the 1972-73 Ithaca College varsity hockey team. The athletes are junior goaltender Fred Cammon and sophomore wing Joe Campo.

Playing the toughest schedule in the school's 13 year history of the sport, the Ithacans posted a 7-12 record. One of the wins was a 6-3 upset over Buffalo University.

Cammon, who earned his second varsity letter this year, saw extensive action and was a winner in both of his starts.

A health services administration major at Ithaca, he is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Cammon of 15 Nathaniel rd.

Campo came on strong to win a berth as the right wing on the first line, mid-way in the season, and wound-up with nine goals and nine assists for 18 points. He missed the last three games of the season with a separated shoulder.

A physical education major at Ithaca, Campo is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Campo of 34 Myrtle terr.

Both are graduates of Winchester High School where they played their hockey under Ted Kelly. Cammon also attended Vermont Academy and Camp attended Bridgeport University.

John Heffernan Voted All Star

John Heffernan, co-captain of the Winchester High School basketball team, has been voted to the all-star team for 1972-73 by the Middlesex League coaches.

Most valuable player was Bill Hatten of Watertown High School. Nine other basketball players from the league were voted all stars by the coaches.

Tie For First In East- West

By Bridgette

The one big game in Section A of recent Duplicate Bridge Club play was played by North-South winners Jock Olmsted and Clarence Woodward, who've chalked up many a victory together over the years. By contrast, the East-West field produced a tie for first place between the Carl Galante-Mike Scherrer and Ed Joyce-Charlie Richardson partnerships.

North-South

Jock Olmsted and Clarence Woodward, 137
Dolly Pasquale and Captain William Banks, 123½
Ida Finlay and Waveney Smith, 120
Frank Lombardo and Albert Vaccaro, 114½
Mr. and Mrs. Edward Mansfield, 114

East-West

Carl Galante and Mike Scherrer, 123
Charles Richardson and Edmund Joyce, 123
Constance Brown and Irving Brown, 120½
Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Johnson, 119½
Anne Galpin and Madalyn Walworth, 115
Ruby White and Waldron Smith, 113

A half-table gave Section B a North-South Rover pair—Maurice Ponti and Bob Haskell, who gathered enough points in their roving to come in first. East-West Don Howard and Tom Barry won by a clear margin.

North-South

Maurice Ponti and Robert Haskell, 94
Donna Redpath and Miggs Root, 85½
Mike and Paul Portonova, 82½
Nancy Atkinson and Barbara Shea, 81½

East-West

Don Haward and Tom Barry, 110
Leonora Carty and Eileen Brennan, 95½
David Miller and Russ Meier, 92
Charles Dyjak and Anthony Ferdinand, 91

Board 7 from Section B gives North-South a choice of game in 3NT or 4H. What would be your decision?

D - K J 9 5

WEST
S - J 10 3
H - J
D - A 10 6 3 2
C - J 5 4 2

EAST
S - 9 6 5 4
H - Q 10 8 4
D - Q 8 4
C - A 8

SOUTH
S - K Q 2
H - A 9 5 3 2
C - 9 7 6 3

At one table the bidding is straightforward. East-West passing throughout. North bids 1NT, showing 16-18 high-card points; South says 3H, promising a five-card suit and strength for game; North then makes the final bid of 4H.

West leads the Jack of hearts, and South sizes up the situation. So often, the play to the first card can be crucial.

In this case, the lead of the Jack of trumps places the Queen with East, so South plays the King from dummy, keeping his Ace over East's Queen.

And this turns out to be the crucial play, for now East-West can take only one trump trick and the Aces of diamonds and clubs, South's losing club going on the King of diamonds in dummy.

As you can see, without the information gained from the lead, it's very easy for South to lose two trump tricks.

In actual play, of the eight pairs holding the cards, four chose 3NT and four 4H, all the NTs making but just this one lucky 4H bidder making his game.

What would be a safe lead from West? Probably the Jack of spades.

Heffernan Given Memorial Trophy

Co-captain John Heffernan was awarded the Thomas H. Black Memorial trophy as most valuable player of the 1972-73 season recently. He and co-captain Peter Wakefield received bars in addition to their varsity letters.

Other players to receive varsity letter awards were Mike Heffernan, Tim Porter, Richie Phillips, Sandy Bigelow, Bill Hooker, Wayne Dennis, Nate Bitting, and John Friborg.

Junior varsity awards went to Mike Phillips, Elliot Miller, and John Zanoli. Varsity manager Peter Capu received a varsity letter and assistant manager Mark Wilhelm got a junior varsity award.

Coach French thanked the players for their fine spirit and cooperation, emphasizing that the team had been right in the fight in every game down to the last minute of play. He pointed out their achievements and urged them to play basketball whenever and wherever possible in order to improve the work which has already been started. Coach Mulloy made similar remarks to his players, whom he hopes to watch playing for the varsity with the coming of another season.

It was an evening long to be remembered, and everybody at the tables was very grateful to the parents' group which had made the affair possible.

★ Mrs. Winn

testifying and confirming her feelings about him. "Being in an atmosphere where people have good attitudes certainly helps to build an incentive to work," she adds smiling.

Mrs. Winn speaks of a bill which was passed in 1968 requiring ramps for greater accessibility to public buildings. "But the architectural barrier code is not effective because it is not being enforced," she says, explaining that federal funding requires all new buildings to be architecturally barrier-free, including rest rooms and other publicly used essentials.

Sen. Joseph Timilty of Boston has introduced a large number of bills this year to help us, she adds, but these haven't come up for vote yet.

While The Star was visiting Mrs. Winn, Congressman Torbert MacDonald's office called to report on another bill to provide money for rehabilitation centers to train handicapped persons and set up centers for spinal cord injuries; also to provide for a national commission for research into MS. This was passed by Congress March 8, she was told. "Now it's up to the president," Mrs. Winn sighs. "Hopefully he won't veto it this year the way he did last year. We've got to provide programs to help people get back in the mainstream of life."

Another problem of MS victims, especially women who have not worked five years previous to becoming ill, is that some are not eligible for Social Security payments. A bill (HR 5151) now in Congress calls for a person to be eligible for disability payments through Social Security if they have earned enough quarters regardless of work experience dates. Mrs. Winn asks Star readers to write congressmen to support this bill for the sake of mothers who are in need of financial help for exorbitant medical expenses.

Locally Mrs. Winn wonders if a central polling place with ramps could be established for all residents who have problems for one reason or another in mounting stairs. "When I vote my husband gets me inside or has someone bring a ballot out to me. I have him to help me but what about others who need assistance?"

Mrs. Winn says that MS usually affects people from 20 to 40 years of age. It is more prevalent in colder climates. Disability depends on the location of the damage to the nervous system. She describes symptoms as numbness, weakness of limbs, loss of control of kidneys and bowels, loss of balance and sometimes blindness.

It was 12 years ago that Maureen first felt numbness in her limbs and experienced loss of balance. A neurologist diagnosed her condition as a virus in the spinal cord. After about six weeks the symptoms disappeared and didn't return until 2½ years later. At this time Maureen and Robert Winn had been married about one year. She returned to the doctor and hospital for tests and received medication and the same diagnosis.

Some time later she was watching a television commercial describing the symptoms of multiple sclerosis and recognized most as being hers. She asked the doctor if she had MS. He said no. She says: "From my experience and in talking with others I believe this is the most mishandled disease" insofar as how patients are told."

Up to about five years ago, Mrs. Winn worked in an insurance office in Belmont. One day she was in telephone communication with Blue Cross regarding a large hospital bill which they would not pay. Suspicious that something was being withheld she contacted the doctor who finally admitted she had MS.

"Why didn't you tell me or my husband?"

"I told your husband," the doctor responded, "but he must have forgotten to tell you."

"Can you imagine him forgetting something like that?" Mrs. Winn asks. My husband tells me he didn't know and I'm afraid I don't have much faith in neurologists in this respect." Blue Cross wouldn't pay the bill because her condition had not been officially diagnosed.

Mrs. Winn, who now has a new neurologist at the Massachusetts General Hospital, says the disease has remained constant or become progressively worse. At first she used a walker and about five years ago used the wheelchair as her chief mode of getting about.

Mrs. Winn gave recognition to Mrs. Maria Brown, patient-service coordinator of the Mass. Chapter of Multiple Sclerosis who acts as liaison to the Mystic Valley Atoms, for her role of friend and aide to MS'ers. She described Mrs. Brown's friendship as heightening hopeful attitudes. She makes arrangements for the procurement of equipment or other needs.

Mrs. Winn speaks lovingly of her husband who "has always been helpful and taken his role very well." He does the shopping, housework and cooking. " We have breakfast and dinner together and I just snack during the day. Besides I don't have time to eat I'm so busy on the phone or attending meetings." She explains that in the last 13 days she has been to nine meetings. Her husband goes with her evenings, but daytime transportation is provided by friends.

Many of those handicapped in groups with Mrs. Winn are able to drive. "We are able to get ourselves from the house to the car but there is the problem of folding the wheelchair and placing it in the car. "This is why ATOMS needs volunteers who can help." ATOMS is hoping to gain membership among the non-disabled populace.

Mrs. Winn's wheelchair has had much mileage. It has had three sets of tires and three sets of arms rests.

"If you're going to get used to a wheelchair you must get used to people staring and become an extrovert. "If anyone told me a few years ago I would become aggressive I never would have believed them."

Mrs. Winn is planning to enter a wheelchair decor contest soon. On hearing that the Hilton novel "Lost Horizons" was returing as a new movie her thoughts turned to all of the places she and others like herself are not able to visit because of their inaccessibility. "These are our lost horizons," she says, explaining that she decided to use this as her theme. After Maureen, her husband and a friend figured out the design, Winn built a wooden stairway with the words Lost Horizons at the summit. The stairway, painted light blue, will fit over her lap and legs. In black letters printed by Winn are Maureen's words:

Welcome to my world where
Architectural barriers abound.
Where my search for access always
Results in the long way around.
Where Shangri-La is shrouded by Obstacles too large to surmount
And lost horizons are too
Numerous to count.
So when you have a building
Plan in mind:
Please consider the needs of
The Disabled, elderly and blind.
We need your help
And Cooperation
To Achieve a truly
Liberated nation.
We have no lofty dreams of
A Camelot or Shangri-La
We just want to be Where You Are.

"There is just one void in our lives. We always wanted children. I had a miscarriage in 1967 and after that couldn't walk without assistance. Now I am legally blind in my left eye and partially blind in the other. I miss children most around holiday times when we gather with friends and family," she says.

She speaks of her husband, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Winn of Kirk st., as a large strong man who takes her everywhere. She cited an instance when, at her request, he drove more than 50 miles out of his way to visit another MS victim in a nursing home whom they knew about but had never met. "We knew she would appreciate having visitors."

Mrs. Winn has therapy with a Winchester Hospital therapist each week through the local Visiting Nurses and swims at the Woburn "Y" and in the backyard pool when the weather is nice. "Swimming is the only sport I am still able to participate in," she says, adding that she won quite a few medals for swimming and diving and was planning to train for the Olympics before getting the disease.

Mrs. Winn is hopeful that MS will be licked. She reports recent research findings. "They've been able to inject myelin from the spinal flud in humans into animals giving them EAE (an equivalent of MS in animals) and in turn have been able to regenerate a myeline sheath."

Meanwhile, the National Multiple Sclerosis Society has embarked on another annual fund raising campaign and Maureen Winn continues to put meaning in her life.

Winchester ACLD Announces Meets

Mrs. Polly Berman, director of the learning disability program in the Framingham school system, will speak at the Clark Junior High School, Lexington, on March 29 at 8 p.m.

Gerard Rothschild, assistant professor of special education at Boston University, will discuss "Hyperactivity, Drugs, and the Learning Disabled Child" at the Wilmington public library at 8 p.m., also on March 29.

The Winchester Association for Children with Learning Disabilities canceled its program on March 15 due to the illness of featured speaker, J. William Adams.

recommending unfavorable action on the petition of Michael M. Connolly and others to have the town pay more than 50 percent of contributory group life and health insurance for town employees and their dependents.

The town now pays 50 percent. If enacted, the law would allow—not require—the Board of Selectmen during the next bargaining sessions to provide for payment by the town of some of the employees' 50 percent share of health, disability and death insurance.

The issue was on the ballot last year and lost.

Both boards recommend unfavorable action on selling 11 pieces of School Committee-controlled property. "The Board of Selectmen has solicited the views of the Winchester School Committee, the Planning Board and the Board of Park Commissioners," the selectmen wrote in their annual newsletter to town meeting members.

"These three boards have recommended to the selectmen that they feel this property should be retained by the town."

A result of a petition by Robert F. Conlon and others, the article lists the following properties as "not needed for the purpose for which they were purchased": 10 Marshall rd. (land), 54-56 Fletcher st. (land), 5 Alben st. (land and buildings), Alben st., northerly side (land), Johnson rd., northerly side (land), Highland ave. (Highland School land), Washington st. (Wadleigh School land), 22 Highland ave. (land and building), 26 Highland ave. (land and building), 14 Reservoir st. (land and building), and 6 Reservoir st. (land and building).

Finance, in its annual report to town meeting, states that though opposed, "if separate motions are made on each piece of property, the Finance Committee will state its position accordingly."

Finance also opposes an article to transfer control of McManus House, 465 Main st., from the School Committee to the selectmen for use by the Recreation Committee in its programs for senior citizens.

The unused property, next to the McCall Junior High School, is slated to be demolished by the School Department for use as a kindergarten play area when the old junior high becomes an elementary school.

The selectmen have made no recommendation. They are "awaiting further information relative to the cost of necessary repairs and more complete details on the programs for the senior citizens."

Finance and selectmen recommend approval of an atiicle to allow the Police Department to enter into mutual aid agreements with other police departments. The selectmen noted: "At present, Winchester is dependent on the cooperation of neighboring police departments in quelling civil disturbances.

"Under present conditions, the town can no longer afford to depend on these informal arrangements."

About $200,000 in new equipment is being recommended by the Board of Selectmen. No position has yet been taken by Finance because there are no firm figures on the new equipment to be purchased.

The selectmen have a five-year capital equipment program for the Fire and Police Departments to provide for a constant level of expenditure each year in replacing equipment. Figures for the next three years exceed that goal because of large expenditures for fire equipment.

Depending on how the bids come in, the following figures may change. But these are the selectmen's figures on their new equipment: replace leaf collector, $6,700; replace two dump trucks, $30,000 (all for Highway Department); replace one salt spreader, $3,300; purchase three underbody scrapers, $12,000 (both for Snow & Ice); one leaf shredder mixer, $17,210 (all departments); replace backhoe loader, $20,000; replace pick-up truck, $3,500; replace cab and chassis, $3,200 (for Water & Sewer); replace fire prevention station wagon, $3,500; replace resuce truck, $20,000, $9,000 to be reimbursed in federal funds; replace ladder truck, $80,000 (for Fire Department); replace four cruisers, $13,354 (for Police Department); and one van truck, $3,000 (for dog officer).

Other articles deal with Town Hall alterations, a sidewalk for Westland avenue, acceptance of certain streets as public ways, and rezoning of land on Cambridge street for Bonnell Motors.

One article, submitted by the Library Trustees, seeks $35,000 for air conditioning at the library. Finance is recommending unfavorable action. No recommendation has yet been made on the Recreation Committee's articles for lights for four tennis courts at Palmer street playground and at Ginn Field. Finance recommends favorable action on the Cemetery Commissioners' article to repurchase graves and lots from persons who no longer wish to retain ownership of the.

But the committee recommends unfavorable action on the Water & Sewer Board's request to appropriate funds to pay unpaid back bills.

Other articles seek $2,500 to establish a council on aging. Finance recommending approval: establish a capital planning committee, recommended approval: to establish a committee to review, study, and make recommendations concerning creation of a design and architectural review commission, recommended approved.

Wildwood Cemetery later that morning. At the Lake st. shed three sledge hammers and a few cans of spray paint were missing. The walls of the shed had been doused with the paint. Officers Nurnberger and Wright investigated.

An hour later Officers William H. O'Neil and Joseph N. Perritano reported that windows in a truck in a shed at Wildwood Cemetery had been broken. They said there was other damage to that vehicle. Nothing was known to be taken at that time. Both sites are enclosed by a stockade fence locked at night.

Miscellaneous damage reported to Winchester police during the week included a number of windows at the Lincoln School, broken over a series of nights, and to the front and side lawns of two properties on Ridge st., the fourth time one resident has experienced this type of vandalism this year.

Automobiles on Thompson st. and Glen rd. were damaged and the front window of a car moving down Mystic Valley pkwy pierced by a BB shot.

Bicycle thefts were reported on Central and Arlington sts. and Longfellow rd., all from garages.

In other recent incidents local police were aided in the apprehension of a man by the definite trail he left — his clothes. Responding to telephone calls Thursday afternoon officers followed a trail of shoes, socks, shirt, etc. down Main st., past Mystic School and to Symmes Corner where they took a patient from a Kittery, Me., mental hospital into custody. He was, by then, naked.

According to Lt. Crawford teletype information alerted the department to his identity, and he was held until guardians could come for him.

combine, he said. "It's not Ford's intention to be located in two adjacent towns."

The selectmen questioned Ralph Bonnell on the future of the present agency building on Main street in Winchester Center. "I don't think you'll have any objection to the people who have asked me about it," Bonnell said. "They are all Winchesterites."

Bonnell has had inquiries from persons interested in developing the Main street property for apartments. The property was appraised for $200,000 at one time, he said.

Planning Board Chairman Schaefer said Tuesday that another vote will be taken when Geary returns from Alaska (he's there in connection with his work with the Air Force) and this vote will supersede the previous Planning Board vote.

Geary, who ran unopposed for a seat on the Planning Board, is a vociferous foe of the proposal to construct apartments on Cambridge street across from Pond street. If he opposes the Bonnell plan, the vote could change to 2-2.

Schaefer refused to say who the two members voting against were. He said the board takes its votes in open session but does not record members for or against and as far as he knows this practice is in conformity with the state's open meeting law.

Babysitting Class Tonight, 7:15 P.M.

The Winchester Jaycee-ettes will begin its annual six-week baby sitters' school this evening at the Winchester Public Library from 7:15-8:45.

Tonight's speaker will be Dr. Euan T. Blanch of 16 Alden Lane speaking to the prospective sitters on general first aid methods for common emergencies.

Blanch is originally from Salt Lake City, Utah. He was graduated from Harvard Medical School and did his pediatric residency in the University Hospitals in Cleveland, Ohio, and the Cleveland Metropolitan.

Besides being on the staff of the Winchester Hospital, Blanch has private services at the Lying-In Division of the Boston Hospital for Women. He is an assistant in medicine in the Boston Children's Hospital and a clinical instructor in pediatrics at Harvard Medical School. He is also a diplomat of the American Board of Pediatrics.

Blanch said he feels baby sitting is a highly responsible job which should not be undertaken without proper instruction. Sitters will be invited to participate in a question and answer period.

Any person who is 12 years of age may register by telephoning Mrs. Brent Outwater of 14 Mystic ave.

HS Parent-Faculty Plan Film Shows

"The Mouse That Roared," a comedy movie starring Peter Sellers, along with Walt Disney's "Beaver Valley" will be shown April 6 and April 7 in the new Winchester High School auditorium.

Sponsored by the Parent-Faculty Association of Winchester High School, films are felt to combine the funniest of comedies with the most thrilling of nature films to provide great entertainment for all ages.

Two Bruins play-off tickets will go to lucky winners at the April 6 performance. Other prizes will be awarded on Saturday. Tickets may be obtained from Mrs. George Hunter or Mrs. William Zettler or from other members of the Parent-Faculty Association.

Faculty Stuns Hockey Students

The student hockey players of Winchester High met the teachers at the USA playing surface in their annual game last week. The youngsters figured to roll over their teachers, but came out on the short end of a 6-1 count.

Action was fast and furious with both teams having many good scoring opportunities. However, JV coach Jonathan Stableford thwarted the students on several spectacular saves. The former Williams captain turned aside long shots and those from close in with casual ease, and when the final buzzer sounded the score board read: Faculty 6, Students 1.

Summer Science Study Programs Openings Exist

Francis X. Finigan, director of science of the Winchester public schools has received word that the National Science Foundation has released over $1.9 million for research and study programs in science and mathematics for high ability secondary school students.

He pointed out that more than 4,000 young people will participate in the student science training projects this summer.

The projects, conducted by various colleges throughout the country, range from geological research in Arctic conditions to anthropological research at archeological excavations.

Winchester students may contact him for further information on the program.

Winchester students who attended Institutes last summer include Debra Yavner of 57 Bacon st. who took part in a biochemistry project at the Loomis Institute and Patrick Lee who did a study on plant pathology at Purdue University.

RSVP Speaker Says Winchester Should Build Talent Pool

Participation in the newly funded Retired Senior Volunteer Program (RSVP) was unanimously voted at a recent meeting of the Committee for a Winchester Council on Aging.

Guest speaker Eric Kingston, assistant director of Eastern Middlesex County RSVP, told over 50 members present that his agency had a grant of more than $70,000 to recruit and train senior volunteers in the 11 communities which it serves.

He said Winchester, as one of these towns, should use its share of the grant to develop a talent pool of people over 60 years of age who will volunteer their services in many areas of Winchester and neighboring communities, offering their wealth of experience and skills.

The RSVP project, sponsored by Elizabeth Peabody House, Somerville, will provide part-time help in coordinating the program, limited transportation, on-the-job meals, and accident insurance for all volunteers.

In its cooperating role, the committee for a Council on Aging has offered to help locate potential volunteers and matching placement opportunities. In addition, the senior service line (729-2111) will take messages from interested persons. The line is staffed on weekday mornings from 10 - 12.

Sounds like multiplication? Or is it a carpenter's jargon for a piece of wood? Wrong. It's newspaper talk for a 2 inch ad and it can cost as little as $2.98 per week. Too small to be effective?

WHY A TITLE SEARCH?

A home is a peculiar kind of a purchase. Although you may be the only purchaser involved, others may also claim rights in the property.

For example, there may be an easement to restrict the use of your land. The seller may not have paid his taxes. A previously undisclosed heir of a former owner may appear and claim a share of the value. These are a few of the problems that can and do occur.

Your deed to the property does not eliminate claims that others may have. It simply transfers the seller's right of ownership to you.

But there are ways to protect yourself from these lurking dangers. A title search of public records will check for possible claims against the real estate. But for protection against hidden land title problems that even the most thorough search will not reveal -- the answer is title insurance.

If you have any questions on this subject or on any other aspect of Real Estate, please feel free to call or drop in at JAMES T. TREFREY, INC., REALTORS, 27 Waterfield Road, Winchester - Tel. 729-6100.

AIM Concert Is In April

On Sunday, April 1, at 3:15 p.m., Lexington High School Auditorium will be the scene of the final Adventures In Music concert for this school year.

The concert will include a 31 piece orchestra of professional musicians, student instrumentalists from participating towns, and student dancers who will be under the direction of Judy Williams, director of the Dance Movement Laboratory of the Boston Center of the Arts. Miss Williams studied "Appalachian Spring," which will be the highlight dance number, under Martha Graham. Cara Shaw and Gordon Shaw, young residents of Winchester, have been selected from among 300 auditioners to participate in the dance selections.

Aside from the student instrumentalists' participation, the concert will open with a surprise number, followed by the rendition of the winning composition written by children in participating towns, orchestrated by Newton Wayland, Rockefeller Artist-In-Residence and director of Adventures In Music. Winners of the composition will be announced at the concert an tapes made at that time will be given to each winner.

Student instrumentalists chosen from Winchester are: Lincoln School — Kurt Phinney; Muraco — Thomas Stoddard; Mystic — James Wells, Bruce Hunter, Kathy Hughes, Thomas Lowell; Vincent-Owen — Cheryl Daugherty, Paul Feldmann, Brad Shea; Washington — Julie Day; Wyman — Janet Hurley; Parkhurst — Georgianne Abbanat.

The spring concert carries wide appeal, as it is for all ages, for families, for youngsters interested in dance, orchestration, composition, and especially carries appeal for those interested in American Music. The Shaker hymn prominent in "Appalachian Spring" is one entitled "Simple Gifts" and will be sung by mezzo soprano Jan Curtis (well remembered in recent concerts for her role as the mother in "Amahl" and as Miss Baggett in "The Little Sweep").

For further information regarding tickets, contact town ticket chairman, Mrs. Andrew Nichols. For questions regarding student participation, contact Mrs. John Hamilton.

TEN YOUTH of St. Eulalia's Parish, preparing to receive confirmation, have been ministering to patients at the Kennedy Memorial Hospital every Sunday afternoon for 12 weeks.

St. Eulalia Youth Prepare For Confirmation By Serving

Ten Winchester teenagers of St. Eulalia's Parish are preparing to receive the Sacrament of Confirmation in a unique way. They have been visiting Kennedy Memorial Hospital for Children each Sunday afternoon for 12 weeks to give of time and talent to work with young patients confined to the surgical unit. Each week, with love and attentiveness the teenagers entertained children by reading stories, working on art projects, making bean bags, and helping them fill long hours of hospitalization.

Brian Dunn, Susan Johanson, Steve Meahl, Tim Porter, Gary Beard, Jean Cincutta, Bill Smith, Lynne Robinson, Diane Gorgano, and Mary McAdam, all juniors at Winchester High School, are said to have thoroughly enjoyed their Christian Service Project.

On the first Sunday after the program ended one youngster said, "Gee, I'm going to miss my friend—he was kind of like a big brother."

Nonsectarian and nonendowed, Kennedy is owned and operated by the Franciscan Missionaries of Mary. It is accredited by the American Hospital Association.

At Kennedy the emphasis is on a total patient program with growth and adjustment in the ways it can serve the needs of the total child. The hospital maintains a complete rehabilitation program for children with all types of orthopedic, neurologic and learning disabilities as well as acute medical, surgical, diagnostic, and therapeutic services to all children from infancy to 21 years of age.

Lesson-Sermon

First Church of Christ, Scientist, 114 Church st. invites residents to its 11 a.m. Sunday services and to its 8 p.m. Wednesday evening meetings. Next Sunday the following quotes bring to one a lesson from the sermon.

From Romans: "For to be carnally minded is death; but to be spiritually minded is life and peace." And from "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "Selfishness and sensualism are educated in mortal mind by ...conversation about the body, and by the expectation of perpetual pleasure of pain from it; and this education is at the expense of spiritual growth. If we array thought in mortal vestures, it must lose its immortal nature."

What do you look for when buying carpeting?
Chances are, you start out by looking for color, then texture, and finally price. Well, that's fine except you forgot the all-important fact ... QUALITY.
Quality is the determining factor in appearance, wear and utility. It's the quality of wool, nylon or acrylic that will determine the wear and beauty of the particular carpet you select.
But, who's to know what's good and what isn't? That's why it's very important to buy your carpeting from a retailer that deals exclusively in this line. His product knowledge has to be exceptional so he may guide you toward making an intelligent purchase. Thirty-nine years in the business has taught us to keep pace with the newer and more complex synthetics and commercial processes used in rug manufacturing.
We deal in rugs and nothing else. We sell them, clean them and even repair them. We'll be happy to tell you everything we know about the carpeting you have in mind to buy ... and then guarantee you'll be satisfied because we stake our reputation on it.

Bike Rider Gets Term For Bag Grab

A 17-year-old bicycle riding Winchester youth, who allegedly grabbed a 72-year-old woman's purse in Medford earlier this month, was given a suspended jail term in Malden District Court Monday.

Herbert Marsinelli, 36 White st., was sentenced to six months in the Middlesex County House of Correction, Billerica, suspended to March 11, 1974. The sentence was levied on a charge of larceny from a person.

Police charged that Marsinelli, while riding a bicycle, grabbed the victim's purse as she was walking around the Salem st. rotary around 11 a.m. on March 3. He was captured on Cross st. by two civilians, who held him until three off-duty officers arrived and arrested him. The victim's pocketbook and its contents were recovered, police said.

Police Disperse Euclid Avenue Youth Scenes

Local police answered residents' complaints on two occasions this weekend when they were called to the end of Euclid ave. to disperse large groups of youths attending parties. There were no arrests or interviews with police.

The Friday night crowd was estimated at 150, while Saturday night's gathering was of an unknown number. Noise and traffic on the street which runs from Highland ave. up to the Middlesex Fells Reservation provoked the complaints.

Police were later informed that a tape deck and tapes valued at $65 were missing from one car parked on Euclid, while $115 in a tape deck, nine tapes and tape box was taken from another. A bicycle stolen from the trunk of an automobile also stationed there was recovered an hour later at Main st. and Mystic Valley pkwy. Beer cans were found in the area.

Sergeant John J. Frongillo and Officer John E. Guarente responded to the site Friday night at about 10:45 p.m. Sgt. Frongillo returned with Officers James P. Kelley and Andrew Saraco the following night at about the same time. The parties were apparently called here in the absence of a youth's parents.

In other matters, as Winchester residents looked around at their possessions over the past week, they have found a few items

Main Street Disturbances Irk Residents

A group of Main street residents and merchants are appealing for police protection from disturbances by youths.

A petition signed by 16 persons was recently submitted to the Board of Selectmen in protest.

"We are appealing to you for more adequate protection in the area of Main street between Swanton street and the telephone building," reads the petition.

Police Chief Edward F. Bowler has not been available for comment.

The petition continued: "For the past two years a group of young people, starting with an original two to four boys, has been steadily growing and has now reached a number between 15 to 20 boys and girls and several cars.

"They are creating a traffic hazard and are a source of annoyance to people on the street. We property owners must pick up their litter — broken beer bottles and paper — every morning before we can enter our driveways.

"The property at 921 Main street has been broken into twice in the past 12 months. Last Friday night, 921 Main st. was entered and considerable damage done. Articles were stolen. Mrs. Elliot of the Nook & Cranny lost over $1,700 in valuables.

"This condition cannot be tolerated any further." The petition then asks for better lighting and a dispersal of the youths.

"We are extremely reluctant to take matters into our own hands but if necessary are prepared to do so. We have the registrations of the cars involved and will take them to the registry if something isn't done very soon to correct this situation.

"We are appealing to you and the Police Department to work with us and try to solve the problem without causing the young people to have a police record.

"We believe this can be accomplished and are prepared to act accordingly in conjunction with your office and the police."

Signers include Harold G. Swenson, 931 Main st.; Richard F. Murdock, 934 Main st. and Linda's Doughnuts, 878 Main st.

Meatless Week Ahead; Tuna, Greens On Fare

It looks as if Winchester residents will be joining 7,000 Boston area residents who have pledged to support the national meat boycott during the week of April 1. Local people will participate by buying less or no meat and eating dishes containing eggs, cheese, fish, poultry and macaroni.

The Star polled about 20 people downtown on Tuesday afternoon. Here are their comments:

Walter Gagel, 7 Winthrop st., says his family may include poultry in their diet but during the meat boycott they plan to eat vegetable dishes and use Polynesian recipes. Previously they sent their disapproval of high prices to Congressmen and "intend to keep meat purchases at a minimum after the boycott."

Mary Livingstone, who works in an office on Church st., says she's joining the meat boycott after persuasion by co-worker Mary Richmond, who is planning to eat macaroni and cheese as a substitute. "I have a husband to feed," Mrs. Livingstone says, "so I'll have to have fish and other meat substitutes for him. That's about all we can do. "Anything else that's done will have to be done by the young people."

Arlene McGrale of 71 Grove pl. feels the meat boycott is the only way to get prices down. "Everyone should cooperate."

Mrs. William Warnock, 236 Mystic Valley pkwy., has not been buying meat recently and plans to continue throughout the boycott. Her family is on a macaroni and cheese and tunafish diet. Mrs. Warnock says, "Not only am I not buying meat but I'm not buying other extras that I used to buy."

Mrs. Carl Schwartzman, 4 Black Horse terr., feels the boycott will be good for everyone." By joining together we may get prices down."

Nancy Boyle, 130 Mt. Vernon st., has some meat in the house that she will use during the boycott, but other meals will be meatless. "Something has got to be done. Prices get higher and higher each week."

Mrs. J. H. Clarke, who lives with her sister Dorothy Larned, at 149 Highland st. says, "We eat little meat anyway except when we entertain. I expect we'll stick with cheese dishes and eggs during the boycott."

Albert Ciampa of Tufts rd. says with prices so high his wife has been conducting her own boycott all along. "We've been eating chicken, noodles, macaroni and other casseroles and probably will continue to do so."

Donna Manganaro, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank X. Manganaro of 95 Thornberry rd., says their family of six will join the boycott by eating tunafish and macaroni.

A woman who wouldn't disclose her name said she was joining the boycott but wondered if it would do any good if people were going to buy double meat this week. The Star interviewer asked her if that was what she was doing. "Yes," she responded.

Another woman who did not give her name indicated she had sympathy with the boycott but couldn't join because she was on a special protein diet calling for two ounces of meat a day. "Whe merchants are your friends it's hard to give your name," she said.

Another woman who omitted her name because "her husband would kill her" said that food prices in general were causing problems in her household. Last Friday she paid 49 cents per pound for salami and on Tuesday the same meat had increased to 89 cents a pound. Also, last week two pounds of onions were 69 cents; this week they are 79 cents. Even fish is $1 a pound, she said. Her sons complain that there is nothing to eat, and her daughter complains that macaroni will make her fat. "Looks like we're heading for a depression," she guessed. "Can Nixon do that?" she asked.

Except for three who didn't know what their family would be doing, only one of those questioned was against the boycott. This woman, who wouldn't reveal her name, wants prices to come down but says "a meat boycott is not the answer." She blames high prices on labor factions and strikers who cause wages to go up and in turn prices to increase. "It's a vicious cycle, she said as she walked on down the sidewalk.

Perhaps William J. Keough of 23 Kenwin rd. is the most fortunate consumer since he eats his meals out, often at the Winchester Hospital. However, he is concerned with the problem and wonders why so much food is being imported these days.

Town meeting meets Mondays and Thursdays at 7:45 p.m. in the new high school. Public may attend.

Leonard Pool Plans Money Approved--Second TM Grant

Winchester town meeting members approved an $18,500 appropriation Tuesday for bid specifications for a replacement swimming facility at Leonard Pool. The action, taken at a special town meeting convened on the first full night of annual sessions, is expected to be a commitment toward actual construction of the pool.

Thursday night's appropriation was in addition to the $8500 granted in 1972 for plans and specifications to determine the construction costs of an artificial swimming pool. The project is anticipated to be completed by summer of 1974 at a cost of $170,000-200,000. The Leonard Pool Subcommittee of the Permanent Building Committee made the prediction.

In his presentation for the subcommittee Sherman W. Saltmarsh Jr. urged the town meeting members: "If later you can't vote for the $200,000, don't vote for the $8500 now." Finance Committee Chairman Lawrence T. Smith echoed this statement. Once bids are received, anticipated by the end of June, TMMs will be approached to make a decision on actual construction.

The present design calls for a 25 meter by 25 yard "L" shaped pool to replace the existing 40-year-old man-made hole. It should meet official requirements for sanctioned outdoor swimming and diving meets. The facility will include a deck and lounge area, diving boards, lifeguard and supervision stands, first aid station, landscaping and separate wading pool.

The existing bathhouse will be renovated. With a capacity for 320 bathers and an expansion potential to 414, plans now indicate the facility will be able to take care of "the average 1972 daily usage of both Leonard and Wedge Ponds."

Boards urging favorable action on the article were the Planning Board, Board of Health, Board of Selectmen and Recreation Committee. While Health was "concerned over health safety" at the present pool, Recreation pointed out that until adequate rain fell last summer, the pool could not be opened. Earlier it had been noted that Leonard Pool had been closed for 18 days in 1968, 17 in 1969, eight in 1970, and 33 in 1971. Last year the pool opened in July for limited daily use.

A move for indefinite postponement of the article made by Prec. 1 member Arthur J. Hewis Jr. was defeated. He contended that town records did not show any expenditures by the subcommittee under the previous Article 44 as of Tuesday last week.

Town Comptroller James J. Costello responded that since that Tuesday his office had received a contract for the architects, signed on Jan. 22 of this year. Two bills totalling $6770 were also in the process of being reviewed, Costello said.

Controversy was also raised when an

Selectmen Strike Out--Fire, Police Budget Bids Nipped

Budget-conscious town meeting members Monday voted down holiday pay for the police and fire chiefs, cut overtime allowance in the Fire Department and refused to approve money for hiring a consultant to investigate employees' injury claims.

Moving quickly through the lengthy budget article, the members heard Finance Committee Chairman Lawrence T. Smith argue against holiday pay for the chiefs on the grounds their nearly $20 000-a-year salary is adequate pay.

A new state law requires communities to pay their chiefs extra pay if they work holidays. Winchester's policy has always been that the chiefs are on duty at all times. Smith said the Board of Selectmen should give the chiefs holidays off except in emergencies.

Selectman John J. Sullivan urged the payment on the basis the town should have "full time chiefs." Pay for two chiefs for 11 holidays would have been $1,200. Chiefs' salary this year are up $2,500 over last year as a result of another state law.

Cutting $9,550 from the Fire Department's overtime budget represented a sharp difference of opinion between Finance and the selectmen. Speaking against the cut, Selectman Sullivan said the cut will reduce fire coverage during summer vacation.

Chairman Smith said reduced manpower at the central fire station could be made up by sending a man in a private car from the West Side station during fires. He held up a newspaper article showing that Boston considered sending firefighters to fires in taxicabs.

"The time has come to explore alternative methods of fire coverage at reduced costs," Smith said.

Sullivan countered that sending a man from the West Side station will reduce the fire fighting effectiveness of the West Side operation. The town meeting approved the cut on a voice vote.

The selectmen lost another round when the meeting on a 90-69 standing vote turned down an appropriation of $2,300 for the hiring of an outside consultant to investigate workmen compensation claims.

Town meeting member Michael D. Saraco said the salary of the Board of Selectmen's executive secretary Edward Donnelly—$21,000—is enough to cover doing this work, as he does now.

Donnelly said town workers are familiar with his car, implying they could fake injuries if they saw the gold-colored beach wagon approaching.

Paul E. Amico, chairman of the Board of Selectmen, said claims have increased substantially in the last few years—from $25,000 in 1968 to $44,000 last year. "We're not asking for someone else to take up the ser-

Gov't. Study Committee Proposes Charter

The Town Government Study Committee met with the Board of Selectmen Monday night to explain why it wants creation of a charter commission to explore how Winchester's town government might be changed.

Of the five selectmen, Arthur F. Dunbar had the strongest reservations about a charter commission. He sees "great problems" if the commissioners are given "wrong information" and a form of government "not good for the town" is set up.

He said the commission will have a voting block in the 1,700 persons who sign the petition to get the issue on the ballot. "They will automatically vote for it because they signed the petition."

The chairman of the study committee, Robert J. Grenzeback, said his group prefers a commission approach because it is more direct and speedier than the alternative, special acts by the legislature.

According to the committee's schedule, the question of whether or not the town should establish a commission would be on the ballot in March of next year. At the same election, nine charter commissioners would be elected.

Public hearings would be held to garner citizen ideas on how the town government should be changed. The commission's subsequent recommendations would also be subject to public hearings.

Dunbar asked Grenzeback if the study group is recommending a town manager form of government. "No. We are not prejudging. Who those nine people will be when elected we have no way of knowing and the committee will have no way of influencing them one way or another.

"They might decide we have the best form of town government and leave it that way." Grenzeback added, however, that his committee "feels our management structure needs overhauling."

Selectman Chairman Paul F. Amico said the study committee should be prepared to explain to town meeting this year why changes will be sought through a commission rather than town meeting. "They might feel slighted," Amico said. He also said the study committee should be prepared to tell town meeting what it hopes to accomplish by creation of a commission.

"We do feel a need for some type of centralized management," Grenzeback said. Amico felt the study committee is going to have to have solid arguments in favor of a commission considering the committees proposal last year for creation of central public works office was defeated in a referendum, after being passed by town meeting.

Grenzeback said this latest plan is "of broader scope."

Selectman William G. Chapman Jr. said the public works proposal failed because the voters weren't educated about it.

The selectmen this week voted to refuse to pay the town's $40,000 share of operating Middlesex Hospital in Waltham. "The cost of the hospital has skyrocketed," Sullivan said.

Amico said the board wants a "clarification of its assessment" before paying.

Dwight Baghdoyan, president of the Forum at the First Congregational Church, requested the board's permission to paint the waiting room and stairwells at Wedgemere Station. Murals and art designs would be created.

Selectman Sullivan, declaring himself opposed to "informal murals" such as paintings of Boston Bruins players dine on walls in nearby towns, asked that the board have a say in what goes up.

Baghdoyan said sketches would be submitted prior to painting. The town will pay for the paint.

Charter Schedule

The following is the Town Government Study Committee's schedule for creation of a Winchester charter commission:

Feb. (1st week) Candidates file nomination papers.

Moss Ready To Construct

The recent unanimous decision by the state's highest court upholding anti-snob zoning may clear the way for Mr. and Mrs. Jack J. Moss to erect garden apartments on Cambridge street.

Still to be cleared is a court suit brought by residents against the Moss's firm, First Carriage Hill Associates. Moss has brought a motion before the court in that case to decide in his favor on the basis that the issue of law raised by the residents was decided by the Massachusetts Supreme Judicial Court ruling.

The state's highest court last week upheld the constitutionality of a 1969 law that gave the Massachusetts Department of Community Affairs power to override local laws preventing construction of low and middle income housing.

Moss's motion will be heard tomorrow in Superior Court, where the residents' case is pending.

Moss says he is prepared to go ahead with construction of his 176 units as soon as he receives approval for certain minor changes in building plans as required by the town building inspector. He described any further court action as "clerical work."

Once financing is approved, Moss said, work can possibly begin in a month or two and be completed in a year.

Moss said the units will cost $18,000 each and rents will be $175 for a two-bedroom apartment. The complex will have a swimming pool, he said.

He added that 25 percent of the units have been offered to the Winchester Housing Authority for elderly housing.

Town meeting meets Mondays and Thursdays at 7:45 p.m. in the new high school. Public may attend.

Parking Violators At WHS Are Subject To $50 Fine

The Winchester School Committee is going to try its hand at educating the local public to Fire Code laws which could solve the traffic and parking problems at Winchester High School. The ruler with which they may occasionally slap hands is a $50 fine.

Meeting with School Committeemen Tuesday night were Fire Chief I. Francis Amico, Chief of Police Edward F. Bowler and Andrew L. Nichols, former member of the Permanent Building Committee which sat during the planning and construction of the facility.

Receiving most attention was the private way connecting the front and back parking lots, between Skillings rd. and Nelson st., and the semi-circular driveway at the building's entrance, violated mainly at night by organizations meeting in the school.

The Committee has tried posting and painting at the site. Action now may be to add "subject to $50 fine" to the no parking in fire lane signs, construct bumps in the private roadway to slow down racing automobiles and to place two gates at the Nelson st. end of this way. There will be no attempt to have the passage made into a public way, or to go into the towing business.

Amico complains because parked cars are blocking fire lanes, a costly problem should fire threaten the 1200 students in the building. Police have received complaints of speeding on the private way and of traffic created by motorists wishing to avoid the five street intersection and light close by.

Painting had little effect, while signs "curbed parking somewhat," Amico said. Bowler reasoned that if a road was a fire lane, it was not for public use, therefore, administrative action by the owner of the property or tagging by the police department could be utilized for control.

Although the police can enforce the Fire Code, tagging was considered "not good public relations for the School Committee or the Police Department" when directed at Town Meeting Members or officials during such events as the Town Meeting, Bowler stated. He is looking for the habitual offender at this site.

After separating the two problems the private way was discussed first. The police chief favored closing the road with a chain or gate toward the Nelson st. end. The necessity of keeping the road open was questioned. "I do not see the purpose in having a road through school property, ... You invite people in, then you hang them," he stated, referring to tagging of the vehicles.

Nichols said that the Building Committee had originally been concerned with the passage running on the other side of the school by the tennis courts. The committee had not thought that the Nelson to Skillings road would be "used in such a manner." He also recommended that gates be installed at this location, just as they had been at the courts side way.

Regarding the semi-circular driveway Amico recalled the $50 fine in effect under the Fire Code. In jotting down registration numbers on successive occasions, he found that generally offenders were not "repeaters." Rather than "rouse resentment" Bowler reiterated that tagging should be done with discretion in an attempt to catch the habitual offender.

When the fire chief praised the work of police at this site during Town Meeting, both Amico and Bowler agreed that the police force would have to be an army in order to guard the spot at all times.

The suggestion of sawhorses was short lived after Committee Chairman Mrs. Mary A. Mears recalled that $320 worth of sawhorses previously used at the old high school had been reduced to splinters in time.

Nichols maintained that there was no "lack of remedy" for the problems. "It is just a matter of doing it."

Finance Figures $3.47 Tax Boost

The Finance Committee has submitted a supplemental report predicting a tax rate hike of $3.47 for 1973.

Chairman Lawrence T. Smith said Tuesday that the $3.47 figure includes 68 cents for the new Leonard Pool, a project not yet approved by town meeting. The 68 cents would be applied for the next 12 months. An additional 30 cents would be applied during the following six months.

Without the pool, the tax rate hike would be $2.79, well below the committee's previous goal on this year's tax boost. This year's rate, if approved by the assessors, will be $64.47. Last year's was $61.

Finance estimates town meeting appropriations at $22 million. Other charges, such as county assessments, are estimated at $2 million.

There is still a small number of articles for which Finance doesn't yet have enough information on to have figured them into the tax. Neither has Finance made a recommendation on those articles and thus the $3.47 figure may change.

One of those articles is for covers for the town's water tanks. The Water and Sewer Board hasn't sumitted a figure.

Serving The Community For 90 Years

Save McManus House

Winchester taxpayers have been exceedingly generous towards its youth, building expensive schools and developing a townwide recreation program. Now the town has a chance to do something for its elderly, at practically no cost.

McManus House on Main st. next to the McCall Junior High School, is an 85-year-old house structurally sound and ideal, both in location and interior layout, as a center for elderly affairs. No estimate has been made on how much it would cost to repair and renovate. It would probably not be expensive.

The School Department wants to tear the house down and erect a play area for kindergarten children who will be attending McCall after it is converted into an elementary school. To listen to School Department officials, one would think McManus House is about to collapse into the ground by its own weight. Termites have eaten away the supports, they say; the floors list; danger threatens with every step.

As anyone who took the time Saturday to tour the house will testify, such is far, far from the truth. A Certificate of Occupancy for 95 persons was issued by the Massachusetts Department of Public Safety on Sept. 9 of 1970, valid until Sept. 8, 1973. William B. MacDonald, Winchester building commissioner, inspected the property recently and concluded that while there nas been "some deterioration in the structural sections," they are "not sufficient to warrant the conclusion," as stated by the School Department, that the building should be condemned and no one allowed in it.

Vincent Carroll, a town meeting member who has petitioned the town meeting to turn over control of the house to the Board of Selectmen for use by the Recreation Committee, on Saturday pointed out to visitors the single place where termites have eaten away. It is a main structural support. Carroll maintains the support and another support weakened by dry rot can easily be replaced.

So much for the School Department's condemnation argument. A more valid argument they have raised is that of a play area for the kindergarten children, who will need some place for outside recreation. A center for the elderly and a children's play area are not necessarily incompatible, however.

In fact, in many communities, including Winchester, there have been efforts made to bring the young and old together. William Clark, assistant superintendent of schools, dismisses the suggestion that the garage behind McManus House be torn down and a play area put in its place and on the remainder of the McManus lot. It's still much too small, Clark says.

It may not be the size the School Department wants, but it certainly is large enough to accommodate a kindergarten class. The children don't take up that much room. Kindergarten recreation periods would probably have to be staggered, however.

The School Department's only concern is educating the youth of Winchester in a school system as fine as the taxpayers will allow. Their interest doesn't extend to preserving fine structures or to the needs of the elderly. That's not their department. So it will be up to the town meeting members to take the initiative in creating a place the elderly can call their own.

Auction Is Success

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

The Lynch Parent's Association and students held a most successful auction at the school last Friday evening. Through your newspaper, we would like to thank the many townspeople who donated so generously to its success.

The auction committee is also grateful to the many parents and staff members who gave much in time and effort as well as goods. Our most special thanks and priase however, are extended to the many students who worked so very hard for their school. Their energy, enthusiasm and good spirits resulted in an auction that was not only profitable, but great fun.

Initiative Noted

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

The word "initiative" has always been linked in my mind with the development of this country. It's a word I like because usually it represents an expression of productive individuality.

At the last meeting of Winchester Environmental Protection Assn. (WEPA), all present were impressed with the initiative shown by Mrs. Susan Guild, a resident of Wedge Pond. Mrs. Guild brought together several neighbors concerned about the pond. They in turn have gathered together still more.

Their object is to clean up the debris cast into Wedge by passersby. Their willingness to organize this cleanup and make this contribution to our visual health should be noted.

Walking Helpful

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

I would like to again remind our friends in the community that on April 8 the Mistick Side Girl Scout Council is sponsoring a 16-mile walk from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. to raise money to send scouts and nonscouts to camp this summer.

Our friends in Winchester can help by sponsoring a walker, helping at our check point, or by being an active, walking participant. Our station this year will be the William Parkman Lodge at 1 Mount Vernon st., the use of which has been very kindly donated to us by the Masons.

Last year, through the efforts of our scouts, their families and friends, and a lot of community support, over 200 youngsters in 15 communities received the financial assistance that enabled them to enjoy the benfits of a summer camp experience.

Winchester was right at the top in participation last year and in demonstrating the fine community spirit which exists in our town and our ability to reach out to others as well. With your help, we'll be tops again this year and hopefully double the number of youngsters we'll be able to send to camp.

For further details, you may contact any girl scout tropp, or get in touch with me. Remember, it's fun to walk. It's healthful to walk. And, in this case, it's helpful to walk. Join us on April 8.

Human Interest Pleases Reader Who Requests More

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

Yesterday's edition of The Star was very good. The item on Mrs. Winn was excellent and the item on the confirmation class at St. Eulalia's was good. These stories on interesting citizens and youth of our town are so much more appreciated than photographs of dented automobiles as a result of corner accidents.

I would like to see (with so many garden clubs in town) helpful hints on ways to better our gardens and use of plants in interior decorating.

The latest in fashions even if its copied from the latest high fashion magazine.

Budget and elegant recipes, hints on how to better cope with our whiny and bratty children.

In conclusion, I hope the paper continues with editions as good as that of yesterday.

Good Luck, Arlington

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

Monday, April 2, heralds the beginning of an exciting project in Arlington, "Operation: Paper for Parks." The proceeds will be used for school playground equipment, town playground improvement, new park equipment and new park development.

Paper makes up 59 percent of our solid waste. Arlington plans to turn that "waste" into funds through recycling. Those funds could be $182,000 if all of Arlington's 53,000 residents cooperate.

Arlington generates 25,960 tons of waste paper and each ton is worth $7. How does all this work? The first full week of each month will be paper collection week. Residents will bring their waste paper to designated drop-off points the day on which their rubbish is usually collected.

To kick off the "operation" special events are going on all this week to which the admission price is one bundle of paper per person. What makes the project particularly impressive is that it is a citizen initiated community project. Hats off and good luck to "Operation: Paper for Parks."

Winchester's Past

Wars, Sickness, Starvation Destroyed Sachem Tribe

By Marie Regan
Winchester Historical Society

She was a real live American queen living right here in Winchester 300 years ago. In fact, it was her favorite residence. We know her as the Squaw Sachem, meaning the woman king, widow of Nanepashemet, sachem of the Massachusett tribe of Indians.

She sold the Charlestown settlers all the lands granted them by the courts extending inland nearly to the Salem land grant and including Winchester, all for 21 coats, 18 fathoms of wampum and three bushels of corn. Squaw Sachem was in need.

She hadn't always been so. She was once the young queen of Nanepashemet, thought to be the greatest sachem of the Massachuset tribe. When Nanepashemet was at his zenith, he could count on 3,000 warriors to follow him into battle.

John Smith wrote that he counted 11 villages along the coast of Massachusetts Bay when he visited in 1614. He also mentioned there were 20 more Indian villages in the interior. This was the territory of the Massachuset Indians.

As Nanepashemet's queen and mother of his young sons, Squaw Sachem shared in the power and prestige of her husband. She was a member of Indian high society which consisted of sachems, sagamores (princes), powows (medicine men) and their wives and children the first class socially. The tribe was divided into three classes of people. Second class was made up of all tribal members. Third class were captives and people who had drifted into the tribe and had never been adopted.

Squaw Sachem had servants to help her care for the children and do the work required to run an Indian wigwam. She shared in any gifts given to her husband and in the tribute everyone was expected to pay him on his annual visit to the villages in his domain.

With these privileges of rank went added responsibility. It was the sachem's duty to look after the welfare of the tribe. In periods of want his stockpile of reserve food and clothing was often used for the relief of his people, though in the years before 1615 there was plenty of food. These were the good years in Squaw Sachem's life.

Then a series of events started — war, sickness, starvation — which brought about the destruction of the Massachuset tribe. Squaw Sachem, who experienced it all, most of it before the white man arrived, was described by a settler as "queenly." Someone even dubbed her "Queen of the Misticke" after the lakes she so loved in her later years.

For reasons unknown to us today, in 1615 the Abnaki Indians of Maine, called the Tarratines by the Massachuset, started a ferocious war against the Massachuset Indians. They came down the coastline plundering, killing and burning every village.

They especially wanted to find Nanepashemet, but he eluded them. They vowed to kill him and they came again and again, relentless in their attacks on the Massachuset's villages.

Stealthily Nanepashemet moved out of his main village of Saugus, today's Lynn, and went four miles up the Mystic River into deep woods in an area not previously used by him. On top of a hill in what is now Medford, he build a fort and lived there for three years with his family.

Meanwhile a white man's plague spread amont the Indians and because the Indians had no natural immunity against it, over half the population died. In 1619 the Tarratines finally found Nanepashemet and succeeded in killing him. It's though he was too weakened by the plague to resist or even flee.

Miraculously Squaw Sachem escaped and fled inland to the vicinity of Mount Wachuset with her three small sons. As was the custom, she married the tribe's medicine man, Webcowet, so she would have a protector and provider from the ruling class like herself.

Even with Nanepashemet dead and his widow and sons gone from the area, the Tarratines continued to attack the Massachuset Indians. They found the proverbial pot of gold by coming in the fall and robbing the Massachusets of their hard-earned harvest of food intended to feed them in the coming year. The attackers took everything of any worth with them including women and children they happened upon.

The men were killed. The Massachuset Indians lived in constant fear, moving frequently, not daring to plant too big a harvest or stick around to care for it properly.

Because of these continuous raids, Squaw Sachem stayed in the interior for several years with another tribe, a refugee from her own people. It was important to her tribe that she and her sons stay alive. She was still there when the Pilgrims made a special journey to Boston Harbor in 1621 in order to meet her and gain her friendship. They missed her, but they did find Nanepashemet's fort, house and burial house which were described in Winslow's Journal:

"Sept. 21, 1621 — We went ashore, all but two men, and had gone three miles, at a place where corn had been newly gathered, a house pulled down and people gone. One mile hence, Nanapashemet their king, in his lifetime had lived. His house was not like others; but a scaffold was largely built with poles and planks, some six feet from the ground and the house upon that, being situated on top of a hill.

"Not far from hence, in a bottom, we came to a fort built by the deceased King the manner thus: There were poles some 30 or 40 feet long stuck in the ground as thick as they could be set, one by another, and with them they enclosed a ring some 40 or 50 feet over: a trench, breast-high, was digged on each side; one way there was to go into it with a bridge. In the midst of this palisado stood the frame of a house, wherin being dead he lay buried. About a mile from hence we came to such another but seated on the top of a hill. Here Nanepashemet was killed, none dwelling in it since the time of his death."

Conclusion next week: The legend of Squaw Sachem's death.

Town Meeting Members Face Difficult Zoning Decision; What Happened To McManus Mantles?

Town meeting members will shortly be confronted with a difficult decision over zoning. They will be asked to rezone six acres of land off Cambridge street from residential to business.

The proposal is that of Bonnell Motors, a longtime respected Winchester firm which wants to stay in town but maintains the Ford Motor Co. is demanding Bonnell Motors of Woburn be combined with the Winchester operation in an expanded agency. Bonnell of Winchester is now located in the center.

Bonnell says there is a real possibility the firm could leave town if the zoning proposal fails resulting in a tax loss for Winchester.

The Planning Board has indicated that its overall zoning plan for the town may not be ready for town meeting action until the fall. Even then, it could be voted down.

The Planning Board has voted 3-2 in favor of the proposal which is an indication perhaps how the board feels about future commercialization there. But the final say is up to the town meeting.

The Planning Board vote on the proposal, incidentally, was taken during an open session of the board. But the minutes of the meeting don't indicate how each member voted, nor does the chairman, Otto E. Schaefer, feel inclined to disclose who the three were in favor and the two against.

Town Counsel Leonard J. Mullen Jr. says that votes of boards and committees don't have to include members' names. An exception is the Board of Appeals.

The new member of the board, Joseph F. Geary Jr., will really be on the spot when a subsequent vote on the agency plan is taken. Schaefer has said that because the town meeting convenes after the election, Geary's vote should be counted even though he wasn't a member of the board when the public hearing before the board was conducted.

Geary is expected back from an Alaskan business trip this week and when the Planning Board announces its recommendation at town meeting any change in the 3-2 vote will make it obvious how Geary feels.

"The Case of the Missing Fireplace Mantles." During Saturday's tour of McManus House it was discovered that five valuable mantlepieces over the fireplaces are missing.

At least one town meeting member said the mantlepieces were there last summer. The School Department maintains they were removed before the house became an annex for school activities several years ago.

"Last year when I was in the building everything was intact," said Mary Foss McQuillan of Prec. 2. "I was absolutely horrified."

Commented William F. Clark, assistant superintendent of schools: "They weren't there when the School Department moved in."

Other town meeting members concurred that the mantlepieces were recently removed — and not by vandals. They were carefully taken out as is obvious by nearby plaster, which is intact.

Mrs. McQuillan pointed out that if the mantlepieces had been removed prior to the School Department's arrival, surely they would have finished over the holes where the marble was removed, at least in the superintendent's office.

Recreation Director Donald Spinney said Wednesday that when an arts and crafts program was conducted in McManus House last summer the fireplace mantles weren't there.

In anticipation of demolition of the house, the School Department removed the plumbing and heating equipment from the building, according to Clark. That's understandable. But what happened to the mantlepieces?

A recent caller to The Star expressed bewilderment over what he said is a decline in night-time police coverage on the hill. He also said the Police Department is providing nearly round-the-clock protection to "some old lady." He wondered at what cost this protection is costing the taxpayer. (She lives on Central street.) The Star has not been successful in contacting Police Chief Edward F. Bowler on the subject.

More on the high school field: The $1 million (that's right, MILLION) field, unusable until next year because two grass growing seasons are required, will eventually be used for baseball, track, spring outdoor sports and football practice. Meanwhile, all track meets must be played away from home, a distinct disadvantage for the home team.

In the discussion of 65 percent state aid for a WHS swimming pool as an alternative to the replacement facility at Leonard Pool TMM and School Committeeman Stephen R. Parkhurst mused over the paradox of trying to convince the School Building Assistance Bureau that there was an educational need for the pool. Three years ago the town received 65 percent for the new high school when the town told the bureau that a pool was not necessary.

While recommending defeat of an addition of $790 for out-of-state travel in the selectmens' budget, Prec. 1 TMM Arthur J. Hewis Jr. said that on one visit to the Town Hall he found that all of the department heads were away and that "things were running better than ever."

Hospital Trays

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

Bluebirds, Camp Fire Girls, Brownies, and Girl Scouts frequently make favors for the Winchester Hospital trays. I have sometimes wondered how much they are appreciated. Now I know. Not only are they appreciated but they possess therapeutic value.

Valentine's Day found me so ill that their decoration was the only cheerful note in my life at that time. Washington's Birthday favors brought happiness again as I visualized those busy workers creating them.

The girls and leaders of these Winchester groups deserve many thanks for their thoughtfulness.

Getting Town Ready For Bi-centennial

LETTER TO THE EDITOR:

What's this about three Historical Committees in Winchester? It is the task of this letter to set Winchesterites straight. I hereby list in historic order:

Winchester Historical Society, now in 118th year: Town archives, public information, source of Winchester's town history, educational school program.

2. Winchester History Committee, appointed by Board of Selectmen 1972: The first Winchester History Committee in the 1930's oversaw the arrangements for writing Chapman's "History of Winchester.") The present History Committee will oversee the reprinting of Chapman's fine history and arrange to select an author to update Winchester history from 1936 to the present in time for the bicentennial, Article 24. See full report pps. 225-258 in 1972 Winchester Town Report.

3. Winchester Historical Historical Commission, appointed by Board of Selectmen 1973 by request of the state to complete the state inventory of historic sites and historic houses deadline June 30, Article 23.

As bi-centennial time approaches and other towns and cities move to write their history and inventory their historic houses, let it not be said that Winchester town meeting members failed to support Articles 23 and 24. Surrounding communities are taking advantage of the bi-centennial impetus to bring their towns and cities up to date. Winchester, notoriously inactive in this regard in the past, has only recently awakened to the fact that it has a most interesting history.

The Winchester History Committee (Article 24) expects to receive back from book sales all money appropriated in its behalf. By 1975 $25,000 will have to be appropriated. The History Committee at present requests that $2,500 be appropriated by this town meeting to start it on its way. It is expected that this money can defray the initial cost of a writer to embark on the updating project. The Col. Winchester Fund was tapped for Chapman's History, and it is expected that the same fund can be used again at this time. Right now it is planned that twin volumes - an updated, 1936-present, Winchester History and the reprinted familiar Chapman's History - will be sold as a package for the bicentennial year.

The Historical Commission needs an appropriation of $2,150 to assist it in its initial survey, and on-going historical research (Article 24), already well documented in recent issues of The Star.

Finally, I would urge all those who have been following the Winchester Historical Society articles in The Star and all American history buffs to attend the next meeting of the Winchester Historical Society on April 10 at 7:30 p.m. in the meeting room of the Winchester Public Library. This week's Mrs. Marie Began, whose articles on Winchester's Squaw Sachem appear in this week's Star, will give an illustrated lecture on Indian hair styles. Her research covers a wide range of the North American Indians.

Art Student Thanks For Scholarship

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

I have been a fortunate recipient of Winchester Scholarship Foundation's assistance during my freshman, sophomore and junior years of college. I am a junior art education major at Moore College of Art in Philadelphia. My college experience at Moore has been exciting, inspiring and stimulating due to the generous support of the Winchester Scholarship Foundation and the Winchester Art Association.

Moore College of Art is a four-year woman's art college. It offers bachelor of fine arts and bachelor of arts degrees in art education. One can major in painting, ceramics, sculpture, jewelry, photography, fashion design, interior design, art education and art history. In addition there are special concentrated classes one can take in such areas as weaving, color survey and color photography.

In addition to basic education and theory courses we observe in the Philadelphia classrooms and work with almost 200 Philadelphia students who attend Saturday art classes at Moore College. This is excellent training for us before we go out to teach in the classroom in our senior year.

I am really happy in the art education program at Moore College. Without the support of the Winchester Scholarship Foundation and the Winchester Art Association this would not have been possible. I want to express my appreciation for the generous aid and support from these two groups.

Where Did McManus House Parts Go?

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

During the viewing of the McManus House on Saturday, March 24, from 9 a.m. to noon, I made the following observations:

1. Five irreplaceable mantle pieces were removed from the premises.

2. All electric light fixtures were removed with the exception of the worthless ones.

3. 3. One bathroom was stripped (excepting the tub) namely, the medicine cabinet, the fluorescent light from each side of the medicine cabinet, the hopper and tank, wash bowl and fittings.

4. On the first floor, a relatively new hopper and tank, wash bowl and fittings (minus faucets) were lying close to the front door.

5. In the cellar, the oil burner, removed from the boiler, was lying on the floor. The hot water copper tank (approximate capacity 40 gals., worth in excess of $200) and its counterparts were all removed, lying on the cellar floor.

6. In the cellar there are two beams. One does have termites, the other has dry rot. This is no problem.

7. In the attic I found brand new teacher editions of textbooks worth $4 to $7 each ready to be discarded with the trash.

Such wanton carelessness is inexcusable. It proves how many of our tax dollars are being squandered. Valuable articles "removed" from the McManus House was not the work of kids ... A full accounting of the missing items should be given to the taxpayers by the school committee. The dismantling of the items mentioned above does not come under the heading of vandalism, of which there was some, such as strewing of students' records which, if not needed, should have been destroyed.

It is a good thing that a permit is required to move a house--otherwise the house itself would be done along with its contents.

I wish to deeply thank the Winchester Auxiliary Fire Department which, through the courtesy of Fire Chief Amico and Auxiliary Chief Otis, did a magnificent job of lighting the McManus House so thoroughly on Saturday. Special thanks go to Lt. John Baldwin and Albert Alexander for donating their time so cheerfully. The excellent lighting enabled the viewers to see the condition of the entire house without difficulty.

Thank you very much.

Critical Reader Feels The Star Now Her Paper

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

As a subscriber for 24 years I have up to now enjoyed reading your paper. One cannot go and see or hear everything that is happening in town. The next best thing is to "read it in The Star."

I am especially interested in children and in their musical activities in church, school and home. I want to know what music is being performed where in town and when and by whom. I want to read about what the schools are doing in the areas of dramatics and music.

The recent production of "Little Mary Sunshine" by our new music director got scant advance notice. This musical was the culmination of months of intense and complicated planning involving scores of students and the cooperation of many teachers. Not since the early 1950's has our high school embarked on a similar project. This was a delightful event for Winchester residents who have been discouraged for so long by the lack of exciting school music activities.

But why did we not know more about it ahead of time? And why didn't The Star review it so that all of Winchester could know about the long-awaited event. Those of us who no longer have children in school still enoy seeing and knowing about other people's children.

Then there is the matter of the Winchester Music Club. This group has a membership of 86 music students and teachers. Six times a year some of the students perform in programs in private homes. To perform for their fellow members is a significant event in their music education; they need recognition and encouragement. This year The Star has failed to print the program and performers of these Music Club events, as well as other publicity given to the paper.

However, there seems to be hope. As I write this letter I note that with yesterday's (March 22) edition of The Star there seems to be a change. The Music Club has a story; the school news is in detail and placed together; there are several warm "human interest stories of people in our town; there is now an official Religious News page. I once again feel that The Star is my paper. Please keep it that way.

8 Attend Hearing On Bill Raising Elderly Income

Attending a State House hearing last week on bills concerning the elderly were two carloads of Winchester citizens. The trip was initiated by the Committee for a Winchester Council on Aging.

Under consideration was Senate Bill 1085, an act to guarantee a minimum adequate income for the elderly by raising old age assistance. After testimony before a capacity audience, the Social Welfare Committee unanimously endorsed the legislation.

The local delegation, which also paid a visit to Rep. Harris Chadwick, included Sarah Gold, Beryl Hagan, Margaret Harrigan, Olive Hatch, Margaret Hedner, Hilda Hope, Leonor Rich and Isabelle Stewart.

Town meeting meets Mondays and Thursdays at 7:45 p.m. in the new high school. Public may attend.

No hustling first basemen, no puffing track hopefuls and no cheering fans crowd Winchester High School's new $1 million playing field. The field should be ready for use next year, however. (Staff Photo)

14 Senior Citizens Reside At Home At Mount Vernon House

On April 9, Mount Vernon House, formerly called the Winchester Home for the Aged, will celebrate its 79th anniversary.

The building at the corner of Mount Vernon and Kendall sts. not only provides a homelike atmosphere for 13 Winchester citizens, it also stands as a memorial to Philip Waldmeyer, who in the 1800's owned and managed a tannery opposite the railroad station on land that is now Manchester field.

The visionary Waldmeyer saw the need for a home for elder members of the community in need of care, companionship and comfort. In his will he bequested $2,000 for the establishment of a home or hospital to be built within two years after his death. He died in April of 1892.

According to records, following Waldmeyer's death a committee appointed by town meeting studied the prospects of a home for the aged versus a hospital. They decided on a home.

A charter was granted by the state on Feb. 21, 1894, and at the first meeting of the new corporation Alfred S. Hall was elected its first president.

Other original officers included: first vice president, Mrs. Catharine A. Folsom; second vice president, Mrs. Lucinda E. Mason; third vice president, Mrs. Ada M. Wooster; secretary, Mrs. Clara T. Shepard; treasurer, Mrs. Ella N. Sanborn, and auditor, George H. Carter. Directors were Mrs. Lynthia J. Pierce, Mrs. Ida Ripley, Miss Emily C. Symmes, Mrs. Mary Emma Smith, Mrs. Alice L. Skillings, and Charles E. Redfern. Mrs. Kate Gallagher was appointed matron.

The portion of the present building facing Kendall st. was the Lunt property and original Home for Aged facility. In 1944 the board of directors thought it advisable to purchase the adjacent property on the Mount Vernon side for anticipated expansion. This was accomplished in 1945. Seven years later expansion appeared necessary and a committee was appointed to consider how the buildings could be united for greatest capacity and comfort to residents. Evander French was retained as architect to draw up plans, which were later approved. The work of expansion began in April, 1953 and was continued on into the fall of the same year.

A living room reception area, known as the En Ka Room in appreciation for this group's many gifts of money, equipment and hours of service, connects the two former houses into a single larger unit.

According to Mrs. Grace Phillips, Mount Vernon House administrator, the home has a capacity for 17 residents. At present there are 14. Thirteen are women. Each has his or her own room.

All food served residents at Mount Vernon House is homemade and varied enough so that everyone, including those who have special diets or likes and dislikes, have plenty to eat. The dining room, on the Kendall st. side of the facility has a pleasant view of the front yard containing garden flowers and greenery. The home, a private corporation, is funded by bequests and legacies. Since its establishment 79 years ago, the home has received monetary, material and volunteer support of Winchester residents.

Mrs. Phillips says, "The constant aim of the board of directors and administration is to give the security of a home atmosphere to those who are over 65. We endeavor to avoid a cold atmosphere of an institution and through the years have decorated with soft colors and comfortable home-like furnishings."

She describes the facility as a "rest home" rather than a "nursing home." Other than temporary indisposition to comply with regulations established by the Department of Public Health, Bureau of Hospital Facilities, under whose jurisdiction the home receives its license to operate, nursing care is not provided. However, to serve in a preventive medicine capacity and to take care of temporary at home disability, a daytime nurse, Mrs. Maureen Vondra of Woburn, is on hand. Mrs. Barbara Murray of Woburn is weekend nurse.

Mrs. Phillips says applicants for admission must produce evidence they are in good health, both physically and mentally, and be able to care for themselves. In addition to being not less than 65 years of age, an applicant provides satisfactory evidence of good character and a certificate from a physician stating the condition of health. Also, they must have resided in Winchester for 10 years prior to application or for 20 consecutive years at some time after attaining 21 years of age.

Residents may furnish their own rooms when they enter the home and are encouraged to be creative.

Mrs. Phillips, who refers to age as "a state of mind," speaks of Mount Vernon House residents as congenial, happy people who may play bridge and participate in various activities as they wish. She points to a pad of paper on the hall table on which residents sign out so that "we can keep track of them." Recently one of the women took a trip to Aspen, Colo., where she visited her daughter for a month. "Most of the time they are all in by 9 p.m.," Mrs. Phillips says.

"Winchester people and organizations have been most generous of their time and talents to help make the home attractive and comfortable," Mrs. Phillips says, mentioning En Ka which prepars a dinner for the home once each month and arranges for a program of entertainment lasting about 20 minutes. They also have transportation committee to serve residents; provide birthday cakes, and at Christmas offer residents and staff individual gifts.

Mrs. Phillips tells about the Winchester public library bringing in books with large print on a routine basis every three to six months.

Other civic groups ministering to the needs of Mount Vernon House are the Rotary Club, which completely remodeled an upstairs lavatory and a basement hobby room; the Fortnightly, which paid dues for loans of paintings from the Art Association; the Winchester Garden Club, which donates seasonal decorations and flowers for the grounds; and local churches, whose parishioners have given teas and entertainment. Also, "many prominent and civic-minded citizens of the town have given generous amounts of money through the years to make the home flourish and thrive," Mrs. Phillips adds.

Besides Mrs. Phillips and the nurses, the home employs Julia Mahoney, assistant administrator; two cooks, Mrs. Christine McGee, who works daily, and Mrs. Katherine Holland on weekends; Mrs. Jennie Carter, daily waitress; Susan Rolli, weekend waitress; and Mrs. Blanche McElliney, housekeeper.

Mrs. Phillips also gives recognition to David Dalton and Bernard Stygles, firemen, who in their spare time act as maintenance men. "We are very fortunate to have these people," Mrs. Phillips says.

The present Mount Vernon House board of directors are Lyndon Burnham, Dr. William Davis, Leslie J. Scott, George Billman, Harris S. Richardson, Dudley H. Bradlee, Mrs. Charles L. Moore, George H. Gowdy, Mrs. Robert G. Ingraham, Mrs. Warren D. Haley, Mrs. Bradford Bentley, Mrs. Percy Bugbee, Philip P. Wadsworth, Alice A. Main, Allan T. Buros, Lewis Wadsworth Jr., Thomas Worthen, David Conners and Mrs. Philip Parsons Jr.

The bird song! How often we take for granted what in another time was the subject of many poetic fantasies. How often do we really hear and remember the song of a particular bird. Yet, most birds are capable of some sort of noise that may or may not sound like singing. Exceptions to this rule are the ostrich and vulture which are birds who seem to have no time as well as no vocal structure for singing. The birds which perch are the most responsible for singing especially some male birds whose songs are used to attract females.

Spring is in the air and it's time to be outdoors taking pictures. Whether you take pictures of the beautiful birds or your beautiful family, you can be sure of excellent results when you use a KODAK camera. Patricia Capone, Kevin Mawn Are Wed In St. Mary's Church

A candlelight ceremony was performed in St. Mary s Church on Saturday, Feb. 10, for Patricia Capone, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Paul A. Capone of 18 Nathaniel rd., and Kevin Phillip Mawn, son of Mr. and Mrs. James F. Mawn of 51 Forest st.

Officiating at the double ring service was the Rev. Bernard M. Hov. Guests later gathered at the Burlington Knights of Columbus for a reception.

The bride, accompanied to the altar by her father, wore an ivory A-line gown fashioned of imported peau de soie. Antique lace trimmed the neckline, sleeves, bodice and skirt, as well as the train. Her cathedral-length veil of imported French illusion was held in place by a Juliet cap of peau de soi enhanced by antique lace. She carried a colonial bouquet of pink, yellow and white carnations.

Mr. and Mrs. Kevin P. Mawn

Acting as maid of honor for her sister was Pamela Capone of Winchester. Her empire gown of emerald green velvet featured pearl trim at the scoop neckline and on the leg-o-mutton sleeves. She held two long-stemmed pink roses.

Bridesmaids, attired as the maid of honor and holding two long-stemmed yellow roses, were Laura Rotondi of Reading, Mary Lou Fiorenza and Karen Foley, both of Winchester, and Esther Mastrangelo and Brenda Rotondi, both of Melrose.

Having the honor of best man was William S. Shields of Winchester. Peter Capone and Paul Capone, both brothers of the bride, and Phillip Bailey, all of Winchester, Peter Mawn of North Reading, brother of the bridegroom, and Anthony Shields of Billerica served as ushers.

The mother of the bride chose a rust colored gown of silken jersey edged at the neckline and cuffs with gold braid. The bridegroom's mother appeared in an empire gown of crepe with lavender and white floral bodice matched to a plum skirt.

The bride, a 1967 graduate of Winchester High School, has been employed as a secretary with the Winchester Police Department since that time.

A member of the class of 1961 of Winchester High School, Mr. Mawn attended Boston University. He has been a patrolman wit the Winchester Police Department for five years, and is a member of the Massachusetts Juvenile Officers' Association.

Following a wedding trip to St. Thomas, the Virgin Islands, the couple is residing in North Reading.

Garden Club Hears About House Plants

Mrs. Emily Seaber Parcher was guest of the Winchester Home and Garden Club at the March meeting at the Crawford Memorial United Methodist Church. Her topic was "House Plants - Getting Them Ready For the Garden."

Mrs. Parcher told the group that house plants provide protection, beauty and enjoyment to any garden. The beginner should choose plants that are easy to grow, keeping in mind two important categories: those that require much water and those needing a small amount. All plants need sunshine or light, maintenance and warm air, she said. Mrs. Parcher demonstrated various ways to take cuttings from plants.

Well-known for her book "Shady Gardens," Mrs. Parcher concluded her remarks by telling the group what works well for you in growing, cutting or separating of house plants, do it.

Mrs. Alexander Aitken designed the centerpiece on the tea table. It was an arrangement of house plants, hand-carved birds and a carved statue of St. Francis of Assisi.

Library Volunteers To Meet At Arnott's

Mrs. Margaret Brown and Mrs. Polly Kaufman, librarians-in charge of the volunteer library program of the School Volunteers for Boston, will speak to the Winchester volunteer group on April 5 at 1 p.m. at the home of Mrs. Peter Arnott, 6 Herrick St.

Persons interested in learning more about the volunteer library program in Boston or in giving some time to work in an elementary school library is welcome. Those who plan to attend or want further information, should contact Mrs. Martin Hitchcock of 29 Wildwood st. or Mrs. Fred Redding, 1 Hawthorne rd.

A group of about 20 volunteers from Winchester has been staffing the library of the George Frisbie Hoar School, an elementary girls' school in South Boston, for the past two years. In addition to routine library work, similar to that performed by mothers in the Winchester elementary schools, part of the group conducts a story hour for pre-school and kindergarten children.

This spring they are starting a library in the Bigelow School, a boys' elementary school which serves the same neighborhood. More volunteers are needed.

The Boston volunteer library program, which Madames Brown and Kaufman started in 1965, draws on groups of volunteers from both the suburbs and inner-city neighborhoods to develop libraries in Boston elementary and junior high schools. The city provides the books but no funding is available for staff-hence the need for volunteers. The program has fostered the development of 85 libraries in the city schools.

indoor swimming pool at the new high school was suggested as a possible substitute for the replacement facility at Leonard.

Vincent J. Palumbo, a resident and coach of two swim teams, suggested that a year-round facility could be built at the high school for the "same money" with the aid of 65 percent state funding.

Duane M. Belden, chairman of the Leonard Pool subcommittee, countered that three years ago that facility was estimated at $660,000. Figuring inflation he anticipated that the cost to build a pool at the high school now would be $1,075,000, and that the swimming area would be smaller.

School Committeeman Stephen R. Parkhurst stated that Leonard Pool and the WHS pool were "two different projects." Before any action could be taken for the high school facility, educational specifications would have to be composed, and he didn't think that the School Building Assistance Bureau would be likely to approve the 65 percent now since three years ago the town had convinced the bureau that a pool was not an educational need. Therefore, Parkhurst favored the appropriation for Leonard Pool.

Another concern, the ultimate total cost of the project, was voiced by TMM Ralph M. Atkinson of Prec. 3. He said the MDC did not feel it could build such a facility for less than $350,000. Hewis also questioned the $200,000 sum, feeling that the present design would cost more than this estimate.

The facility is being planned and designed under the subcommittee's guidance by Hill, Miller, Friedlaender and Hollander, architects; Cleverdon, Varney and Pike, mechanical-electrical engineers; Souza and True, structural engineers; and Joseph Rogers, U-Mass swimming coach.

In other action the town meeting approved Articles 1, 2 and 3 of the annual warrant and budget item 1000—Selectmen for $74,626.

The selectmen's budget was composed of $55,385 in personal services, $19,241 in other expenses and nothing for equipment. The personal services account was amended to add $367 for a step increment for the selectmen's executive clerk, a situation arising during the illness of the former executive clerk last year.

A bid to increase the other expenses account by adding $790 for out-of-state travel was defeated on a vote of 65 to 88.

In the following list, the names of town meeting members absent from the last two sessions are printed. The letter "T" beside a member's name indicates that person was absent from last Thursday's meeting. An "M" beside a name indicates an absence on Monday of this week.

Reflections On Hoop Season

By John F. Parrell

Coach Vandy French and his Sachem basketball team wrote finis to the season with a dinner held at the directors' suite of the Lexington Motor Inn recently.

The affair was sponsored by the parents of the team members. The boys all scored high in their efforts at the dinner table. Guests included principal Vincent LoRocco, athletic director Henry Knowlton and the writer. The speaking program was brief, with the greater part of the evening devoted to eating and the presentation of the various awards.

Starting with only three senior team members, the Sachem quintet started off with a bang and went undefeated over the first third of the campaign. This was due in no small part to the desire and drive of many of the newcomers. Then came a short letdown, as the more experienced teams were met, but the team was not to be denied, and went on to compile a 10-10 record.

Considering the number of inexperienced players at the start of the year, it was truly an outstanding performance. The combination of aggressive play, speed and some hard rebounding and clutch shooting made the difference. With the majority of the players returning, led by the newly elected co-captains Tim Porter and Mike Heffernan, prospects appear bright for next year.

Attendance at summer basketball camps, as well as play in the Middlesex summer league should make Winchester a close contender in next year's title race.

Captain-elect Mike Heffernan gave an excellent performance at the foul line as he dropped in 73 shots in 81 attempts for an amazing 81 percent. He also was a prime mover in the pressing Winchester defense. His brother, John, co-captain, topped the scorers both in total points and in average points scored. Captain-elect Tim Porter showed a vast improvement to lead both offensive and defensive rebounding, as well as being the best percentage shooter from the floor and well up in free throw percentage.

Sandy Bigelow came along fast and developed his rebounding as the season progressed. His shooting was at the best in tight scoring situations and at least a dozen hoops or free throws come to mind, which either tied the score or sent the Sachems ahead.

Richie Phillips was a regular whirling dervish as he raced up and down the floor. Although the records can not show it, he contributed some of the fanciest baskets of the year, especially the 48 footer which looped through the hoop to send the Sachems ahead of the Red Raiders of Melrose as the half-time buzzer sounded.

Co-captain Peter Wakefield came off the bench to spark both offense and defense, and hustled every minute that he was on the floor. Nate Bitting, the tallest player on the squad, came along well as the season advanced. With added growth and weight he might well become a strong center before next season rolls around.

Bill Hooker, who started late, became an exciting hard working asset to the team, pulling the local group out of many tight spots. Though Wayne Dennis, John Friborg, Elliot Miller, Mike Phillips and John Zanoli played lesser roles, they were part of the Sachem successes.

With the co-captains, Bigelow, Bitting, Dennis, Friborg, Miller and Zanoli returning, as well as a host of good players from Coach Paul Mulloy's highly successful JV team, Winchester's basketball is definitely on the upgrade. The varsity's 10-10 record, with three two-point losses and one three-point, was excellent. The JV quintet was 13-7. The varsity averaged only 11.2 turnovers per game, while the opposition had 20. They outscored the opposition by 1213 to 1147, and the JV team 1141 to 1031.

The top scoring berth on the Mulloy-coached JV team was an exact tie between Mike Phillips and John Zanoli with 234 points. Twenty players were listed. Almost without exception they helped spread the scoring of the team. Add these to the players who worked with the varsity and there is surely good basis for optimism regarding the future.

Youth Hockey Thanks Helpers

The board of directors of Winchester Youth Hockey issued the following statement on completion of their season play:

"The board of directors of Winchester Youth Hockey wants to thank all those who have done so much to make their past season so successful: Jim Beck and Tony Martignetti with the all morning duty at Winchester USA Rink and all the referees, particularly Dave Carter.

"At the Medford Rink the "Fine Four" put it all together: Al Milley, Kevin Nolan, Al Ross and Fran Murray. The small rink trio who made it go were Mark Avakian, Bob Tonello and Rich Joyce.

"Jack and Mary Falla did much on behalf of the traveling teams and the affiliation with the Middlesex Youth Hockey League.

"It was a lot of effort from the coaches both on the house teams and the long season coaches for the traveling teams who contributed so much to the team spirit of the boys.

"Thanks to the countless number of parents who all did so many different things to put the program over the top.

"A big warm thank you to The Winchester Star and its staff for the great coverage of Youth Hockey which the boys enjoyed so much.

Eulalian Hoopsters Beat Andover YMCA

After defeating St. Gregory's of Dorchester, St. Joseph's of Somerville, Immaculate Conception of Cambridge, the Eulalian (St. Eulalia's Parish) team put on a devastating display of basketball in the finals, beating a very strong Andover YMCA team for the championship honors, 41 to 28.

The game was won by a team effort. An excellent defensive job was done by R. J. Brosnan on Andover's playmaker and scorer, Tom Curran. Rebounding was done by Tom Murray, John Fairbanks and Dom Diperna and an outstanding shooting display was given by Mike Garrity and Bob McCormack. The sixth and seventh men Jim Griffin and Charles Larkin came off the bench during the entire tournament when Tom Murray and John Fairbanks were in foul trouble. Don Hoffman is the team's coach.

Decor 'n Design

by Paul Flanagan

Color, perhaps more than any other element in a room, can help build or destroy unity ... It can also stimulate, soothe, depress, or irritate those who live with it ... Skillfully applied, it can create an illusion of altered proportions in a room, pushing walls out or pulling them in ... Most of us know what colors we like ... But for decorating purposes that is hardly enough ... It is important to know not only which colors in general you prefer, but also in what shades and in what combinations ... Color combinations vary in effect depending on the extent to which each color is used ... You get a far better idea of how your finished room will look if your color samples show relatively the size of the areas they are to cover ...

Jack Brennan Tours Europe

Jack Brennan, former Sachem hockey player, who was a member of the highly successful Dartmouth freshman team this season, is now touring Europe with a group of high school, prep school and college freshman players. The team is coached by Tim Taylor and Gene Kinasewich.

Eight games will be played in Europe, with the first four slated to be played in Prague, Czechoslovakia. The other games will be against teams from West Germany and Russia.

It will be a cultural experience for the boys, as well as an opportunity to face the best players in Europe. The entire trip will take 15 days, and certainly must be regarded as a lifetime experience both from the educational and athletic viewpoint.

Bridge Club Sets Annual Benefit To Aid Palsied

By Bridgette

On April 4 the Duplicate Bridge Club will hold its annual benefit for the American Contract Bridge League Charity Foundation. United Cerebral Palsy is its charity for 1973.

The ladies took the honors on March 21 in Section A, Nancy Atkinson and Ida Finlay playing a big game to win North-South with Anne Galpin and Madalyn Walworth in first place East-West.

North-South

Nancy Atkinson and Ida Finlay, 147½
Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Salani, 125
Mr. and Mrs. William Duryea, 121½
Dr. and Mrs. Waldron Smith, 119
Dr. and Mrs. Robert Blackler, 115
Dr. Frank Lombardo and Captain William Banks, 110½

East-West

Anne Galpin and Madalyn Walworth, 124½
Carl Galante and Richard Sullivan, 122
Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Johnson, 119
Constance Brown and Irving Brown, 115½
Guy Mingolelli and Stephen Haseltine, 115½
Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Cincotta, 110

In Section B, Norman Houlding and Darrell Root squeaked out a close win North-South while Tony Ferdinand and Chuck Dyjak had points to spare in the top East-West spot.

North-South

Norman Houlding and Darrell Root, 130½
Mary Lou Clabby and Virginia Ward, 130
Ed Beckman and Max Goodman, 126
Etta Podrachik and Paul Portanova, 125
Mr. and Mrs. Robert Wassmuth, 121½
Charles Christie and Robert Hosking, 119

East-West

Anthony Ferdinand and Charles Dyjak, 145
Mr. and Mrs. William Frey, 122½
Ann Oppenheimer and Cathy Alexander, 118½
Rose Hickey and Lillian Sheridan, 118½
Alan Leland and Wendell Holmes, 118
Mr. and Mrs. Phillip Cade, 117
Jack Platt and Alex Blair, 111

Board 16 from Section B, East-West vulnerable and West dealing, tests your ability in bidding cards with unusual distribution. Please check your bidding system against the North-South hands; East-West pass throughout.

The only catch in making the contract is being careful to ruff North's three heart losers before taking out the third round of trumps.

The East-Wests on this hand were sitting ducks at the mercy of the North-South decisions. Out of 11 times played, only once was the grand slam bid; four North-Souths bid 6D, and three only 5D. The other three pairs chose NT, the one in 6 NT going down.

In actual competition one masterful North-South pair had no problem. The bidding went:

188 Youth Get Awards In Boots 'n' Blades Program

The Winchester Wellesley Club figure skating program, Boots'n'Blades, concluded its initial season recently at the Universal Sports Arena, Conant rd., with a day of fun and awards.

Relay races for 70 junior enrollees, grades 1-3, included hat and coat relays, water relays, potato relays and a ball and bottle relay; the 70 seniors, grades 4-8 added a wheelbarrow race and forward-backward relay to the potato, water, and clothes relays. Small prizes were distributed to the winning teams and consolation teams alike.

Boots'n'Blades was formed as a community service to provide an opportunity for children to improve their figure skating skills and as a benefit project undertaken by the Winchester Wellesley Club membership on a volunteer basis. The response and success of the program has affirmed the Wellesley Club executive board's decision to continue the figure skating program next fall in place of the traditional Winchester Mornings Lecture Series which the club has sponsored for the past 25 consecutive years.

Net proceeds from these service projects are divided between the Winchester Scholarship Foundation and Wellesley College. College statistics verify nearly one-third of Wellesley's student body receives some form of financial aid.)

The program was under the direction of Betty Lewis, US Gold Medallist, member of the World Figure Skating Team, and former feature skater with the Ice Capades.

Joyce Winship, professional and teacher at Lexington's Hayden Rink for the past four years shared in supervision of the program.

Assisting the eight able teachers with the junior skaters were two Winchester H.S. students, Debby DeLeo and Kathy Monahan.

The lessons are conducted in accordance with USFSA guidelines. Teaching groups of 10 pupils or fewer per instructor are based on skill levels all of which are open to continuous review, testing and progression throughout. During the concluding two classes each child's achievements were evaluated.

'Doggy Daddy' Is Speaker At MSPCA

Mrs. Winthrop Knox recently opened her Westgate home for the monthly meeting of Winchester Auxiliary of MSPCA.

Ted Meisner, sometimes known as "Doggy Daddy," of the Tee Mee Kennels in Methuen told of his experiences in handling 6,000 animals a year.

Praise is very important in the training of dogs, Meisner said. Let the dog know when he has performed correctly. That goes for housebreaking, too. It is never necessary to hit a dog, he maintained.

One helpful hint shared with the audience was how to handle a puppy which is paper trained and which one wishes to teach to go outside. Tear off a part of his paper-training paper and take it ouside with him. He'll get the idea, Meisner said.

One service provided at the Tee Mee Kennels is evaluation of a stud for show qualities. Another service is a two-week stay for your dog, during which he will be obedience trained for you.

"Rusty," Meisner's own pet golden retriever, was also a guest at the meeting and showed off various facets of his training, even in a small area. The Winchester Auxiliary of MSPCA has been invited to hold its next meeting at the Tee Mee Kennels and observe dog training in action.

A social hour and tea closed the afternoon with Mrs. Shirley LaRocca, tea chairman officiating. Mrs. John Grady and Mrs. Frank Burns poured.

Gas Merger Off

U.S. Rep. Michael J. Harrington (D-Mass) today announced that the Securites and Exchange Commission has agreed to postpone the merger of Lynn, North Shore and Mystic Valley Gas Company with Boston Gas. The action came in response to a petition by Harrington requesting public hearings on the proposed merger.

"If the merger is approved, consumers in the eastern part of the state can expect a significant rate increase. I am pleased that the SEC has recognized the important public interest problems with the merger and has decided to hold full public hearings," said Harrington.

National French Contest At Local High School Sat.

The National French contest of the American Association of Teachers of French will be held in Winchester High School on Saturday.

Alfred Duhamel of the Winchester High faculty is chairman of the contest for the Eastern Massachusetts Chapter of the AATF. Over 500 students will participate, representing 40 schools.

Forty Winchester High students will enter the competition; others will assist as guides in the building.

The test consists of sections on listening comprehension, reading comprehension, grammar and civilization.

Prizes are awarded on the local, regional and national levels with the top award being a $2,000 scholarship.

Awards for contestants in the Eastern Massachusetts contest will be presented at Winchester High School on May 18.

Harvard Glee Club To Benefit ABC

On April 14 the Harvard Glee Club will present a benefit program for the Winchester A Better Chance (ABC) at the high school auditorium. Tickets are on sale at local churches, the Cheese Shop, and Star Stationery.

The Harvard Glee Club is the oldest American college chorus. For many years after its founding in 1858, it served principally as a social club on campus, and performed college songs and glees to the accompaniment of banjos and mandolins.

Then in 1912, under the leadership of its new conductor, A. T. Davison, the Club began to build a new repertoire based on the best in choral music.

On New Year's Eve, 1914, at the Odeon Theater in Saint Louis, the group for the first time included a motet in its program. Eventually, in 1919, the Club voted to abandon the old social songs altogether and devote the efforts of the group entirely to the singing of good choral music.

In the last several years the Glee Club has continued its tradition of fine performances. In 1971 the group performed most of the men's choral music of Josquin des Prez at Saint Paul's Church in Cambridge in honor of the 450th anniversary of the death of that composer.

This year, the group will be singing with the Boston Symphony Orchestra, under the direction of Leonard Bernstein, to perform Stravinski's Oedipus Rex. In the summer of 1973, the Harvard Glee Club is anticipating a probable tour of Europe.

Mrs. Semonian To Recruit For Drive

Mrs. Robert Semonian of 19 Sheffield rd. will serve as Winchester captain for the forthcoming $6.5 million fund drive being planned by Lasell Junior College in Newton.

As captain, Mrs. Semonian will recruit workers who will approach personally hundreds of Lasell alumnae in the north of Boston area. The funds are needed at Lasell for a new student center, other buildings, and for additional student scholarships and endowment.

vices of our executive secretary, but we need some expert assistance."

Amico said the town, as self insurers for its employees, doesn't have the backup and follow-through manpower of the insurance companies. "The money spent on this will help reduce costs to the town."

TMM Saraco called consultant investigators "spies" and said the town would be creating another position and the $2,300 will grow. "Let's keep away from consultants."

Saraco was the loser on another proffered amendment—that to reduce the amount of money to be raised for taxes for the reserve fund. A reserve fund is money kept in a special account in case departments run over their budgets or emergencies arise.

finance was recommending an appropriation of $200,000 for this budget, representing 68 cents on the tax rate over the next year, or about $1 over the coming 18-month fiscal year.

Saraco argued: "If we-re going to hold the line, let's hold the line right down the line." The selectmen were split on the Saraco amendment. Finance opposed it because of possible unforeseen expense increases due to inflation and the lifting of wage and price controls.

The meeting indicated its confidence in Finance by voting down the amendment on a 73-86 standing vote.

The meeting passed an appropriation of $5,450 for public celebrations. This action was taken without comment. Finance had originally recommended $3,635, then agreed after consultation with the Board of Selectmen a month ago to increase the amount. The money is for hiring bands for holiday parades.

Town meeting members approved a request from the Mystic Valley Mental Health Center for $27,690 for an 18-month period as Winchester's share for services to residents. This is $14,846 more than was appropriated last year for a 12-month period.

In response to town meeting members' questions, Dr. Warren Taylor of the Board of Health noted the closest relationship of the center exists with the school system. Referrals come from the School Committee and professional help is provided through the cooperation of guidance counselors, he said. On whether a parent has a right to go directly to the center, Taylor said, "Yes, the availability is there for parents to refer offspring to the center."

Summing up the need for the support of mental health, Taylor stated: "One out of every 10 persons are at some time stressed sufficiently to need some kind of guidance; one out of 20 on the national average will seek professional guidance; and one out of 13 in Winchester has or will seek guidance."

When Winchester first joined the five-town contributory effort toward mental health services in 1963, town meeting approved $17,000. "Now we are asking $27,000 for the extended fiscal year."

He noted that Winchester's participation in terms of use has been proportional to the overall effort. "We have had equitable share in the program. Last year our participation increased 69 percent in contrast to 46 percent in the previous year." He estimated that $3,900 was paid in fees by Winchester participants last year. "The question is not can we afford it, but can we not afford it," Taylor concluded.

The meeting Monday night progressed so well and sustained such interest through the normally dry budget items that when 11 p.m. approached TMM Robert Joyce of Prec. 6 suggested that the member who traditionally moves for adjournment refrain from doing so until completion of the few remaining budgets.

But Jeremiah McCarron of Prec. 6 was undeterred. The meeting went along with his adjournment move. Tonight at 7:45 p.m. in the new high school auditorium they meet again.

At Neno's Market, 32 Swanton st., a quantity of candy bars was taken Wednesday by the intruder(s) who entered the store by removing slats from the ventilator.

A panel truck belonging to Koko Boodakian & Sons, Inc., Main st., was seen being driven away by an unknown person and an automobile was taken from the parking lot at the Winchester Theatre, 661 Main, later to be recovered in Woburn. A car stolen in Cambridge was located on Ardley road that afternoon.

A Charles road resident discovered one morning that the two new front tires on his vehicle had been swapped for an old pair. Bicycles were taken from a Winthrop street residence, Sargent road garage and from Highland avenue, later discovered near Mill Pond.

Miscellaneous items reported stolen were license plates at the Wedgemere parking lot, car battery on Highland, snow blower from a Main street rear porch and a cloth coat with fur trim at Winchester High School.

Local police were informed of vandalism at the Christopher Columbus Club on Raymond place where a window was broken and at the Palmer Beach bath house where shingles were torn off. Rocks were thrown through two automobile windshields on Hinds road and Priscilla lane, and two windows were broken at Noonan School.

Town meeting meets Mondays and Thursdays at 7:45 p.m. in the new high school. Public may attend.

Miss Russell On Staff Of N.Y. Church

Valerie Russell, daughter of Mrs. Clyde Jones of 68 Harvard st., has joined the staff of Riverside Church in New York City for an eight month period as coordinator of Riverside's metropolitan mission study action process. This process is undertaken by the congregation of Riverside Church to determine its role as an interdenominational, multi-racial urban church in the 1970's and the rest of the 20th century.,

Miss Russell is a graduate of Suffolk University with a BA degree in sociology and an award for academic excellence. She was co-chairman of the New England Student Christian Movement for two years;

Coordinator of Head Start and program director of the Blue Hill Christian Center in Roxbury. In 1965 she was a delegate to the White House Conference on Civil Rights, and for two summers was associate director of Mt. Holyoke's "A Better Chance" program providing tutorial assistance and psychological empowerment for inner 'city and rural college-bound youth. At Columbia University on a Woodrow Wilson Fellowship she has completed two years' work on an MA degree in sociology.

While on Riverside's staff, Miss Russell will continue to work one-quarter time with the national YWCA, where she is a communications consultant for youth constitutencies and social change. Her responsibilities include producing materials related to the elimination of racism, editing a newsletter for third world people, and keeping in touch with some six hundred local associations to help them build non-racist programs and programs for the empowerment of women.

She is a member of the executive committee of the Department of Higher Education, National Council of Churches; the National Women's Task Force of the United Church of Christ; and a Danforth Foundation committee seeking foundation help to train black campus ministers.

Her free time is divided between folk singing and working on a book about releasing human resources in the church. In 1971 she was selected as New York's outstanding young woman of the year.

Real Estate Today

MORTGAGE AS SELLING TOOL

As a seller, one of your best bets is to look for a buyer who is willing to assume your present mortgage. You shouldn't have to look far. If there is a substantial unpaid balance and the interest rate is below today's rates, your old mortgage will be one of your most important selling assets. Also, as a seller, you will avoid paying any "points" which may go along with a buyer taking out a new mortgage.

Usually, the lending institution will go along with the transfer. But beware, some won't agree without an increase in the interest rate, which, from the buyer's standpoint, robs the deal of some of its charm.

Before you start advertising, "low int. mort. takeover" and possibly setting yourself up for a letdown, have your Realtor check your mortgage loan and advise you as to whether it can be transferred to a new buyer at the original interest rate.

If you have any questions on this subject or on any other aspect of Real Estate, pigase feel free to call or drop in at JAMES T. TREFREY, INC., REALTORS, 27 Waterfield Road, Winchester - Tel. 729-6100.

Girl Scouts Earn Badges

During winter vacation Junior Girl Scout Troop 504, Lincoln School, relaxed recently with other troops in Winchester at the Wal-Lex Roller Skating Rink. For their first session of badge work on Feb. 14, the girl's planned a Scout's Own with the theme of "The Many Meanings of Valentine's Day - Love and Friendship."

The opening ceremony consisted of selected poems read by Linda Barbuto, Alice Greene and Caroline Twomey. Laura Carey, Laura Cunningham, Alice Greene, Nan Keller, Linda Marotta, Lisa Richardson and Susie Stoffregen, under the leadership of Mrs. Sally Greene, staged a medley of songs about love, as part of the musician badge. While several girls held huge red cardboard hearts and sang songs about love, two more girls encased in a refrigerator carton carved into a 4 dimensional heart trimmed with newspaper lace revolved singing a counterpoint melody.

Ann Bruno and Stephanie Schwartzman made a mobile depicting various kinds of love and friendship in pictures framed by big red hearts. Under this the troop assembled to watch a pantomine of the story of how Valentines Day began. Meg Boyle, Ann Bruno, Susanne Perra, Stephanine Schwartzman and Patrice Tracey were the actresses.

After presentation to first year juniors of the World Association Pin, symbolizing the friendship of girl scouts and guides all over the world, Patrice Tracey, violin, and Susan Flaherty, piano, brought the Scout's Own to a beautiful end with the theme from "Love Story."

Each Badge Work Group gave demonstrations of work accomplished. Mrs. Dot Twomey, along with Laurie Farrell, Stephanie Schwartzman, Patrice Tracey and Caroline Twomey, displayed the girls' needlecraft designs. Mrs. Twomey showed a trunk size toy chest she and Caroline designed and are making. The girls told what they learned in the working toward their badge.

Susan Flaherty, Lisa Olivier Joyce Fryklund and Julie Parry explained how the prints on display were created. Print Making was done under the leadership of Mrs. Jane Parry.

Ann Bruno, Lynn Downes, Lauren Fryklund, Joyce Fryklund, Susie Kirkpatrick and Paula Spagnullo showed a stuffed brightly colored toys ranging from frogs and mice to a huge puppy created as part of the toymaker badge, earned under the direction of Mrs. Gabby Fryklund.

Floral terry cloth ponchos with ball-fringe and stuffed pillows were the end results of the sewing badge earned by Laura Cappello, Susanne Perra, Wendy Rae and Andrea Spagnuolo with badge mother Mrs. Trudy Rae.

Lined tote bags with handles and covers were executed by Meg Boyle, Drusilla Jaffe, Eileen McGeoghean, Elaine Simeone and Patty Raymond, guided by Mrs. Lee Jaffe. Girls in both sewing badges showed other products such as material charts, button and snap samples.

Lauren Fryklund, Annie Morgan and Suzy Lou Strader described a completed dinner party they planned, prepared, and served to their parents and troop leader as the final part of their cooking badge. This was the culmination of weeks of learning of good nutrition, measuring, and preparation and serving of food under the guidance of badge mother Mrs. Jo Morgan.

Lori Ryan, Leah Covino, Linda Barbuto and Amy Maxwell are completing their cooking badge under the direction of Mrs. Ginny Covino.

Registration Open Now At Bartlett Elem.

The Bartlett Private Elementary School, 34-36 Bartlett ave., Arlington, is now accepting enrollment for the September 1973 classes.

Bartlett School was opened in 1933 by Norine D. Casey, a former Boston teacher, and former member of the Arlington School Committee. Bartlett School is now directed by Mrs. Casey's daughter, Norine T. Casey, who graduated from Wellesley College in 1949 and received her M.A. in Education degree from Harvard University in 1951.

There are two pre-school classes at Bartlett School. Four year olds are eligible for the kindergarten group, and five year olds enter the sub-primary class. These classes are mornings only. The children move from the music room to a handwork room with a snack time between. They end the morning on the playground where equipment includes a sand-box, slides, swings and seesaws.

Children in the Sub-Primary class are taught to read from pre-primers and to print simple sentences in preparation for grade one. Phonetic charts are used in both kindergarten and sub-primary classes. Kindergarten and sub-primary teachers are both highly experienced. Classes are kept small and transportation is provided.

In grades one through six children bring their lunches to school and have afternoon as well as morning classes, with two playground recess breaks. Admission to grade one is on the basis of a readiness test rather than on just chronological age. There are two first grades at Bartlett School so that children at this grade level can accomplish more in small classes.

Children are taught cursive writing as well as manuscript printing, reading by means of Bartlett School's own phonetic materials and advanced modern math concepts. Time is also given to music and art periods and simple science experiments in grade one.

During grade two children are taught half space writing and to create their own lengthy stories and poems. A system of simple book reports is initiated at grade two and continued through the upper grades.

Children in grades three to six are driven to Arlington Boys' Club for gym and swimming instruction in addition to the playground activities. French is taught during these years from both an oral and simple grammar approach. Creative writing is emphasized as well as traditional English grammar.

Miss Casey teaches the sixth grade math, introducing all the newer advanced algebraic and geometric concepts. She also enriches the social studies classes by showing slides taken during her travels in South America, Europe, Asia, and Africa. The children enjoy field trips to local museums, Audubon sanctuaries, and even a day's trip to the United Nations.

Graduates of Bartlett School have been accepted in all the fine independent schools and local junior high schools. Bartlett School students come from 10 different local communities. Transportation is provided to Arlington and all neighboring communities. All teachers are experienced, many have M.A. degrees. Visitors are welcome at Bartlett School by appointment.

St. Mary's Parish To Host Program By Missionaries

Missions in Focus, "a program designed to bring the message of Vatican II concerning the missions to the people of God," is coming to St. Mary's Parish this Wednesday. Teams of missionary priests and sisters have been formed to visit parishes of the archdiocese of Boston.

Each missionary represents one of the 18 overseas missionary groups in the archdiocese. From April 4-11 St. Mary's will play host to four such missionaries: the Rev. Thomas J. Kelly, SJ, the Rev. Joseph McSweeney (ssc), Sister Claudette Martineau, SA, and Sister Veronica Keaney, MMM.

The parish visitation includes a concelebrated mass, mission talks in the church, in the school, in CCD classes and with parish groups. One of the high points of the program features informal visits to concerned parishioners' homes to which the missionaries have been invited.

Missions in Focus is not a mission appeal for funds. It is intended to provide information on the missions and to promote an awareness of every Christian's missionary nature and of his sense of responsibility to the world.

The program will close with a concelebrated mass on April 11.

St. Eulalia's Sets 6th Social Action Seminar

St. Eulalia's Parish will hold its sixth and final adult interfaith program on social issues from a religious perspective in Manion Hall at 8:15 p.m. on April 2, 9 and 23.

Scott Paradise, executive director of the Boston Industrial Mission and chairman of the board of Massachusetts Tomorrow, will be leader of the three-part program.

On April 2 the discussion will be "Limit of Growth," at which time participants will discover what's been happening. On April 9 "Politics of Growth" will be the subject. A report on Massachusetts Tomorrow will be given.

On April 23 the topic will be "Involvement of the Churches." Here the group will look into the question: Is the Christian way of life outmoded? They will explore today's ethics, theology, lifestyles in relation to tomorrow, population, military industrial complex and material production.

Blair Terminals To Open New Plant

The opening of a new warehousing facility in Worcester was recently announced by David K. Blair, president of Blair Terminals and Motor Transport, Inc., of 45 Holton st., Winchester.

Blair said that the new warehouse, which will service central New England, has 95,000 square feet of space and is centered at the crossroads of all major central New England highways. The facility will expand capacity by 45 percent and facilitate distribution in this market for many of the major manufacturers and distributors it serves.

"This new facility, coupled with a new IBM system in our Winchester distribution center, marks the first step in a planned expansion program designed to increase distribution facilities 500 percent in the next five years, "Blair said Motor Transport, our trucking arm, is expected to keep pace, already having established a rigging operation and completion of a three-year program to completely update the fleet."

A. von Lazar Covers Chilean Nat. Elections

Arpad von Lazar of 91 Church st., an associate professor of international politics and international development studies at Tufts University's Fletcher School of Law and Diplomacy, returned recently from Chile where he covered the national elections.

Von Lazar interviewed members of the Chilean government and its opposition, as well as representatives of business and public life. He also visited wockr-controlled factories, expropriated companies and much of the countryside.

Von Lazar has authored more than a dozen books and articles on Chile and the development problems of Latin American countries.

Mrs. Barone Hears Ambassador Bush

Winchester's member of the Massachusetts Republican State Committee Cynthia Barone attended its meeting recently in Boston. Of interest to local Republicans would be the fact that the guest of the evening was former United Nations Ambassador George Bush, new chairman of the Republican National Committee.

Bush's informal remarks to Committee members gave his personal view of President Nixon. "The Man," as Bush has worked in many capacities for Nixon over a number of years.

"The Nixon Doctrine in Vietnam," said Chairman Bush, "definitely made him the leader of the free world. If he had not maintained a firm commitment for peace, the United States could not have retained the respect of the free countries."

He also spoke of Nixon's pledge not to involve Americans around the world hereafter, but rather his desire to have this country "help people to help themselves." The same idea prevails at home where the President hopes to cut down federal controls wherever possible and give the "power to the people" (as they say) back in the states, cities and towns.

Bush stated that although he found his position as UN Ambassador fascinating, when the President asked that he become chairman of the National Committee he did so because "I believe we have something special in this country which people of all other countries recognize." He believed that working with the grass roots citizens throughout the country from precincts to national organizations was the most challenging job of all.

Mrs. Barone attended a press conference for Bush and Governor Francis Sargent at the State House and a reception for Republican Legislators in the Governor's office prior to the State Committee meeting.

Aberjona Cleanup Is Saturday

Nearly 180 boy scouts and 50 adults from Winchester and Woburn will take part in the fourth annual Aberjona River cleanup Saturday.

The boys will paddle canoes from Salem street in Woburn to Wedgemere Station in Winchester, collecting shopping carts, tires, bicycles, bedsprings, lumber, lawn mowers, bags of beer cans and other assorted debris from the river and its banks. The debris will be dumped at six stations along the route. The first canoes will leave Salem street at 8 a.m.

Many civic and business organizations contribute each year to this major effort to improve the local environment. Last year 31 truckloads of trash were removed from the river during the cleanup, improving its appearance and flow.

Among the groups who will assist the scouts with the cleanup will be the Winchester police who will help control traffic at the portages, particularly at the Main street bridge in Winchester Cener, and the Winchester Fire Department, which will send a truck to the finishing point to help the boys clean the Aberjona slime and mud from the canoes. Winchester and Woburn Park Department trucks will be stationed at dump points to transport debris.

Points will be given at each dumping station for trash collected. Prizes will be awarded at the close of the event to the four top-collecting canoe teams. In the past prizes have included sleeping bags, pup tents, lanterns and compasses.

Younger scouts who will work as bank beavers will also be eligible for prizes. In addition, every boy who participates in the cleanup will receive a special patch designed to commemorate the event.

Safety precautions will include the wearing of life jackets by all canoeists, and first aid and sterilization facilities at points long the route. Adults will be stationed at all portages and danger points on the river.

Refreshments for workers will be available at the Cross street portage and dump point and at a chuckwagon at Wedgemere Station at the end of the route.

Jack Farrell, Troop 507 committeeman, will supervise this year's Aberjona cleanup. He will be assisted by Fred Greene. Among the many other adults who will donate time and energy to the cleanup are Dick Dexter, who will act as quartermaster, Henry Wilson, in charge of bank beavers, and Al Fernald and Innocent Noel, who will man the chuckwagon. Local businessman and Troop 507 committeeman Harry Boodakian, the originator of the Aberjona Cleanup, will act as advisor again this year.

Mullen Confirmed Special Judge To Somerville Court

Judge Leonard Mullen of 21 Chesterford rd., town counsel for six years, has been confirmed a special judge of the Somerville District Court by the governor's council, replacing Judge Kingston. His name had been submitted to the council by Gov. Francis W. Sargent. He will take oath of office in about a month, and be assigned to duties by Judge Michael DeMarco.

A native of Cambridge, Mullen has been a Winchester resident since 1963. A graduate of Boston University College of Business Administration, he holds a bachelor of science degree and was later graduated from Suffolk Law School, where he received a cum laude law degree with the class of 1952.

He was admitted to the Mass. Bar Association in 1952 and the Federal Bar Association in 1954. He was admitted to practice in the Federal Court of Appeals for the First Circuit in 1957.

Active in political affairs, Mullen was a member of the Malden City Council for four years and served as president of that body in 1953. He also served on the Malden School Committee for six years and was chairman in 1961.

Mullen is a former employee of the Mass. Commission to Revise and Recodify the general laws of the Commonwealth and holds memberships in various state and local bar associations as well as city solicitors' and town counsel association.

Young Democrats Organizing Club

A group of people interested in forming a Young Democrats Club in Winchester, met at the home of Miss Karen Sullivan of 8 Hill Street this past week. Among those present were town meeting Members Norman Doucette Jr, Ken Trevett, Karen Sullivan, and Robert Joyce. Also attending were Maryrose Wilson, Charlie Lyons, and Samuel Rotundi.

Discussion centered around the formation and chartering of an organization for young democrats in the town. Goals of the group were discussed and plans were made to discuss these goals at a later meeting to be held on April 1st. One of the major goals of the group is to urge young people to become interested voters in the town, and also to interest them in the operations of the Democratic Party.

Future plans include drives to increase registration among students both in the town and attending school in other locations, run dances and other youth oriented activities, and to provide candidates and voters with an open forum for discussing politics and government.

Any registered voter in the town between the ages of 18 and 36 is eligible to become a voting member of the new organization. Provisions are also made for those young people between the ages of 16-18 to become non-voting members of the club.

The opening meeting of the Young Democrats Club will be held this coming Sunday night, April 1st, at 8 p.m. at the home of Karen Sullivan, 8 Hill st., Winchester. Anyone interested in becoming a member or who would like to learn more about the organization is invited to attend.
